FIRST METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Sunday evening The First Methodist Church enjoyed "Family Night," when the members and their guest gathered for a delicious covered dish supper. After the supper was over favorite songs were sung and then we all enjoyed a wonderful lesson on discipleship which was given in the form of a moving picture. A large crowd testified to a most enjoyable evening.

The business of the WSCS was held at the Church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting was ably presided over by the vice-president, Mrs. Marvin Vickers. After all business was completed the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Frank Ryland, who was in charge of the program. A devotional was given by Mrs. Ryland on "We have Riches to Give." The program was given in the form of a playlet entitled: "To each a Small Part." Mrs. Vickers enacted the part of Mary. Misses Pat Broadhead and Shelby Studdard assisted Mrs. Vickers in making the little play a success. Mrs Clara Mullins served light refreshments which were enjoyed very much.

Mr. and Mrs. Oakley Melton of Montgomery spent the holidays here with parents, Mr. and Mrs Ben Studdard.

Jerry Studdard visited Lamar Majure several days in Guntersville Ala. He also visited friends in Oneonta, Gadsden, Centre and Bessemer.

Robert Lane Home From Germany

Robert D. (Bobby) Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Lane of Clanton, arrived here Tuesday evening after a fourteen month's tour of duty in Butzbach, Germany.

Bobby was in Co. B, 8th Infantry Regt. of the Fourth Division.

The founder of this plan was [illegible] now in Philadelphia. He states that this was his life's best work. In 1952 we had 64 graduates who received college certificates for 3[illegible] college hours.

WHITE SUPREMACY

FOR THE RIGHT

Never has a public hero lost stature so fast as has Eisenhower. Not as a soldier or a great American—but the people are coming to realize that his ability as a statesman and political leader was all in their minds and imaginations. He is not the popular political figure that his backers dreamed he would be.

Looks like the local Democrats agreed at their river meeting last week that all was harmony within the party. The local organization is working together for a victory in November.

Reading about hurricanes in Florida and along the Atlantic Seaboard makes us glad we live in Alabama.

The "Keep Chilton County Green" edition of Chilton County News published last week being a little hard on the eyes—to read that is, we are only running a green section this week and publishing the "Keep Chilton County Green" ads in that section. Other sections of the News are in black as heretofore and regular advertisers, local and foreign, will be confined to those pages. The "Keep Chilton County Green" movement is worthwhile and should be seriously studied by the farmers. This year, when we have suffered so from the dry summer the green fields this winter will especially pay-off for the farmer.

The best way to defeat a candidate you favor is to stay away from the polls on election day and NOT vote.

The only way you can earn the right to bellyache about the kind of public officials we have is to go to the polls and vote on election day.

Even the "Republicrat" press is agreeing that Ike hasn't what it takes to make the grade.

1953 IS 'YEAR OF DECISION'

Alabama is finding itself in a more ridiculous position yearly on its refusal to let women serve on juries.

For example, a recent report of the Council of State Government shows that Alabama is one of only six states which do not recognize the right of women to serve as jurors.

Action by the legislatures of Tennessee, New Mexico and Oklahoma during 1951 raises to 42 the number of states which have enacted jury service legislation for women.

Of the 42 states which now have such legislation, compulsory service is required for women as well as men in 22 states, while 20 states and the District of Columbia allow optional service which permits a woman to refuse jury duty solely on the basis of sex.

A mocking fact is that, while some of the highest elective officers in Alabama are women, the fairer sex is still without the right to sit in the jury box.

Some notable strides have been made toward winning this privilege for women in recent years, largely through the efforts of such alert organizations as the Alabama League of Women Voters. Yet the legislature has still taken no action.

The legislature meets again next year. The Examiner is thoroughly convinced that 1953 should be the "year of decision"—as well as the year of action—on this matter.

Any further delay in passing legislation enabling our women to serve as jurors would hardly serve as any tribute to our state.—Montgomery Examiner.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

In common with most other little boys, our three-year-old likes pockets. His favorite pants are those with the biggest pockets, pockets in which he can stuff all the 'treasures' he collects during the course of a busy day.

He likes has Daddy's pockets, too, for in them he can usually find some bubble gum or a colored pencil or a nickel for a popsicle or some other small surprise

Late the other afternoon, we were taking a leisurely walk, when the three-year-old looked up at a towering oak tree and asked,

"Where did that tree come from?"

"God gave it to us," I answered.

"And did God give us the grass and flowers, too?"

"Yes."

"And did he give us the squirrels and the birds and the snakes and the rabbits?"

"Yes."

He was silent for a moment, and then he said, "God must have a mighty big pocket!"

The ingenious mother down the street has invented a new game to keep her children occupied when they can't play outdoors. The only equipment needed is four bottle tops and an empty egg carton.

Basically the game consists of tossing the bottle tops into the sections of the egg carton, each of which is numbered. The player who makes the highest score is, of course, the winner.

It seems that every time we go it to sit on the porch or in the yard, the chairs are dusty, and we have to go back into the house to find a cloth to wipe them off before we can sit down and relax. Most annoying.

Our practical next door neighbor handles this situation easily. She has made an oilcloth bag and attached it to the bottom of one of her yard chairs. In the bag is a big dust cloth, right ready to whisk the film of dirt off the chairs in a jiffy.

If you haven't tried it before, you'll find a nut cracker is a mighty handy gadget to use in crushing ice cubes.

The new mother down the street says that one of her most prized possessions is a big apron a friend made for her to wear when she bathes the baby.

The bottom part of the apron is made from a thick, absorbent Turkish towel, and the top part is a matching wash cloth. Wide fabric bands in contrasting colors tie the apron in place. Even the splashingest baby can't do much damage to an apron like that one!

Small boy's complaint: "You just wash me and wash me and wash me and wash me all the time!"

Grapefruit salad fits in with almost any menu any time of year, but it seems to be especially good in September when the days are still hot. Here's a simple version:

Dissolve a package of lemon-flavored gelatin in a cup of hot water. Stir in 1-4 cup sugar, pinch of salt, 3-4 cup of grapefruit juice (drained from can of segments) and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. When it begins to thicken, add 1 cup grapefruit segments. Chill.

Every Bale Of Cotton Classed, Then Sell

Every bale middling grade or higher should be the goal of every cotton grower in Chilton County. If the grade is lowered from middling to low middilng by careless handling, picking and ginning or weather damage you may lose $25 to $40 a bale.

Here are a few suggestions that may help you produce more middling bales in 1952:

1. Start picking when bolls are open wide and get it out of the field before weather damage.
2. Pick clean and free of trash.
3. If cotton is picked damp, spread it out to dry. Often the early morning damp-picked cotton reduces the grade of a whole truck or trailer load which may be several bales.
4. Take cotton to the gin dry.
5. Do not mix clean-picked white cotton with rough-picked dirty cotton.
6. Carry your cotto nto a good gin equipped to do a good job. Be sure and tell the ginner your cotton is damp.
7. Keep a check on your harvesting and ginning practices. Members of cotton improvement associations should ask their ginner or warehouseman to send a sample from every bale to the classing office for free government classing. The classing office will mail the grower a green card showing grade, staple length and gin preparation on every sample classed. These cards are helpful in marketing. Lending agencies will accept these cards in making government loans.

Fertilize and disk early harvested cotton land. Have soil ready for seeding winter grazing crops when moisture is in the soil in late August and September. Make your cotton fields work for you this winter by planting soil improving winter legumes and winter grazing crops.

HOW TO ENCOURAGE PRODUCE GROWERS

The serious drought this summer could very well cause Alabama food producers to lose interest in growing much needed crops in the future.

This could mean shorter supplies of foods normally found in food markets during the "home-grown" season, resulting in higher food prices.

Therefore, if you are a food distributor, chances are you can help your producer friends over this bad year with a friendly word of encouragement. Better still, help them make a profit on whatever they [illegible] weather. This interest will encourage them to grow bigger and better [illegible] year.

[illegible] are a consumer, perhaps [illegible]

[illegible] n County green is the [illegible] cattle farmers to follow in maintaining an economically sound beef program.

FORTY YEARS OLD and STILL GOOD

Alabama Power Company issued in October, 1913, a bulletin to employees which stated, in part:

"The Alabama Power Company is operating a system to supply service to the public and the success of the Company will depend on the manner in which this service is given and on the treatment which consumers or prospective consumers secure from our employees."

After nearly forty years, that is still our policy, more recently stated as follows:

"We recognize a triple responsibility — to the public, to our employees and to investors—and our obligation to try to maintain a just balance among these three interests.

"We recognize that it is a duty and a privilege to participate as a good citizen in the development of every community within our service area through the payment of taxes and otherwise, and to this end we pledge the services of the men and women of our organization."

Timely Tips On Beef Production

Temporary grazing. The present drought over most of the state emphasizes the importance of lespedeza sericea to Alabama cattle. Cattle are grazing and doing well on sericea and kudzu and even in the drought-stricken areas. This should convince Alabama catt[illegible] that they should have enou[illegible] acreage of these deep-rooted cr[illegible] to carry their cattle through any drought. Sericea [illegible] azing not only dur[illegible] but from [illegible]

[illegible] We ar [illegible]

[illegible] ion and death. It should be detected in the early stages when the cattle first start staggering. Then the cattle should be taken off the Dal[illegible] and put on other grazing [illegible] Dallis grass heads mowed off. The cattle will usually recover in a few days.

Foot and mouth disease. It is very possible for us to have an outbreak of foot and mouth disease anywhere in the U. S. similar to the one which recently [illegible] in Canada. All Extension [illegible] should be on the alert for any suspicious livestock diseases. If a farmer reports a suspiciously diseased animal, go immediately [illegible] and if you are [illegible]

[illegible] ician. In addition, call this office or the state veterinarian's office.

4-H Steers. You should have most of your steers on feed by now. Any that are bought later should weigh at least 800 pounds. When starting these steers on feed remember [illegible] ater [illegible] should not be pushed too fast at the start. Young calves do require more protein in their feed than older steers. The mixture should contain approximately one pound of supplement to every 6 or 7 pounds of grain. If this mixture is too rich as can be observed by [illegible] supplement should be cut in half at once. If there is a nurse cow or extra milk available, it certainly would be fine for this to be given the steer. If the calf has been weaned while still young, some form of milk substitute may be fed for a short while.

Community Work

Activities for September. Following the summer, when many of the meetings have been picnics or tours, September means a good time to [illegible] and see that the fall [illegible] Improvement Programs are [illegible] A leading farmer who [illegible] one [illegible] stage of [illegible] group during the year. Many groups will be pleased and surprised at the many improvements made on farms and in the homes during the year. Nothing can be more impressive or more inspirational than to know that WE are doing good work in [illegible] own community. Suggest that the groups make these summaries to find what has actually been accomplished.

Nominating committees may need to be appointed in September, so that elections of new officers may be held in October. This will give [illegible] program planning [illegible] getting ready to begin the year 1953 in good style.

In some areas fairs are being [illegible] might be interested in putting on an exhibit, maybe winning some much needed money for the club program. Most organizations need a little money. Other ways may be used in raising money. Some are community auctions of donated items, dinners and banquets for organizations, picture shows, square dances, bake sales, cake walks, pie suppers, and scrap collections.

Fish and Wildlife

Catfish. Pond owners who have found a few catfish in their ponds should try to trap these undesirable fish this fall and winter. If enough of the fish are not removed by late [illegible] ond will have to be drained, the remaining water poisoned, and the pond restocked in order to insure good fishing the following year. For trapping catfish, make traps preferably of hardware cloth five to six feet long, about 15 to 18 inches in diameter and with a funnel at each end, something like a minnow trap. The mouth of the funnel should be around three to four inches in diameter. Cut a small window in the middle of the trap so that the fish can be removed and bait added. The best bait is three or four fist-sized pieces of soybean cake. Cottonseed cake can be substituted if soybean cake is not available. Put the trap in water four and one-half to five feet deep so that it can be easily located. The trap can be wired and driven to a wooden stake that sticks above the water; or a strong cord tied to the trap can be attached to a floating object that is easily seen. Bait the trap and check it every one to two days and remove the catfish. A trap baited in such a manner will also attract crappie, which are undesirable in any pond. The pond owner should make at least one trap per acre of water.

NEW PONDS: September is a good month in which to build new farm ponds. Pond owners should contact their county agent for advice as to whether a possible pond site will be suitable. Good clay material must be available for the dam; and the dam should have a two-to-one slope on both sides. The shore line should be staked off so that the area having shallow water can be dug out from one to three feet. The acreage of watershed should be determined so that the water supply for the pond will be sufficient but not over-abundant. A drainage pipe must be included in the pond if fish are to be obtained from the state or federal hatchery. A gate valve is preferable to any other type for the drainpipe.

Forestry

LUMBER MARKET: The market seems to be holding up. Construction is picking up and should get another boost when credit terms are ceased in September. Hardwood market is expected to pick up for quality hardwood. Low quality hardwood is still a drug on the market.

COLLARDS

Planted in early September, collards will produce good greens in a short time. To get rapid growth, however, plenty of fertilizer and insect control are necessary.

Home Garden Fertilization

For convenience and practical results, the commercial fertilizer generally used for row crop production on the farm is recommended in the home garden porgram. The information below further explains usage of the individual elements of your mixed fertilizing materials.

No commercial product is more effective and practical in a garden program than liberal usage of well-decayed compost or stable manure. Commercial fertilizers are recommended as a readily available source of needed plant food and in addition to compost.

Potash, phosphate. A reserve of potash and phosphate will be built up in land that received 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of complete fertilizer per acre for 2 or 3 years. If plenty of organic matter is present, part of this reserve will be available to crops. In this case annual applications may be reduced by One-third with little or no loss in production. Also, if two or more crops per [illegible] same land, the 1,000 to 1,500 pounds may be divided equally between the crops without loss of production.

Nitrogen. No reserve of nitrogen is built up in the soil from the application of commercial fertilizer. Each crop needs an amount of extra nitrogen. Use of manure or legumes does not reduce the need for extra nitrogen.

Lime, borax. Most gardens, except in the lime lands of the Black Belt, need lime applied every 4 or 5 years. The rate should vary from 1 ton of agricultural lime per acre on light, sandy soils to 2 tons on the stiffest clay soils. At the rate of 1 ton of lime per acre, a 100-pound bag of lime will cover 2,000 square feet. If basic slag is used, it will take 1 1-2 times as much to give the same liming effect. Many sandy soils, especially the grey sands, need borax for root crops. If turnips, beets, and carrots are dark inside when cut with a knife, they (and also radishes, rotabegas and parsnips) need 2 tablespoons of Borax per 100 feet of row for each planting.

Organic Matter. Organic matter may be regarded as the life of the soil. Without it there would be no "living things" of microscopic size and the soil would be "dead." A soil without organic matter and the "living things" that feed on it would be sterile or nearly so. No crop of value could be grown on it.

Animal manure takes first place among the forms of organic matter to use. It seems to contain something that is of value to plants which is not present in legumes and other forms of organic matter, nor in commercial fertilizers. Legumes rate second place because of their high nitrogen content. Any rotting material as roost, leaves or other plant residue is good. A well made compost is excellent. A heavy application of organic matter is needed every year. One or two big cotton baskets of manure to 100 feet of row, or a good wagon load, to a spot 25 by 100 feet or 50 by 50 feet is recommended.

In general, home garden crops should receive 1 1-2 to 3 quarts of commercial fertilizer per 100 feet of row. If a liberal supply (2 cotton baskets for 100 feet of row) of stable manure is not available, increase the fertilizer to 4 or 5 quarts per 100 feet of row. In either case, extra nitrates as a top or side dressing is needed.

Soil Preparation For Winter Green Crops

The question comes up in the drought emergency—how much soil preparation should be given?

On most all the land where cotton and other crops have been removed the soil should be disked just as soon as it [illegible] to do so. [illegible] start. [illegible] rains come the [illegible] moisture. The [illegible] may be so hard [illegible] aration may be necessary after rains come. Seed as soon as there is moisture in the soil that will germinate the seed and get the plants started.

This is not contrary to our "following" recommendations. If the land has been fallowed over a period of weeks seeding perhaps could be done at most any time because of favorable moisture in the soil. Where crops have been on the land the soil is likely devoid of [illegible]

In North Alabama, pa[illegible] it will be practica[illegible] ers to drill vetch and oa[illegible] at with a 1-row or 3-row drill in the row-crop middles. These seed may be fairly deep and still expect a stand. But usually you cannot expect as early or as much grazing as from crops seeded on prepared seedbed.

It is difficult to succeed with crimson clover seeded in cotton or corn middles if the plants are still somewhat green or if there is a lot of grass and weeds present. No doubt, many will be delayed until late October in getting seeding done unless weather conditions become favorable.

Baptism, by definition, is a sacrament instituted by Christ in which water is applied to the individual in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; and confers the forgiveness of sins. Baptism may be validly administered by sprinkling, pouring, or immersion. The Lutheran Church teaches that baptism:

1. Instituted by Christ (Matt. 28:19).
2. Necessary to salvation (Mark 16:16; 1 Peter 3:21).
3. Confers forgiveness of sins (Acts 2:38; Gal. 3:27).
4. Intended also for children and infants (Matt. 18:6; Acts 2:38).

Control Chicken Lice For Egg Profits

Don't let lice eat up egg profit! On six different tests, birds on which lice were controlled laid 20 per cent more eggs each than hens that were infested with lice.

Lice can be controlled for just a few cents and in just a few minutes by dusting two pounds of sulphur in the litter of the poultry house for every 100 suare feet of floor space. Repeat the treatment in 7 days. This treatment should last for about three months. Be sure to apply sulphur in spots in the house where birds dust themselves. Also apply it in the nest.

Recent research shows that lice can also be controlled by broadcasting 3 pounds of 1 percent lindane dust in each 1000 square feet of litter space. Only one treatment is necessary when lindane is used in this way.

Poultrymen are advised today to take special care in feeding and managing the pullets that are now on range. He reports that poultry scientists at the Western Kentucky sub-experiment station have just completed some tests which would tend to condemn old laying hens t the pot.

Comparing hens in their second laying year with first year pullets, they found that the pullets laid three to five dozen more eggs per bird, that they were better wintertime layers, and that more of their eggs were of higher quality. Furthermore, chicks hatched from pullet eggs lived better than those hatched from eggs of old hens. The pullets survived better in the laying house and chicks from their eggs had lower mortality rate.

DUNCAN WAS DIFFERENT
by RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

HALFWAY BACK to the ranch Duncan swung the roadster into a grove of willow trees and stopped. Marian sat bolt upright. "No good," she said. "I was afraid it would turn out like this. If the price of having you drive me home is being kissed, I'll walk."

He stared at her. "Well, you're pretty high hat about yourself, aren't you? I'll bet you wouldn't walk, at that."

She opened the coupe door and got out. "I've been out with dudes like you before. Us westerners are particular whom we kissed."

She half expected that he would follow, but he didn't. Which only went to further substantiate her opinion of all dudes. True, she had thought Duncan was different. He had red hair and mild blue eyes and was a bug collector. Joe Blackburn, who operated the Lazy Y outfit where Duncan was staying, gave it a much more important sounding name, but to her it was plain, simple bug-collecting.

Joe had held a dance for his guests and she came over with her father. It wasn't the first time she had met dudes. She was used to them. They all tried to flirt with her, and more than once she had slapped a dudish face with a force that wasn't forgotten.

Duncan was different. He wasn't fresh or flirty or boastful. He didn't look as though he were rich either. He was more interested in talking about the desert than bragging about the city back East where he came from. Marian danced with him three times, and when he asked if she'd like to have him drive her home, she said she would. Even so, she was a little wary.

She thought he might call the next day and apologize, but he didn't. She decided the best thing to do was to forget him—if she could.

Two days later, at dinner, her brother Dan told about meeting a bug collector on the north range. Dan was enthusiastic. "He's a good egg, even though he is a dude. We had quite a talk. I couldn't help liking the guy. He's coming out to dinner tomorrow night."

Duncan arrived an hour before dinner time the day following. She heard his coupe swing in at the drive and appeared not to notice. Her father was on the front porch, and she decided to let him do the honors. She almost dropped the pie she was holding when she found him leaning on the window sill grinning at her. "Hello, Freckles. Say, that pie smells good. I couldn't resist following up the odor."

"Please go around to the front porch," she said. "Dad's there waiting for you."

Ten minutes later Dan came into the kitchen with Duncan. "Listen Sis, this is the guy I was telling you about. Dunc, this is my sister."

"We've already met," Marian said coldly.

Dan looked from one to the other of them. "Say, how about this?" He looked suspicious.

"Mr. Neville smelled my pies and followed his nose," Marian explained.

Duncan said unexpectedly: "But we met before that. At the dance at the Lazy Y. I was quite taken with your sister, Dan, and asked her if I might drive her home. On the way, I saw something under a willow tree that looked like a rare species of—well, bug, to you. I stopped to investigate and Marian accused me of trying to kiss her. It made me mad, and when she threatened to walk home, I let her."

Marian blushed to the roots of her hair. The fact that Dan burst into loud guffaws didn't help matters any. She considered walking out on the pair of them, but this would only provide more opportunity for their remarks.

After supper the men went out on to the veranda. From the kitchen Marian could hear them talking. She made as much noise as she could to drown out the sound. Every time she thought of Duncan's bland explanation she got mad.

She prolonged the dish washing as long as possible, was in the act of hanging up the towels to dry, when a voice behind her said: "What, through so soon?"

Marian turned on him angrily, "Why do you persist in annoying me? I—you made a complete fool of me once. Must you continue to rub it in? Please go back with Dan and father."

He shook his head cheerfully. "They've gone," he said.

"Gone? Where?

"I dunno." He shrugged. "Said they had business somewhere and asked if I minded. They said you'd entertain me."

Marian's cheeks went white. "Why—they deliberately—they—oh, why did you ever have to tell them about the other night?"

"How else was I going to let you know? I had to explain somehow. You thought I was different at first. I felt like the dickens because you'd changed your opinion."

"You could have phoned or written."

He shook his head. "Not half as satisfactory as telling you firsthand. That's why I made a point to meett your brother on the range and get to know him."

She gasped. "Why, of all—" She didn't finish. There wasn't much use in trying to put this young man in his place. He seemed to know all the answers. When he suggested that they go out and look at the moon she went. What was the use of refusing? When he took her hand she allowed him to hold it. When he talked softly and gently about things that were pleasant to her, she listened. And when he kissed her she returned his kiss. It wouldn't do any good, she knew, to act otherwise. It was much easier to admit that Duncan was different.

A PEEK AT THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

EARLY IN MARCH, 1950, Columbia's Popular Records Director Mitch Miller listened to a young vocalist's audition waxing of "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" . . . Sight unseen, he immediately signed the singer, one Tony Bennett, to a Columbia recording contract . . . This week, Tony justified Mitchell's faith in him by hitting the best-selling lists with two smash discs, "Because of You" and "Cold, Cold Heart" . . . Sales of Tony's unique hit duo have topped the 1,300,000 mark in the past four months . . . His newest recording, "Solitaire" and "Blue Velvet," jumped into fourth place on Columbia's own best-seller charts a week after its release.

While his Columbia records are spinning continuously on disc jockey programs and jukeboxes—"Because of You" tops the radio and juke box popularity charts—Tony Bennett recently headed off one of the New York Paramount theatre's heaviest bobby sox stampedes of recent years . . . Booked for an unprecedented four week run, Tony caused "fan demonstrations reminiscent of the early swooning Sinatra days," according to the October 1 issue of Newsweek . . . "Because of You," written more than 10 years ago, was suggested for a Bennett recording by Percy Faith, while "Cold, Cold Heart" was chosen from current folk music record hit ranks by Mitch Miller himself.

The 25-year-old singing star was born in Long Island City . . . Tony, then known as Anthony Benedetto, made his first public appearace at the age of seven in a neighborhood parish minstrel show, singing "Ida" . . . Singing remained a hobby with Tony while he studied commercial art at Manhattan's high school for industrial arts . . . After graduation, he entered the army, became an infantryman in Germany with the 225th regiment, 63rd division . . . When the war ended Tony sang with various army bands . . . Out of the army he sang with jazz groups and in small night clubs, also attended the American theatre wing's professional school for veterans.

Baptist News—

The revival which was held the week of August 10th did not close with the last day. Our people have renewed interest in God's work. The attendance at all services is increasing. There were seven for baptism and one by letter.

An Intermediate RA has been organized and an Intermediate GA also. On Tuesday of last week the Intermediate groups enjoyed a weiner roast on the school grounds.

The Young Peoples Class enjoyed a weiner roast last week at Preston's Grove.

Church of Christ—

The Church of Christ is holding a revival from Sept. 3rd through Sept. 11th. A. A. Ginn of McKenzie, Tenn., is doing the preaching.

In Remembrance—

The community expresses its deepest sympathy to the Sidney Griffin family in the loss of their small son, John. This fine lad will be greatly missed from our church group, our school and our little town. Heaven will be so much brighter and sweeter by his lovely spirit.

Joint Meeting of WMU Circles—

WMU circles met in session at the church Monday afternoon. Mrs. Homer Carroll was in charge of the program, in the absence of Mrs Russell Scott. "Consider Europe" was the subject studied. Members joined in singing, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," to open the meeting. The scripture was read by Mrs. Tom Cost, the theme being. "Missionary Commands of Jesus." The first reading was Matt. 28:18-19; Mark 16:15-20; Luke 24:44-49; John 20:21; Acts 1:8. Prayer was by Mrs. Cora Ellison.

"Europe in the World Picture" was discussed by Mrs. Nora Davenport. Mrs. Comer Lenoir brought the topic, "European Women and the Gospel" Mrs. George Naish read about European Baptist Women at work.

A short business session followed the program, with the vice president, Mrs. Naish, serving Names will be drawn for circles for the new year. The committee for a stove for the kitchen reported and the group agreed to buy the stove recommended.

The meeting closed by singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Program at School Opening—

The program was opened by singing 'America.' The Rev. Homer Carroll read Matt 13:16, then led in prayer. Mr. J. A. Peterson welcomed new pupils with those returning. Janice Wells sang, Some Day My Prince May Come. Mr. Peterson made a talk regarding the lunch room, school insurance and physical education. Janice Miller sang, The Lovliest Night of the Year. This number was followed by a piano solo by Sandra Peterson. Mr. Peterson named the new teachers. Mrs Nell [illegible], music, glee club and voice: Miss Bobbie Patton, physical education: Mrs. Mary J. Hall and Mrs. Nellie Glasscock. Mr. Peterson mentioned the lockers, enrollment and the new flag pole. A number of 1952 graduates were present several of them will soon enter college.

Time For Thought—

The National Political Conventions are in the past. All were interested in the proceedings and are equally interested in the outcome in November.

While the interest in National affairs is keen, let all remember the local communities as well. The city election will soon be held. It is the duty of every citizen to express his desires by casting a vote. Let everyone awake from indifference and come to the aid of his community.

Below is a list of those who have qualified for the offices of Mayor and Council for the next four years election to be held Sept. 1th: Mayor, Fred Smith, incumbent; James Holley, Jr., and A. A. Langston Council: Russell Peterson, Lester Pate, Louie Miller, James A. Chandler, the present staff; and J. P Norwood, Sam Woodley, Alford Davenport, Alex Bolton, Clyde Harrell and William Vines.

Rescue Grass Information

What It Is: Rescue grass (Bromus cathartieus) is thought to be a native of South America. It is widely grown in Argentina and Uraguay. It is not definitely known when it was introduced into the Unitde States, but it was first identified in 1906 in the Carolinas. Seed were advertised in 1853 by B. V. Iverson of Columbus, Georgia. He named it "Rescue." Other common names are Shrader's Brome grass, Austrlian oats, Southern chess, and Australian prairie grass. It is often confused with cheat, but the seed are larger than seed of common cheat.

Where Adapted: Rescus is adapted to the South and Southwest where the winters are mild and humid. It is adapted to fertile soils.

Description and Use: Rescue is a short-lived perennial bunch grass, but is acts as a reseeding annual under cultivation in the South. Plants grow to a height of two to four feet and bear large open panicles which droop from ends of the long slender branches. On vigorous plants some panicels are a foot long. The seed are almost as large as oats and a bushel weighs 14 to 16 pounds. The leaf blades are 8 to 12 inches long and one-half inch in width. Growth starts in the fall and plants mature in late spring. On rich land or with heavy fertilization yields of two tons of hay per acre are common. In the vegetative stage rescue has about the same nutritive value as oats on similar soils. It is said to produce more on good land than oats or ryegrass.

Seed Yields: Most years it makes big seed yields if well fertilized. Yields of 400 pounds or more of clean seed per acre are common. It will reseed itself. The seed shatter freely before and during combining. Enough seed are usually left on the soil for reseeding.

Uses: Grazing, hay and soil protection.

When to Seed: September, and early October.

Soil Preparation: Break soil several weeks before time to seed; disk and harrow to make a firm seedbed.

Fertilization:

1. Rescue seeded alone for winter grazing and seed, fertilize as follows: Apply 400 pounds of 4-10-7 pe racre before planting. As soon as plants are up to a stand top-dress with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or equal amounts of nitrogen from other materials. During the latter part of February or by March 1 top-dress again at the rate of 300 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or equal nitrogen from other materials.

2. Rescue with crimson clover or vetch: (a) Apply 700 pounds of 4-10-7 in the fall before planting and top-dress with 100 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or equivalent nitrogen as soon as plants are up or (b) 500 pounds of 0-16-8 before planting and top-dress with 250 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or equivalent amount of nitrogen from other materials as soon as the plants are up or (c) 400 pounds of superphosphate and 80 pounds of muriate of potash before planting and top-dress with 250 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre or equivalent nitrogen from other sources as soon as plants are up.

Seeding: Broadcast 20 to 30 lbs. of treated seed per acre.

Strains: Several strains are offered: Texas 46, Chapel Hill, and Commercial Seed are being imported from Australia.

Combinations: Seed alone for seed harvest; for grazing seed with crimson clover or vetch, and on kudzu.

Grazing: Start when plants are four to five inches high.

Diseases: Rescue is subject to mildew, loose and covered smut and rust. Diseases seem to hit all strains. Loose smut can be controlled by seed treatment. Covered smut can be controlled by hot water treatment. Most plants and grasses like rescue are subject to covered smut damage.

Experiments: The Experiment Station is testing rescue but no definite research is available.

General Suggestions: Rescue is a most promising grass. But research and field experience are somewhat limited. It is suggested that it be given a trial for the present and not replace other good winter grazing mixtures. A good plan is to plant an area alone to produce a supply of seed. The small seed supply for the fall of 1952 will largely hold seedings to limited areas and for seed. Trail demonstrations should be established for seed production with crimson clover or vetch for grazing and on kudzu and alone. Then we should observe grazing results. Several farmers in Alabama have grown rescue successfully for several years on Kudzu.

Questions about it on sericea are being asked. We have no information on this practice on which to base recommendations.

OAT VARIETIES

The best oat varieties for grain production in Alabama are Anderson, Arlington, De Soto, and Victorgrain 48-93.

Selma Alcoholics Anonymous Celebrate 3rd Anniversary

(by Ruth Hicks)

Sunday, August 24, the Selma Alcholics Annonymous group celebrated their third anniversary at the Dallas County Court House, to which the public was invited. A speaker from Gulfport, Miss., and a member of the AA who is a former president of the Mississippi State Bar Association, was the guest speaker. In addressing the gathering, the visiting speaker summed up his own story as one of the greatest of paradoxes, in that in utter defeat he found victory. Speaking of the general aspects of alcholism, which today is ranked as one of the leading health problems in the United States, he said that medicine, psychiatry and even the church often fail because of the insistence that the alcholic can solve his problem through will power. Will power has nothing to do with it, he emphasized, and it is as useless to tell the alcholic to cure himself thru will power as it is to tell the tubercular to stop hemorrhaging. Alcholics Anonymous teaches him that he has a disease, that it can not be cured, but that it can be arrested through total abstainence.

AA continues the speaker, is a way of life by which the alcholic can remain happily sober. He summed up his own idea of the philosophy of the AA in six words, expressed by three of the greatest teachers of the ages, a Greek, a Roman and a Jew: Socrates, who taught, "Know Thyself;" Marcus Aurelius, "Control Thyself," and Jesus Christ, "Deny Thyself." The 12 simple steps of Alcholics Anonymous are essentially in four phrases, he said, these being defined as first, admission; second, inventory and resitution; third, spiritual, which is the admittance of a Power greater than self to whom the Alcholic may turn over his life and his will; and fourth, a reawakening in which he tries to practice the twelve principles in his daily affairs and seeks to carry the message to others.

leeting The Drought Emergency

Our drought damaged feed and ood losses have been discouraging. ur immediate possibility for reovery is through green grazing, reen gardens and livestock management. Let's make every possible fort to maintain the livestock on arms and to have the best possible ll vegetable garden.

The suggestions below may be of alue to you:

ield Crops and Pastures:

1. Cut corn that is past making rain. Shock and cure it out well the field or make it into silage silo is available.

2. Harvest cotton as soon as possible. Pick it clean and take it to gin to get the best grades.

Plant food crops on low botlands where there will likely be e moisture.

Prepare a good seedbed by rough plowing and disking.

Use generous applications of er.

Plant extra acreage of the usfall crops—collards, cabbage, ips and kale.

Plant carrots, spinach, lettuce, other less popular greens.

2. Get rid of low-producing cows.

3. Feed calves a milk substitute to release more whole milk for the market.

4. Carefully balanced dairy rations containing purchased concentrates to cut down on protein costs.

5. If feeds must be purchased this winter watch the market for lowest prices.

Hogs:

1. "Stretch" grain by using protein supplement, mineral mixtures, salt, and early planted oats or other grazing crops.

2. Sell market hogs as soon as possible. Don't try to produce extra fat.

3. Do not seel brood sows. Carry them through winter on grazing crops and maintenance ration of grain. Plant oats or wheat to carry the 1953 spring pig crop until early planted corn is ready for hogging off.

Garden Insect And Disease Control

A few pointers on garden insect control materials will help many gardeners produce quality fall winter vegetables.

Auburn-formula, general-use garden dust contains 1 per t rotenone (from Derris or Cube to kill insects, and 5 percent "Z" (zinc ethylene bis dithioate) to control diseases. This formula was worked out and approved by the Experiment Station and Extension Service men of Auburn who work with fruits and vegetables and the pests that attack them.

Several Alabama companies are mixing this dust and it is on sale in hundreds of stores in Alabama. Any county agent can tell the gardener or the merchant where it can be bought. Peach and apple spray mixtures with Auburn approval are also on sale over the state.

" will control more common diseases of vegetables than any other remedy known to science at this time. Rotenone is the best general garden insecticide. When used as a garden dust, neither of these products will injure the plants, nor are they dangerous to people who eat the vegetables—apply the dust as needed and continue to use the veges without let-up.

There are a few insects that re- other treatment. The chief of these are:

1. Blister beetles (resemble lightning bugs. Use Cryolite (sodium fluo-aluminate) or a 10 per cent DDT dust.

2. Cutworms: Use a poison bait or a 10 percent DDT dust. Great care should be used in applying DDT.

3. Green stink bugs: Sabadilla dust, a 20 percent ground seed, is the best remedy.

4. Worms that "bore in": These worms include the squash stalk borer, the squash fruit worm, the melon or cantaluop worm, the cucumber or pickle worm and the tomato fruit worm.

Worms of this group have to be poisoned as they start to bore in. Once they get inside, the poison will not reach them. Rotenone would need to be applied twice a week to give satisfactory protection if the moths that lay the eggs are numerous.

Cryolite, applied carefully once a week, is the best remedy for these worms. There is a mixture of Cryolite and "Zineb" on the Alabama market especially for the plants attacked by these worms.

5. Underground pests: Nematodes (eel worms) and wireworms do serious injury to many plants if they are present in large numbers. Nematodes and wilt appear to "team-up" on some plants so that treating the soil for nematodes prevents wilt as in melons. There are certain liquid soil fumigants that give fair control of these pests.

The Extension Service has a leaflet on soil fumigation.

6. No remedy. There are many plant diseases for which no effective control is known. Constant or excessive rainfall may prevent any insecticide or disease control from giving good results.

Tales About Insects

As familiar as they are bothersome, Argentine ants make many a homemaker's blood pressure rise.

In their constant search for food, these little pest sstop at nothing. Always traveling in a definite line, the ants get into the su bowl, the soap dish, the garbage can—and even into the refrigerator, if the door isn't tight.

In late Summer and Fall, the ants become even more diffi these periods they step up their vasion of homes because of a tage of their natural foods. The tracted by the sweet secretions (honeydew) of aphids, scale insects, and mealy bugs, the ants carry these insects to uninfested plants. While the insects feed on the plants, the ants protect them and live on the honeydew.

The Argentine ant ... mphes, is not a native ... try. It is believed that the pest was brought into New Orleans in a shipment of coffee from Brazil before 1891. Since that time it has spread over the southeastern part of the country and all the way to California.

The persistent ant builds its nest in warm, slightly moist soil under rocks, in compost, and in manure piles. Several queens may be found in one nest. The life cycle takes from two to three months to complete.

In controlling the Argentine ant, chlordane is the best insecticide to use. A dust containing five to 10 per cent of the chemical should be used only on the outside of buildings. It may be applied in a solid bank around the foundation of buildings, around the base of trees and shrubs, near telephone poles, and around rock walls and walks.

Infested homes may be spot-treated with a spray containing two and one-half per cent chlordane. Care must be taken to get the chemical into open packages of food. It cannot be used for spraying all over the house, as an ordinary fly spray is used. If these precautions are taken, chlordane is not dangerous to children or pets.

Water And Shade Are Feed Stretchers

Hogs get hot, too! Did you know that a hog's temperature will go to 105 degrees F., or higher on a hot day?

Heat is hard on hogs. One experiment station found ... hogs do better—gain faster on less feed—when it's no hotter than 75 degrees or colder than 60 degrees.

COWS ON POOR PASTURE MAY NEED EXTRA FEED

Be sure cows on pasture get enough to eat.

This precaution is ... tant now than ever ... most pastures have suffe... the drought.

It is a mistake to pasture d... cows on poor areas until they freshen. Cows won't reach peak production unless they are healthy and strong at calving time.

Suggestions For Poultry Raisers

Good egg prices. There has been heavy marketing of hens throughout the summer, and fewer pullets were started this year than last. This should mean good prices for eggs during the next six months. Put all the good pullets possible in the laying house and follow a management program that will give top production.

Pullets. Now is the time to get pullets ready for winter. Pullets that are already in production should be continued on a good feeding and management program that will stimulate the greatest feed and water intake possible. Pullets that are not yet in production should be brought into the house this month.

Lights. Use lights on pullet flocks this month. Morning ... should be started at 4 a.m. with one 40-watt bulb for each 50 hens. Space lights 10 feet apart and use reflectors on th... lights cause the ... system to b... es released ... ights ... both ...

ing this month. Water troughs should be located close enough to shade so turkeys will go to them at all times during the day. Keep a good growing mash or supplement and grain before birds at all times.

Ventilation. Watch the ventilation on all the poultry houses this month. Open all ventilators on warm afternoons, but close enough ventilators in broiler house at night to keep chicks from getting chills. Remember that the temperature at night will be 65 degrees or below, and the chick needs 95 degree temperature for the first week. Be sure brooders are operating at night for baby chicks.

Spray all poultry houses with one pound of DDT 50 per cent wettable powder in two gallons of water to control mosquitoes and flies and to help control lice.

Crowding. Don't overcrowd broiler houses. Allow at least one square foot per bird. Allow at least 24 four-foot feeders and 8 four-foot automatic waterers per bird.

POULTRY BY-PRODUCT

Truck farmers and others who produce broilers have a valuable asset in the manure from their poultry project. Five tons of poultry manure, with litter, are about equal to one ton of fertilizer analyzing 7½-5-4½. This comes close to Alabama's 6-8-4 grade of commercial fertilize

Give Fall Pigs The Right Start

A wellborn pig is a half-raised pig.

The next day after breeding the sow is when you really begin giving the little pigs the right start, 114 days before you ever see them.

Fattening Out Hogs For Home

There is an old Spanish custom—still followed by thousands of Alabamians—of [illegible] two or three pigs along about this time of year and fattening them out for home use.

Too many of these shoats get nothing but corn and water. No principle of swine feeding is more firmly established than that corn alone is very poor feed for hogs.

When corn is fed alone, 11 or more bushels are needed to make 100 pounds of gain. When it is properly balanced, about half this amount of corn makes the same 100 pounds of pork.

Besides slow and expensive gains, a corn-alone ration may cause an unthrifty appearance, stiffness and lameness, and even deaths. This is especially true when eight to 12-week old pigs are started in pens.

The reason for all this discussion on a corn-alone ration is that corn is very short of protein, minerals, and vitamins—things pigs must have to make good growth and gains. And a vitamin deficiency causes

Graze Producing Beef Cattle Only

Economist keeping close tab on commodity trends are sighting danger ahead for inefficient beef producers.

History has proven that beef numbers and beef prices have fluctuated in the United States in fairly even cycles. Census count, as of January 1, 1952, indicated a record number of 88 million beef cattle on U. S. farms. This excludes the fact that many farmers failed to report total cattle for tax reasons. An additional five million head expansion is predicted for 1952 herd increases. This rapid increase in cattle numbers has been partially brought about through abnormally light annual cattle sales for five successive years.

In addition to the fact that cattle numbers are at an all-time record high, beef's competitors—hog producers and poultry men are becoming more efficient and are proving more serious competitors. Broilers and turkey producers are setting new volume of production records and are doing this at lower net cost per unit. Efficiency records in poultry production show that growers can now produce broilers with one minute's labor and 2.6 pounds of feed per pound of live bird.

factors that can produce a serious break in beef prices. Yet, the enormous buying of a record population can continue to offset the price depressing powers of the above factors. But can you afford to bet on it?

Cattlemen are urged to heed the warning signs that are in the present beef picture and to be ready to prevent a possible break from being disastrous.

A certain man bught two pigs to pen and fatten. One was a good one; one was a runt. He penned the good one, fed it only corn. The runt ran on the outside on a small patch of green oats, picked up a little grain here and there. It wasn't long before the runt was the good one; the good one a runt!

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

Dr. Charles Moore's automobile was found in Dumas, Ark. What? You didn't know it had been stolen? Well, it was taken from his garage last Wednesday night and he missed it first early Thursday morning. A car was found on the streets of Dumas, Ark., the latter part of the week and whe nthe police examined it they found a service station sticker from Gulfpride Service Station Clanton, Alabama, on the door. They called John Studdard at the station here and John told them it was Dr. Moore's car. Saturday they went after the car and brought it back with nothing wrong with it but the radio gone, plus some personal things that belonged to the Doctor.

David Arnold went back to college last week. He is attending Clemson at Clemson, S. C. David has made first team on the football squad and his friends here will be watching Clemson with a new interest this year.

Sue Sullivan is serving coffee at Martin's Good Food Cafe south of town these days. She had been with the Dixie a long time and we had wondered what had become of her Sue invites her friends to come down and dine with them. Marieta Henley bought Martin's Good Food from David H. (Smitty) Smith, and has been operating it very successfully for the past several months.

Sam Beard who has been in the Radio and Television business here for the past two years is now with the Tiffin Furniture Co. Sam has his workshop in the furniture store and wants his friends to know where he is located. He was head T-V repair man for the E. E. Forbes Company at Birmingham for four years and is rated one of the best.

John Ed Scott Graduates From Naval OCS

Mr. John Ed Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Scott, Clanton, Alabama, was a recent graduate of the Navy's Officer Candidate School Newport, Rhode Island.

Mr. Scott enlisted in the Naval Reserve four years ago, while attending the University of Alabama. He attended weekly meetings of the Organized Reserve Unit in Tuscaloosa, and took a cruise of two weeks during the summer. After finishing his college work with a degree in Commerce and Business Administration, he made application for the Officer Candidate School and was commissioned an Ensign upon graduation last month.

Ensign Scott is now serving in the Engineering Department aboard the aircraft carrier USS Cabot. The USS Cabot is with the Atlantic Fleet engaged in training Naval Aviation Cadets for carrier service.

Ensign Scott is the first young man in recent years from Chilton County to finish one of the Navy's schools leading to a commission.

The Navy has several programs for officer training open to college students and college graduates. Applications and information concerning these programs are handled by Lieutenant Commander John M Higgins, USNR, who serves locally as representative of the Commandant, Sixth Naval District.

Politics Are Creeping Into County Fair

YES!!! There is to be a Democratic and Republican contest in Chilton County before the November election. The competing nominees Maynard D. Tingle and Dewey Rockett have good naturedly agreed to enter into a milking contest.

The contest is to be staged in connection with the County Livestock Shows at the Chilton County Fair, Clanton Airport, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Listen to your radio program for further details of this milking contest between the Probates Judge Candidates.

Early reports from both camps—rumor has it—that Judge Candidate Rockett and Judge Candidate Tingle both calculate that the contest is "In the Bag."

Don't miss this item at the Chilton County Fair, September 11th 12th, and 13th.

To The Citizens Of The City Of Clanton

Next Monday, September 15, 1952, you will have an opportunity to participate in the General Municipal election, at which you will select a Mayor and Councilmen to serve you for the next four years and I respectfully ask that the voters take advantage of this privilege to the end that we may have a full expression of your choice.

As stated to you in my announcement for this important office of Mayor, if I am your choice, you will find me cooperating with the City Council, each and every citizen, together with the civic organizations and other interested groups for the further development and improvement of our city.

I am not in favor of increasing licenses or taxes but believe that with judicious management and expenditures, and the cooperation of all concerned, we might, in the near future, improve our fire fighting force and equipment.

There are many street improvements that need to be made and with a reasonable expenditure, the paved streets could be kept free of dirt and dust.

An auditorium, in keeping with our progress, is badly needed, as well as a well developed recreational program for the youth of our city.

No effort should be spared to secure new industries for our city. Our strategic location is such that we should be able to bring to our city new industries. We have ample labor and many raw materials.

We are entitled to good wholesome water and have our city freed of flies and mosquitoes and this, I think, can be done at a nominal cost by better drainage of the two creeks and by spraying. I realize our sewerage disposal system is a problem but is one that should have immediate attention as the health of some of our citizens is likely to be effected.

If I am elected your Mayor I won't say that all of these things can be accomplished but let me assure you that you will always find me working toward the end of their accomplishment.

I appreciate the kind encouragement of my many friends and shall appreciate your vote next Monday

Sincerely yours,
-s- J. B. Atkinson

Census Bureau Seeks Employment Figures Here

The U. S. Census Bureau's Current Population Survey will be conducted here and in 67 other areas of the country during the week of September 15, it was announced today by District Supervisor, Mary L. Griffin.

National figures on employment and unemployment in September will be developed from information collected in the survey, Supervisor Griffin pointed out. The August survey revealed that total employment amounted to 62,354,000 during the week ending August 9 compared with 62,234,000 during the week ending July 12.

Nonagricultural employment advanced to 55,390,000 in August from 54,636,000 in July and was again at a record level. Agricultural employment continued its mid-summer decline, falling to a level of 6,964,000 in August from 7,598,000 in July as farm activity continued to slacken.

Unemployment dropped back to an estimated 1,604,000 in August from 1,942,000 in July. Part of this reduction can be attributed to the end of the steel strike and part was due to summer job seekers who either found work or withdrew from the labor market during this period.

METHODIST REMODELING

Now is the time for all good (and bad) Methodist to go to the aid of their church. The Clanton Methodist Church under the leadership of Rev. Marvin K. Vickers is starting a remodeling campaign and the church leaders have already gone to work getting bids, etc.

Congratulations! The old church needs a "face-lifting." Especially the Sunday School, or Church School Department. May the project create new interest and all work together to see its fulfillment.

A daily newspaper stated this week that everybody in Birmingham turned out to see Isenhower. Judging by the crowds we saw the population of that city sure has dwindled in the past few years.

AN OLD AMERICAN CUSTOM

Every now and then as I drive to work, I have to make a full stop at a crossing near a school. Along with half a dozen or so other motorists, I wait patiently while a couple of youngsters wearing white belts shepherd a flock of still younger small fry across the street.

It makes me smile when I realize how meekly we grown-ups obey these young safety patrolmen—just as meekly as if they were strapping six-footers in blue uniforms. It makes me rather proud, too, as an example of the fundamental law-abiding nature of the average citizen.

It would be fairly easy for us to take advantage of these young crossing guardians. Perhaps we could even assert our grown-up prerogatives and just wave them aside so that we could speed on to our important adult destinations. But we don't do it. And it isn't altogether a fear of "the law" catching up with us that deters us.

Obeying the pint-size safety patrolmen has become an ingrained American custom like waiting your turn at the barber shop. And no wonder! This safety patrol movement has been going on a long time.

On looking into the matter, I find that school safety patrols had their start at least thirty-seven years ago. Perhaps in some places they existed even sooner in some form or another. I learned, also, that today there are more than a half million patrol boys and girls. A vast store of statistics testifies to their effectiveness in promoting safety.—By Ivan L. Wiles, Gen. Mgr., Buick Div., Gen. Motors.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Our three-year-old and five-year-old have always been early risers. No matter what time they go to bed at night, they are up and asking for orange juice along about 5:30 every morning.

Well, the other morning the three-year-old waked up even earlier than usual. I heard him moving around in his bed and carrying on a small conversation with himself, but I pretended not to hear, hoping that he might go back to sleep. Of course, he didn't. He lay looking out the window a few minutes and then he called:

"Mother! It's morning. The sun isn't up yet, but the sky is."

Shoe bags have so many uses it's a wonder they ever get to serve their original purpose and merely keep shoes in a closet.

Our neighbors who do a great deal of traveling in their automobile, have a big shoe bag fastened to the back of the front seat, and they use the compartments to hold road maps, postal cards, small toys for the children, first aid supplies, etc.

And the mother down the street pins a shoe bag to the mattress whenever one of her youngsters is sick. Into the pockets go a variety of things to help keep the patient entertained—scissors, crayons, pencils ,paste, comic books, modeling clay, puzzles, handicraft materials, etc. The child can easily reach whatever he wants to play with, and his bed is kept much neater looking than it would ordinarily be.

Do you ever come home from shopping with your arms so full of packages that you can't manage to open the door? Just when you think the knob is about to turn, packages start slipping, and you have to grab at them. Then you have to start wrestling with the doorknob again.

Our next door neighbor built a shelf beside her back door to hold her bundles while she opens the door. Now such a shelf is high up on our list of things-we'll-build-sometime.

There has been a rash of flying saucer stories recently, but our favorite is the one about the two little girls who were discussing the whirling discs. Said one wise little girl to her friend,

"Of course flying saucers aren't real! They're just like Santa Claus and the Easter rabbit—it's your mother and daddy."

Hint for the household handyman: If you have trouble starting a small nut in a tight spot, break the point from a pencil and twist the nut on the wood. Then use the pencil as a screwdriver until the screw is started.

For supper some night, you might like to try a casserole of shrimp and eggs made like this:

Melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan. Add a package of frozen shrimp, 2 tablespoons minced parsley, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon paprika. Cook over low heat for about five minutes. Slice four hard-cooked eggs. Alternate layers of shrimp and eggs in lightly greased casserole. Pour 1 cup sour cream or a cup of cream sauce over the casserole and sprinkle 3-4 cup grated cheese over the top. Bake in moderate oven until bubbly, about 20 minutes.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

A Child Grows Up

All parents, at one time or another, have probably felt that the rearing of a child through adolescense is one of the most difficult and trying times. Unkind parental discipline during this stage does one thing only; it just helps the parents deeper and deeper into the so-called "dog house."

The pattern of adolescent changes is not fixed. The child reverts back and forth from the open demand of independence to the juvenile need of submission, dependence and craving for affection.

Wise is the parent who understands this vacillation in the child and stands by with tolerance, acceptance, and above all humor. Youngsters will be different, and decisions should be handled on an individual basis. The child must be protected from his own not infrequent impulses to indiscretions and excesses, and efforts must be made to establish a firm and happy parent-child relationship.

Many groups have individually or collectively evolved specific programs for guiding the child through adolescence. Parents, however, are the key people; for it is they who must acquire a deep understanding of the child from infancy on to take him through his adolescent stage. A parent cannot allow all of the care to be turned over to organized groups, nor can he allow the child to rule himself, his home and his parents. The adolescent must be taught responisbility. The tendency to let the adolescent "take over" is to be condemned, if the child is to grow to a mature adult.

Too much laxity in controlling the child's new demand for freedom, too little guidance and understanding, and too little natural insistence for respect can create a barrier never to be overcome between the parent and child.

On the other hand a clear understanding of the emotional change and a well managed program of handling the problems posed by the adolescent can result in a happy family relationship.

Way To Control Weeds With Less Hired Help

Since World War II scientists have developed a number of chemicals that have had a great influence in a changing agriculture.

Emphasis is placed on the importance of these chemicals used to control weeds in crops, especially under present labor shortages.

Experimental work has shown that chemical weed control gives very good results with potatoes, strawberries, and other truck crops.

Therefore, farmers who have experienced a shortage of labor, particularly those with fairly large acreages, might well look into this new method of weed control.

At present prices there is very little difference in the cost of chemical weed control and the conventional methods of cultivation. However, the former method requires considerable less man labor.

Better Duck Hunting For State Sportsmen

Recent reports show a moderate improvement in wild duck flights along the Mississippi flyway this fall.

Auburn received this report from the Fish and Wildlife Service recently. And they point out that while Alabama cannot be classified as a duck hunting state, wildfowl hunters may expect fair to good shooting on the TVA lakes and in the Mobile Delta area. Also, farmers with good marshes in the western part of the state may enjoy good shooting.

Put An End to Bucket Brigades On The Farm

An electric water system in the average farm home makes possible the installation of modern kitchen and bathroom facilities.

It can also eliminate about 49 miles of 'water toting' just to keep the family supplied with drinking water each year.

With the help of an electric clothes washer, running water can reduce the annual time spent in the laundry by 144 hours.

Cotton Fields At Work

Farmers in Alabama can keep their cotton fields at work for them this winter by growing winter legumes that will improve the soil and furnish nitrogen for the crop that follows.

Tips On Home Fire Prevention

It costs much more to have a destructive home fire than it used to.

In a warning to home owners in connection with National Fire Prevention Week, the Tile Council of America reports insurance figures which show that inflation has come close to doubling all property replacement expenses.

Advising greater use of fireproof materials in home construction, and better housekeeping methods to prevent conflagrations, the Council offers these timely suggestions for reducing property losses due to fire:

1. Kitchens are especially susceptible to fire because of cooking operations. There were about 57,000 kitchen blazes in this country last year alone. Therefore, the more extensively fireproof materials such as clay tile are used, particularly around the range, the less likelihood of flames caused by grease.

2. Wise selection of a heating system is important. The plant should be properly installed and insulated and located as far from inflammable materials as possible.

3. Theh garage is a third leading site of home fires. It walls and floor are surfaced in fireproof material such as clay tile which also may be washed free of balze-feeding grease and oil quickly, the garage can be as fireproof as any room in the house.

4. Sensible home planning calls for a basement which discourages collection of rubble that frequently is the source of spontaneous combustion. Good storage facilities are especially important in the basement fo rthis reason.

5. Wiring should be of the best quality and installed by experts, in order to prevent short circuits.

Allow More Time When Cooking Frozen Meats

Unless plenty of time and moderately low heat is allowed for frozen meat, the outside of the piece may be overdone while the inside is still frozen.

This may happen not only to large pieces like roasts but even to steaks which are broiled at high heat.

Remember that unthawed meat needs considerably longer time to cook and always moderately low so that the meat can thaw in the first part of the cooking and cook to the desired tenderness during the last part.

'America" -- Land Of Opportunity

How many realize what does this ntry offer to everybody? How ny thought, who gave them the portunity to become something this world? Who gave you the portunity to become a dentist, or gineer? Your parents? Their ney? No!

What value would their money ve if there were on colleges; no iversities, no good teachers to ntribute in your education, the ucation you dreamed when you re still in high school?

No, it's not money or parents. They play the second role in your success. Your country is the one who gives you a school and a teacher, so that you may have a chance to become a useful American citizen.

Your country, my country, is the one that is going to help us again. Our America, her freedom, will give us what we want.

You were born here, you lived all the years in this country, but you never realized what makes you live happy. You never thought of it, because everything is a routine for you.

You never saw but one standpoint; yours, as a person who lives in America.

You never thought how other people in other countries try to make their living, to educate themselves. You never thought why your nation and its people are superior to others.

What chance would you have if you lived in a poor country in Europe? What opportunities would you have to succeed?

You would be one of these thousands that go to a small school, surrounded by people you will never learn their names; still these people will be in your own class! Your teacher will never call you "George" or "Joe," because he will never learn who is "George" and who is "Joe."

Milk Quality Control

To advance uniformity in milk quality control, and to facilitate the application of safeguards of known efficiency to the production of milk, the Chilton County Board of Health adopted on August 25, 1952, milk regualtions that are applicable to the County as a whole. The regulations adopted are those that have been adopted by the State Board of Health of Alabama, and by many of the other counties in the state.

These regulations which have the full force and effect of law will be applied to the incorporated areas only for the present. This means that no milk, other than milk pro duced at a dairy which meets all Grade A requirements for dairies as defined in the regualtions, may be delivered in any of the incorporated towns of Chilton county. These towns are, Clanton, Jemison, Maplesville and Thorsby. Outside these towns no milk may be labeled Grade A unless it is of such quality.

All persons who are selling milk in the towns of the County, but do not have Grade A dairy permits issued by the Health Department are warned to discontinue sale of milk in the towns at once, and if they desire to continue sale of milk to contact the Health Department and discuss the requirements for Grade A dairies.

Copies of the regulations are on file at the Clerks office of each town and at the Health Department

ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN?

By Rev. William R. Morgan

John 3:16

Once while I was in seminary, I was called one Sunday to supply a vacant congregation and I was asked to teach the Sunday School class of young adults. Since the lesson dealt with this topic, I posed the general question to them, "are you a Christian?" The answers I received were pretty much what I expected and answers that are still heard today. Some are; "I hope so, I am an active church member," and "I do good to my neighbor." All of these answers miss the mark of New Testament Christianity entirely because they minimize the most essential element of Christian life—faith. Therefore in order to understand who a Christian is, it is necessary to dispel these very prevalent but completely erroneous ideas.

First of all, the "I hope so" idea. Actually Christianity is not so vague that salvation is an uncertainty. If you have accepted Jesus as your Savior, then you have heaven's assurance that you are saved. If at times you wander slightly from God and you feel that all of your deeds are not compatible with His teachings, and yet you believe in Him, you are still one of His children. You can say, "yes, I am a Christian. Not a good one perhaps, but I believe in Jesus as my Lord and Master." If we could not say with certainty whether or not we were saved, then the Christian message would be void of meaning.

The second reason often heard is, "I am an active church member." Well and good, but are you a Christian? So many souls are deluded into joining the church with the belief that adding their names to the church rolls automatically assures their eternal salvation. Revivalism and other forms of "saw dust trail" religion have given that erroneous idea. The mere mechanical act of joining the church does not necessarily involve a change of heart toward God. Repentance is a pre requisite to salvation. If you are not a believer in Christ, then joining all of the churches on earth will not save you.

On the other hand we do say that if one has been truly converted, then he will want to join some branch of Christ's church, for it is inconceivable that anyone could be a born again Christian and remain outside the church. In other words, we might say that all Christians are church members, but all church members are not Christians. It all depends on how you feel in your heart toward God.

The final reason that we shall consider is, "I do good to my neighbor." Well and good, but do you believe in Christ? That is the most important question from a Christian standpoint. There are many who are kind and generous but have no use for Christ and His church. This attitude of "works righteousness" which is fostered by certain organizations will never save a single soul. Christianity is not a religion of "do gooders," but rather believers in the atoning work of Jesus Christ on Calvary's cross. Deeds of kindness will surely come from a Christian heart, but remember, such acts are the fruit of faith and not the cause. Without faith it is impossible to please God.

In the light of the above explanations, we can say that a Christian is: a person who has realized that he can do nothing to save himself and that he is a lost and condemned sinner, has repented of his sins and accepted Jesus Christ as his Lord and Saviour, submitted to the sacrament of Holy Baptism, joined the church, attends worship services regularly, partakes of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, and seeks God's guidance in all of his major life's decisions.

So my friends who will read this column, I beseech you in Christ's stead, come humbly and penitently to the Saviour today. Read John 3:16 constantly until it becomes a living reality because that one little verse contains all that you need to know initially about God's plan of salvation. Martin Luther called it "the little Gospel" and said that if all the balance of Scripture should be lost except that one verse, we would still have enough Gospel to take us to heaven." This is a matter of vital importance, do not delay.

If you do not think that you are a Christian, see your pastor and talk the matter over with him. If you are unchurched and have no one to guide you, our church and pastor are always at your service; write to, The Lutheran Church, Thorsby. Alabama and your request will receive prompt attention.

Make your peace with God for time and eternity simply by trusting Him as your personal Saviour. His voice still pleads, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Lutheran Church—

Sunday School 10:00. The Service 11:00. Everybody welcome.

Lutherans are often asked why they practice infant baptism. In answer to these numerous queries we submit the following reasons:

1. Children are undoubtedly included in the command to baptize "all nations." It was the practice in the days of the apostles to baptize whole households (Acts 2:38. 39; 16:15 and 31) There has never been a nation without children, and it is to omuch to assume that all of these and other households mentioned in the New Testament were childless.

2. Infants can believe (Matt. 18:6). True it is not the nature knowledge that the adult would have but still it is that simple, childlike trust that even the most intellectual must have in order to enter into the kingdom of heaven (Matt. 18:3.)

3. Infants also need the grace of God since we are all born sinners. "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." (John 3:6). Baptism is the birth of the Spirit as our Lord told Nicodemus in John 3:5.

4. If infants were to be excluded, the Bible would have an express command against their baptism.

Thorsby P.-T. A. News

Some high school pupil has said, "If it were not for our PTA, I don't know how we would exist." We know of no finer attitude than that toward our PTA. This year, more than ever before, we hope the parents, all of them, will adopt the same attitude and we feel sure that our school will make greater strides toward the goals set up for the year.

The latest project that our PTA has undertaken is providing a music room for our boys and girls. This room is not completed as yet but much has been done in that direction. The things that have been done already are: New paint from floor to ceiling, new drapes added, a floor cover, a new piano purchased and some very generous people have donated some odd pieces of furniture. A picture, and some potted plants. Altogether the room presents a very attractive appearance.

Miss Truman Stuckey, our very efficient piano teacher, is doing a wonderful work with our boys and girls, and we feel that she, as well as our young people is deserving of an attractive and pleasant place to work.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Parrish (Billy and Eula Mae) and their daughter, Mrs. Lilburn Norton (Wilma) left on last Friday morning for their homes, Jefferson City and Knoxville, Tenn., after a week's visit with relatives and friends in Chilton County.

There's many a young man today who yearns for the good old days when all he could expect was a lickin' when he brought home a bad report card. Nowadays he gets drafted.

We are glad to report good attendance for church Sunday. We were only 7 short of a perfect attendance We also had some visitors which we would like to invite back especially the people from Shiloh who came Sunday night.

The regular monthly meeting of the W. M. U. was held at the church last Wednesday afternoon with 10 members present. May we urge all to be more concerned about our work and our duty toward God and the church and to do what we can to help carry the gosped to those who do not know Christ and who need Him so badly.

There are some from our community who are not able to go to church because of sickness. We ask all to pray for them that their bodies might be healed and they can come to church.

Remember our services each Sunday and Sunday night. Come and bring someone with you so that we might work together and love one another. If you are absent then we miss you and we need you.

Tip On Retaining High Egg Quality

Jarring eggs is one way of lowering their quality, according to Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservation specialist.

She advises homemakers to choose a location in the refrigerator where eggs will get as little jarring as possible.

Cows should be dry at least six to eight weeks before calving.

Soil Conditioners

The Department of Agriculture recommends use of new soil conditioners only on an experimental basis.

Sacred Harp Convention

The Sacred Harp Singing Convention will meet at Pate's Chapel Baptist Church West of Thorsby the third Sunday in September. All singers of sacred music have a special invitation to come and spend the day.

Chemical Weed Control

At present prices there is very little difference in the cost of chemical weed control and the conventional methods of cultivation. However, the former method requires considerable less man labor.

Today radio entertains, informs and sells people wherever they go.

In fact, the average American spends more time with radio than with magazines, TV, and newspapers combined.

People listen to radios in cars, kitchens, yachts, bedrooms, living rooms, trains, canoes, bars, terraces, hotels, restaurants, beaches, deserts, mountain-tops, airplanes.

Right now there are 105,300,000 radio sets in the country. Virtually every home is a radio home—and over half of them have two or more sets.

In automobiles alone, there are 27,424,500 radios. At any given moment, over one-third of the radio-equipped cars on the road have their sets in use.

And last year Americans bought 12,775,000 new radio sets!

Radio reaches its vast audience at far lower cost than any other medium—whether by nation-wide networks or local stations.

No doubt about it:

The smartest buys in all advertising are being made in radio. And they're being made right now.

ALABAMA HIGHLIGHTS

Despite slavery, there were 2,690 free Negroes in Alabama in 1860. Most of these gravitated to the towns and engaged themselves to do house work and various kinds of outdoor work.

According to the report of the State Superintendent of Education in 1858, the last before the War Between the States, the average Alabama school term was six and a half months. However, several counties had nine months terms. In some townships the sixteenth section funds were sufficient to keep the schools going all year. The school population was reported at 180,160, and the enrollment was 98,274.

Toward the end of the War Between the States, depreciation, speculation, and scarcity caused Alabama prices to soar until flour was sold for $250 to $300 a barrel, corn, $12 to $13 per bushel; calico, $12 to $15 per yard; boots, $125 to $175 per pair; coffee $20 to $70 per pound; salt, $150 a sack; a good horse $1,200 to $2,500, and quinine for $150 per ounce.

Many editors went to war and more than a fourth of the newspapers in Alabama were suspended. The circulation of the other papers decreased, because a great majority of the active reading men were in the army and the people were too poor to pay for the newspapers. Sometimes a single paper would suffice for a whole community. The reading matter consisted largely of brief summaries of military operations, usually favorable to the Confederates; political events of statutes; and instructions for the guidance of President Davis and the commanding officers.

During the war years all Alabama colleges except the University Spring Hill, Judson, and Woman's College (at Tuskegee) had to close their doors and only children were enrolled in these at the end of the war. Young men were in the army and young women engaged in household work. Practically all of the academic and private schools were wiped out and the public schools were suspended in communities menaced by the enemy and the outlaws.

Alabama gave liberally of its men and means and its soldiers won renown in the War Between the States, in leading battles on both fronts. Generals Wheeler, Forrest, and Longstreet won their fame with Alabama troops. To the artillery the State gave the "gallant Pelham," the young genius who words of warmest praise from General Lee; to the navy, Commander Raphael Semmes, one of the boldest seamen of all times; and to the Red Cross, Mrs. Juliet Opie Hopkins, known as the "Florence Nightingale of the Confederacy." William L. Yancey was sent by President Davis on a special mission to England to procure recognition for the Confederacy.

JEMISON PANTHERS PLAY VERBENA HIGH AT JEMISON

Tomorrow night (Friday September 12th) at 7:30 two local county teams tangle in what should be a super thrill packed gridiron drama when Coach Porch brings his Verbena football squad to Jemison to lock horns with coach Cobb's eleven.

A large measure of friendly rivalry exists between these two teams and both will be out to pin back the ears of the other. Both Coach Cobb and Porch have been giving their football candidates intensive grilling the past three weeks in preparation for this opening encounter.

The Jemison boys have been roped in the past two seasons by the Verbena team, but with 41 candidates out for seasoning this year, the spirit to change this course prevails very strongly among the J. H. S. gridders.

The 23 following boys have been going throught some gruelling training in order to place this one on the credit side of the ledger for Jemison High: Douglas Cleckler, Glenn Marcus, Harry Collins, J. W. Langston, Don Price, John Cannady. Bobby Jones, Tommy Martin, Earl Ellison, Wayne Guin, Douglas Fortner, Jerry Conway, Robert Hilyer, Virgil Smith, Hoyt Martin, Johnny Ogburn, Rudy Langston, Johnny Gentry, Joe Douglas Robinson Ronnie Shaw, Pete Gothard, Bobby Davenport, and Robert Hilyer.

Gone through graduation are such dependable stalwarts as Charles Jones, Speedy Martin, Harold Crowson, Kent Lowery, and Floyd Guy but moving up are a number of youngsters with enough grit to choke a jungle full of elephants.

These young gridders mixed in with the very few veterans left from last year's team will form the neucli of Jemison's football aggregation this season.

Interest is as keen as a bull-whip and sharp as a Mountaineer's razor, so lay your worries aside and come on out and give your support to your school's recreational and athletic program. These J. H. S. boys are going to be out there to win, they need your encouragement, your presence, your support; with it, they will endeavor to work harder for your enjoyment.

Verbena has not lost a game the past two seasons, naturally our team is geared up to crack this enviable record set up by Coach Porch's team. This is a double-barreled order and we can expect tough opposition, but most all records are broken sooner or later, so we'll be out shooting for this honor.

Don't forget, tomorrow night, J. H. S. versus Verbena at Jemison. It's gonna' be a "Dipsy-di-doo-diddle."

Don't miss it!

Kick-off at 7:30 sharp.

Alabama Highlights

On the outskirts of Florence is the Old Bridge spanning the Tennessee River. As early as 1840, a bridge was built at this spot but it was destroyed by a storm. Another structure, laid on the same supports, was burned by Federal troops during the War Between the States. The old bridge was constructed in 1870 but it was so narrow that traffic was handicapped. The present route crosses the river on a New Bridge completed in 1939, just downstream from the old one. It is one of the largest highway bridges in Alabama with a center span of 420 feet; nearly 4,000 tons of steel were used in the construction. From the bridge Wilson Dam may be seen. It is the only bridge in Alabama which had a pedestrian lane at a lower level than the automobile lanes and in the center of the bridge, between the two lanes of traffic.

Near Verbena on a footpath along Chestnut Creek is the Site of Sidney Lanier's Camp. Here Sidney Lanier, the Georgia poet, lived in a tent in the grove of pine trees for almost a year, seeking to regain his health.

Near Sylacauga is Weogufka State Park. The 803-acre park includes the crest of Weogufka Mountain, highest peak in central Alabama and locally known as Flag Mountain. During the War Between the States it served as a relay station in the signaling line over which messages were transmitted A popular recreation center, the park has an observation tower and a foot trail through the gorge of Weogufka.

Wet Paint May Kill Calf

When doing painting around the farm, don't forget that calves as well as older cattle like to lick freshly painted surfaces. They will also lick what is left in the bottom of discarded paint containers. And this vice is responsible for many fatal cases of lead poisoning every year. The only way it can be stopped is to keep animals out of reach of lead paint.

Saftey Devices

All safety devices, such as slip clutches, spring release hitches, cushion springs, spring trips friction brakes, and pin brakes, are provided on farm machinery to guard against breakage, bending, and other damage.

Meeting Set For State OPS Officers

Alabama grocerymen are scheduled to meet soon with representatives of the Office of Price Stabilization to discuss the community food pricing program that will go in effect this fall.

"All food retailers, wholesalers and chain warehouse heads are urged to attend one of the meetings to discuss this important proposed food pricing system," Charles G. Dobbins, OPS state director said today.

"OPS officials will be present to explain the program and answer questions."

Meetings will be held as follows:

Birmingham, Friday, September 12, 11:00 a.m., Past President's Room, Second Floor, Chamber of Commerce Building.

Montgomery, Monday, September 15, 11:00 a.m., City Court Room City Hall.

Mobile, Wednesady, September 17, 3:00 p.m., Assembly Room, Chamber of Commerce Building.

Director Dobbins said that under the new system retail grocers will be required to display ceiling price posters prominently in their stores.

"The community food pricing system proved popular with both housewives and grocers during World War II," Dobbins said

When prices are posted on the wall housewives can determine at a glance the correct ceiling price of a food item Most grocers like the system because OPS saves them a considerable amount of work by figuring ceiling prices for them."

About 400 major food items will be shown on each price poster. The first posters probably will be displayed about October 1

Homemakers Set Own Standards Of Cleaning

Every housekeeper has her own standards of cleanliness. When her home falls below these standards, she is upset.

The pressure of other jobs may make it impossible for her to keep her home as clean as she would like.

When this is the case, usually a definite but flexible plan will help. Remember that a thin layer of dirt is easily and quickly removed, but an accumulation is hard to remove because it cakes and requires extra time and equipment for cleaning.

Enlist the cooperation of all family members. A cheerful attitude on the part of the housekeeper makes it easier to get other family members to help. Give children responsibilities suited to their ages. Even a small child can hang up his clothes if low hooks are provided.

Objectors Being Assigned To Civilian Work

The Selective Service System in Alabama has started the program of assignment to civilian work of young men who are classified as conscientious objectors.

Colone lJ. T. Johnson, Jr., Acting State Director of Selective Service, announced that the first assignments were made to The Alabama State Hospitals in Tuscaloosa on September 2. Johnson says that this program was established by the Universal Military Training and Service Act. This Act provides that young men who are classified in 1-0 by reason of religious background making them conscientiously opposed to participation in the armed forces, shall be ordered to perform appropriate civilian work for a period of two years.

Colonel Johnson added that civilian work to which conscientious objectors are assigned must conribute to the National health, safety or interest. They are paid at a sacrificial rate of pay.

The determination of eligibility for 1-O classification is made by th vearious Selective Service Local Boards throughout the State. In order to classify properly, Local Boards thoroughly investigate the background of the individual and in some instances, have the benefit of FBI investigation reports.

The first five (5) men ordered for work assignments reported to Bryce Hospital Tuesday and they are to perform duties as attendants and male nurses. They come from various counties as follows: Crenshaw County, James A. Duncan; DeKalb County, J. D. Graves; Montgomery County, William E. Kearley; Jefferson County, Norman H. Ray and Oscar Garrett. These me nare all unedr twenty-six years of age and are the oldest who are classified as conscientious objectors in Alabama.

Million And Half Visit State Parks

State Parks Chief James L. Segrest says a million and a half sightseers are expected to have visited Alabama state parks and lakes by the end of the fiscal year, Oct. 1.

Segrest, head of the State Parks Division of the Alabama Conservation Department, says this will top the 1950-51 figure by almost 100,000.

Through Aug. 17, Segrest pointed out, 1,393,919 had already enjoyed Alabama's natural beauty in state playgrounds, ranging from the Gulf on the south to the mountains along the northern boundary.

Segrest predicted last year's 1,401,302 would be topped soon after Labor Day. Segrest said 214,146 sightseers and fishermen visited the eight public lakes through Aug. 17. Attendance through that date at other major state parks included: Joe Wheeler, 137,385; Monte Sano, 130,086; Chewacla, 121,947; Desoto. 108,485; Cheaha, 76,850; Oak Mountain, 47,858.

Fort Morgan led minor parks with 110,300 sightseers. Chickasaw drew 22,140; Chattahoochee 20,495, and Valley Creek, 9,150.

Counties participating with number of boys and girls enrolled in the program are Calhoun, 14; Chilton 8; DeKalb, 6; Elmore, 19; Etowah, 7; Lee, 16; Marion, 12; Marshall, 5; Pickens, 5; Randolph, 12; St. Clair, 6; Shelby, 5; Tallapoosa, 55; and Winston, 21.

State Poultrymen Reduce Pullorum

Alabama poultry flock owners, through participation in the National Poultry Improvement Plan, have made remarkable progress in reducing pullorum disease in poultry flocks.

Over 484,000 hens were blood tested in hatchery supply flocks thruout the state last year. Only 4.6 birds in each 10,000 tested reacted to pullorum disease. Ten years ago—in the 1942-43 season—195,588 birds were blood tested and 326 reactors were found in each 10,000

It is now illegal to sell chicks in Alabama except those from flocks tested and free of pullorum disease. And since standards set for Alabama hatcherymen are higher than those in many other states, most experienced poultrymen buy no chicks outside of the state except high quality breeding stock from well-known reputable concerns.

10 a.m.—District dairy show at the Armory.

1 p.m.—Legion barbecue in DeBardeleben Park, 3rd Ave. at 17th St.: open to the public.

"Without our usual gala parade, King Corn, and Queen Bess, this year's festival won't be as colorful and spectacular as the one in 1951," explained Dr. J. W. Letson, general festival chairman, "but the festival executive committee sincerely believes that this will be the finest and most worthwhile program of events ever presented in this area."

Co-chairmen this year are Guy White of Bessemer and Clinton H. Johns of Birmingham. Mr. Johns, county agent for Jefferson County, is also superintendent of the dairy show.

The State Department of Agriculture and Industries is co-sponsor of the dairy show.

There is quite a bit of speculation by Bessemer residents as to who will be "Mr. Howdy" and "Mrs. Howdy." These honors, in recognition of "genuine cordiailty and friendliness to all visitors to Bessemer," are new in the festival. The persons to be so honored have been chosen by the board of directors of the Bessemer Chamber of Commerce, but their identities are being kept secret.

Both "Mr. Howdy" and "Mrs. Howdy" will be présented at the beginning of the "Talent Show."

The winner of the "Dairy Maid" contest will be presented then also, as will the other contestants for that title.

Georgiana, Alabama, was named for a little girl, Anna, the daughter of a Baptist minister, Pitt S. Milner, who came there from Georgia soon after 1824, and also in honor of the state from which they came. John Shepherd first settled there in 1824.

Motorists Urged To Watch Markers

Motorists shouldn't depend altogether on no-passing marker along Alabama highways to tell them when they can pass other cars, this is the warning of State Highway Director W. G. Pruett.

Says Pruett, the double-marked lanes are intended as a safety measure and can't be expected to meet all traffic situations than can develop. "In no way are they intended to relieve the driver of the responsibility of determining when it is safe to pass," Pruett added.

"Some people seem to think that regardless of other conditions as long as there is no double-marking, it is safe to pass. The Highway Department can't assume the responsibility of the man at the wheel.

"When there is no line on your side it simply means that you have a minimum sight distance of 800 feet. Utmost caution must always be exercised in passing regardless of markings," he said.

Money Borrowed For State Schools

State Finance Director D. W Hodo says preliminary arrangements have been completed for the state to borrow $9,000,000 to operate the public schools until payments of designated taxes have been made.

Hodo said the money will be borrowed from private lending agencies by the Alabama Public School Corporation. This will be the third time in the last three years the state has had to borrow from private agencies for operation of the public schools, Hodo said.

Two years ago $8,000,000 was borrowed, and a year ago the corporation got $12,000,000, the last of which will not be repaid until next month. In previous years before it had to go to the private lending agencies the state borrowed the money from a surplus in the Special Education Trust Fund.

But when the 1949 legislature appropriated that money for operating expenses it no longer is available to use as a backlog to run the schools until the taxes earmarked for education could begin pouring their revenue into the treasury.

The funds are being borrowed from a group of New York and Alabama banks at a 1 1-2 per cent interest rate, the same as now being paid on the $12,000,000 loan.

Budget Adopted For Girls School

Chalkville, Ala.—Trustees for the State Training School for Girls have adopted a 1952-53 budget of $108,446.15.

The board voted a general $10 increase for employes starting Oct. 1st.

Limestone County was the first of Alabama's counties to be invaded by Union troops during the War Between the States; and Athens, as the county seat, was the first important tow nto be occupied in 1862.

Grow Enough Feed For Milking Herd

Dairymen who go to the extra effort of providing ample winter grazing will be doing the best thing they can do to feed their milking herds.

For example, a milk cow that gets 70 pounds of green grazing a day will get three pounds of digestible protein. And it requires only 1.31 pounds of digestible protein to supply body needs and produce 20 pounds of four per cent milk a day.

With last summer's drouth in mind, careful planning for ample winter crops along with sound grain feeding practices and judicious culling should make it possible for all Alabama dairymen to stay in business.

From Rags To Rhythm

Lack of funds was the first obstacle encountered by members of Ironwood Unit No. 5, Ironwood, Michigan, enthusiastic to form a chorus, so before they started singing they went into the rag business. They searched their own and friends'attics and basements for old rags and clothing. After accumulating a considerable amount of this seemingly worthless material, they laundered it, weighed it and bagged it. Then, with surprising success, they sold the bags by the pound to Ironwood business firms an dgarages who were more than glad to have the rags for cleaning purposes. Enough money was realized from the venture, led by Mrs. George Ahonen, to purchase the necessary music to start them on their musical career and to prove that from rags can come rhythm. The Ironwood Unit now has a harmonious and well balanced chorus of forty members.

Drouth-Hit Farmers Attempt Come Back

The problem uppermost in the minds of many farmers hard hit by last summer's drouth is how they can best overcome their loss and keep as much produce going to market as possible.

Steps that may solve the problem include cutting corn for forage where no grain developed and saving all food and feed crops produced, even though size or quality may not be as good as usual.

Farmers are urged to get back into production as quickly as possible. This means planting extra acreages of fall and winter crops, such as collards, cabbage, turnips, kale, carrots, spinach, lettuce, and onions. Most farmers will want to seed and fertilize more fall and winter grazing crops. In other words, every effort possible should be made to keep production and sale of farm products as near normal as possible.

Smart Teen-Agers Need A Good Diet

American teen-agers, noted for their interest in science, seem generally to have overlooked a subject that could be most valuable to them. It's nutirtion.

Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, says that by the time modern children reach their teens, they are making many of their own decisions, incluidng what to eat. There-fore, they need to take an interest in "scientific eating," in what food can do for them and especially in the foods they require at this age of rapid growth and development.

"Yet," says the specialist, "a review of dietary studies of recent years indicates that quite the contrary is true. Teen-agers generally tend to have poorer diets than younger children, and adolescent girls fare worse than boys."

Miss Hulsey adds that among 30,000 school children in one study, those aged 12 to 17 years came out shorter on milk, green and yellow vegetables, and citrus fruit than younger children. Again in studies of children in Tennessee, New York, and Maryland, older children were less likely to get their quotas of calcium and vitamins A and C than those under n[illegible] years of age.

Rip Says You'll Save Up to $50!

Rip Robinson, our town's tractor expert, says you might already know about them, but he suggests these tips on saving tractor fuel.

Says Rip, "The right carburetor setting alone can save you 100 gallons of fuel a year. Just make sure the stop-screw is set right. Don't let your engine idle unnecessarily, either. Check your air cleaner every day or so.

"When you can," advises Rip, "pull two implements together—like a disc and a soil-packer. If you're cultivating or planting, shift to the highest gear that will pull the load. This could save you up to 5 gallons a working day!"

From where I sit, using your head a bit — a little precaution — can make a big difference in just about any kind of an undertaking. Like our beer retailers who voluntarily co-operate with the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. They keep their places "running right" — knowing they'll go a lot farther — as businessmen of the community.

Better farming, new methods and machines, better livestock, and improved marketing are helping bring about a new era of progress and prosperity in Dixie.

Rural telephones (they tripled in number since World War II in the area served by Southern Bell) are bringing a big lift to farm work ana farm living. During the first eight months of this year, we installed more than 92,000 rural telephones.

We'll keep on putting them in as fast as we can—because we know how much they mean to prosperity on the farm and in town . . . and to a strong, well-fed America. More farm telephones also mean more valuable telephone service for everyone.

SOIL CONSERVATION PAYS

Farm planning to include livestock production, soil protection and wate rmanagement are serious problems that many farmers are pondering. The continuously dwindling farm labor supply is forcing many farm operators to convert to sod crops and livestock.

Olin Fields and his aide, Elvin Wright, have an example of a farm converted from row crops to sod farming at the County Fair. Yes presented in miniature can be seen two complete farms—a "before and after" conservation farm.

Take time while visiting the Chilton County Fair to study a few of the suggestions depicted in the attractive booth presented by your Soil Conservation technicians.

"EASY DOES IT"
BY..... HELEN HALE

START MAKING your presents at home so that you'll have enough for holiday giving. Here are things from the kitchen and the sewing room which will receive a warm and hearty welcome!

Make a half apron in a pretty style with enough material for a wide hem, two or three inches. Fold this over to the right side. Tack at the sides, and then sew down six or eight times to form pockets. Fill the pockets with napkins the hostess can pass out while entertaining.

Buy or make some small hand towels out of terry cloth or Turkish toweling. Personalize them with the last name of the receiver, and machine or hand-stitch the name in script, in a contrasting color.

Giving presents for several children? Make some Christmas stockings out of red felt. Cut letters to form the child's name from white felt and stitch on the stocking. Decorate with small Christmas balls and sequins.

Do you like to paint? Make or buy plastic bibs for youngsters or buy small toothbrushes with matching plastic cups and paint their names on these.

Make plum puddings in large pottery bowls or in individual custard cups. Let them mellow for a time, then wrap gaily in celophane and ribbons for gifts.

Peanut brittle and hard candies such as taffy and caramel may be made in advance. Properly wrapped in tins and placed between waxed paper or aluminum foil, they will keep without getting sticky.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Cream Caramels

Nothing had been learned by the next morning. But the first mail delivery brought a letter, written in Robert Yancey's hand, stating that he had been kidnapped. His abductors were demanding $25,000 ransom money. The money was to be delivered as per the enclosed typewritten instructions.

Mrs. Yancey collapsed. When she returned to consciousness the police were there. She begged them not to interfere until the ransom had been paid and her husband safe in his own home.

Inspector Terry Talmage, in charge of the case, acceded to her request. Mrs. Talmage summoned neighbors and asked their help. Willingly the money was subscribed. A bank provided the currency in denominations as set forth in the ransom note. The package was dispatched by a messenger to the place designated. Then for nearly 24 hours the police marked time and Mrs. Yancey sat by her telephone.

On the morning of Jan. 15 Robert Yancey returned home. He looked haggard and worn. There was a stubble of beard on his chin. His eyes were bloodshot, and his clothes a bit worse for wear. Otherwise he was unharmed.

That night Inspector Talmage and two assistants heard the abducted man's story.

"Tell us exactly what happened from the moment you left the house last Thursday, Mr. Yancey," Inspector Talmage urged.

"Nothing happened until I quit the train at Buffalo. There was a cabman there, who, now that I think of it, was a bit insistent in soliciting my trade. He drove me through the city and out the North End. I was busy studying some papers so did not discover the mistake in destination at once. When I reminded the driver that we were far from where I wished to go he pulled in at the curb.

"A man stepped into the cab. Before I knew what was up he had produced a gun and pressed it against my ribs, directing me to keep quiet and no harm would befall me.

"We then drove through a maze of streets and into a back alley. I was told to get out and descend a pair of steps. I did so, entering a small room, dimly lighted. Instantly I was fallen upon, bound, gagged and blindfolded. Then I was led out of the room, up some stairs and presumably back to the cab.

We drove for hours, I fancied we had reached the country. Eventually the cab stopped. I was forced to walk for some distance. Then suddenly my blindfold was removed and I found myself in what appeared to be a farm house kitchen. There were a half dozen rough looking men sitting about. One, a burly chap with a mustache, explained that I had been kidnapped. I was told that a ransom note had been prepared and I was to copy it verbatim, under penalty of death.

"I remonstrated with them and one of them struck me. Seeing how useless it was, I wrote the note as directed. Then I was searched. Everything was taken from my pockets, including my watch which I prize greatly. These things were placed in a box and the box locked in a cupboard.

"I stayed in that kitchen until this morning, when two men came in, explained that the ransom had been paid, blindfolded me again and led me outside. After a long drive I was led into a building, my bonds loosened, and left alone.

"It was some time before I could get free of the remaining knots. When I finally did so and removed the blindfold I found myself in a dark room. There was no sound but the ticking of my watch. I groped around, found the box which held my personal effects, opened it, struck a match from the case which was there, saw a door and went out. After a half hour of walking I discovered myself to be within a few miles of my own home."

Inspector Talmage finished jotting down notes in his book, pocketed it and rose. "Wait here," he directed one of his assistants, and beckoned to the other one to follow him outside.

"Clancy," he said, when the two were alone, "the whole thing's cockeyed. For once the dastardly crime of kidnaping has been imposed upon. Now you follow out these instructions and report to me here as soon as you can."

Clancy departed. Two hours later he was back. Talmage heard his story, then went in to see Yancey.

"Mr. Yancey, a policeman has to be smarter than a criminal else he wouldn't get any place. Maybe that's why I detected the flaw in your fine story. I've checked and discovered you were near financial ruin and needed money. I've found you didn't have any real business in Buffalo at all. And I've examined your watch and discovered it to be of standard make. No standard-make watch, Mr. Yancey, will run 60 hours without being wound, as apparently yours must have, if your story is true. Which is why, Mr. Yancey, you're in a spot."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When measuring syrup, honey, molasses, etc., if you grease the measuring cup first, the ingredients will not stick to the cup.

To protect the covers of your recipe books, brush over them with thin, clear shellac and you will have a waterproof, grease-proof surface that can be cleaned from time to time with a damp cloth.

What Step Next?

Feed And The Farmer

EACH day during the long, dry summer farmers continued to look to the skies for relief from one of the worst droughts that ever hit Alabama. As June gave way to July, the temperature continued to climb and soil moisture kept on dropping.

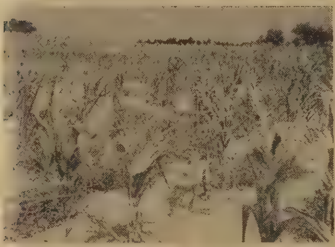
The early corn crop was soon chalked off as a near failure, only hope for general rains that might save the late crop remained. Pastures became dry enough to burn off as the days without relief turned into weeks without rain.

By early August fields of late corn were a twisted stubble of stalks that would hardly yield as much grain as it took to plant them. The hay crop was short and even cotton, the hot-weather crop, was showing signs of weakening under the hot, dry onslaught.

As all producers know, the situation is serious to the point of disaster. Instead of planning to fatten out cattle and hogs, farmers are now wondering how they can keep them alive through the winter.

No one can guarantee that the situation won't get worse before it begins to get better, but there are a number of steps that farmers can take to help them squeeze through the critical months that lie ahead.

For a list of measures that will help solve your feed needs, turn to page 5. Agronomists and livestock specialists of the API Extension Service have prepared in this article a series of suggestions, each designed to increase the grain and grazing supply until the early corn crop matures next summer.



WITHERED FEED CROP—Scattered about over every Alabama county are dozens of fields of withered, stunted, and twisted corn like this field which was photographed near Montgomery. The use of good seed and plenty of fertilizer were of no avail when expected rains failed to materialize. The producer who planted this field doesn't expect to get a single good ear of corn from this tassle blasted field.

Ready For The Dairy Show

As the month of September rolls around, several hundred Alabama farm boys and girls are busy putting the finishing touches on the prize dairy cattle they will be leading into the show ring during the next five weeks. For some of these future dairymen, this will be a new experience—one that will add much to their knowledge of quality dairy cattle. They will be competing against each other in junior shows. And those that come out on top will be going after more ribbons in the open shows, where they will be competing with adult dairymen.

More than 40 county shows have already been scheduled and these will be followed by district shows in Gadsden, Decatur, Fayette, Dadeville, Bessemer, Mobile, Montgomery, and Demopolis. Climaxing the dairy show season will be the state show to be held during the State Fair in Birmingham, Sept. 29-Oct. 4.

The 12-year-old showman pictured here is Kathryn Morton of Cropwell. Kathryn is a veteran of three show seasons and is counting on bringing home some blue ribbons with the pair of Guernsey heifers she is grooming. She has entered most of her herd of six Guernseys in the St. Clair County show and plans to carry some of them to the Bessemer show. Kathryn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Morton.

Exhibits At State Fair

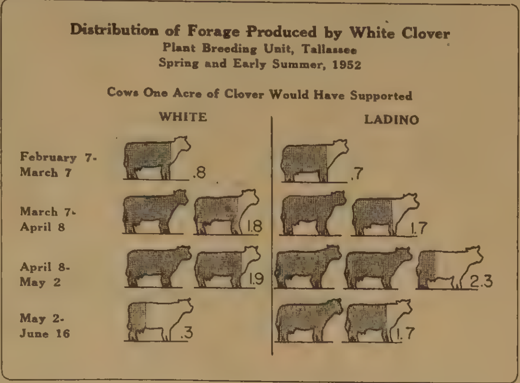
ALABAMA 4-H work will be on exhibit at the State Fair in Birmingham, Sept. 29-Oct. 4.

County groups who will have exhibits at the fair include Colbert, Crenshaw, Blount, Calhoun, Jackson, Lee, Montgomery, Chilton, Lauderdale, Pike, Sumter, and Talladega. Among the projects to be demonstrated in exhibit form are farm safety, hog production, forestry, dairying, and 4-H Club camp activities.

Judges for the exhibits will be M. H. Lane, USDA field man, Washington, D. C.; Romaine Smith, Progressive Farmer's young folks editor, Birmingham, and Miss Elizabeth Fox, of the Business and Professional Women's Club, Birmingham.

In addition to the 4-H Club displays, specialists of the API Extension Service will have exhibits on food preservation, family life, home furnishings, stretching the food dollar, planned storage, practical food for good nutrition, home sewing, 4-H Club tractor maintenance, and State-wide 4-H Club work.

What Kind Of White Clover Will You Plant?



IF you are having trouble making up your mind what type of white clover to plant this fall, the comparison of Ladino production with that of intermediate white such as Louisiana presented here should prove helpful in making the decision.

This pictograph is based on yields obtained by clipping plots of the different white clovers on the API Agricultural Experiment Station's Plant Breeding Unit at Tallassee. The plots were planted in Sept., 1951. One ton of lime and 1,000 pounds of 0-16-8 fertilizer per acre were applied before planting. In preparing the graph, a USDA consumption rate of 150 pounds of green clover per day per mature cow was used. It was assumed that forage harvested on March 7 was produced during the preceding 30 days.

Yields presented here indicate that both intermediate white and Ladino clover produce about equal amounts of forage up until the time that white clover is in full flower. At this time, and during later periods, Ladino out yields the intermediate white clovers.

The intermediate whites out yield Ladino in seed production. Ladino produces so few seed that a volunteer crop from seed, if the parent plants are killed by summer drouth, is doubtful. The percentage of plants living through the summer, however, is higher for Ladino than for the intermediate whites. This results in earlier fall growth of Ladino and also tends to compensate for the low seed production.

It is believed that Ladino should be planted on good pasture soils. On such soils white clover behaves as a perennial and Ladino will produce more forage than the intermediate whites. On dry soils of lower fertility it is believed that an intermediate white such as Louisiana white should be planted since under these conditions white clover usually behaves as a reseeding annual.

Patience And Hard Work Make Old Furniture Look Like New

A long winter of odd-hour work plus a good sprinkling of work during the spring and summer has paid off for Mrs. P. H. McCorkle of Springville.

This St. Clair County homemaker has been concentrating her efforts on the job of remodeling a massive, antique bedroom suite. And she has succeeded in turning the dull, almost black oak furniture into a gleaming set of highly finished pieces.

Mrs. McCorkle's recipe for reworking the furniture included a lot of scrubbing and scraping with paint remover to get off the accumulation of paint and grime which collected in the finely grooved, carved portions of the bed, dresser, and chair. After working her way down to the wood she rubbed the furniture down with alcohol. Then came successive coats of filler, stain, shellac, and three coats of varnish. Between each treatment she sanded every crack, crevice, and smooth surface.

Now that she has the antique pieces looking like new, the Springville home demonstration club member is planning to go a step further and redesign some of the furniture. She plans to take the top portion of the dresser, a massive mirror surrounded by carved woodwork, and make it into the back of a two-seated couch. Over-hanging, mirrored cabinets which flank each side of the central mirror will be made into a pair of bedside tables. Then Mrs. McCorkle plans to hang the remaining mirror over the dresser. This way she will have four pieces of furniture, all made from parts of the dresser, and to top it off—she will still have the dresser.

COUNTY AGENTS ELECT—At their annual meeting, held last month in Decatur, members of the Alabama Association of County Agricultural Agents elected, left to right, J. E. Morriss, Wetumpka, president; C. P. Granade, Greenville, vice-president; Beverly Holstun, Tuscaloosa, secretary-treasurer; Julian Young, Centre, director; R. E. Martin, Andalusia, director, and W. B. Story, Livingston, director. A fourth director, not in this picture, is J. C. Bullington, Jasper. The retiring president is L. T. Wagnon, Hartselle, who had charge of the three-day session.

Fence posts that were cut and open stacked early this spring should be ready for treatment now. The cold-soaking method is the most satisfactory and easiest method for treating fence posts on the farm. A recommended oil base preservative should be used.

Each year we still lose calves in Alabama from blackleg and malignant edema. These two diseases are spreading to new areas in the state each year. A loss from one of these diseases is usually caused from carelessness. All calves and yearlings that are being carried over should be given a treatment which will immunize them against both of these diseases.

Along the Way

with P. O. DAVIS

DIRECTOR, API EXTENSION SERVICE

THIS has been the toughest summer within my memory. It was both dry and hot, day after day and week after week.

This combination of heat and drouth was exceedingly destructive to all crops in season. As I traveled over Alabama and observed farms I was distressed and grieved. Early in June I observed prospects for big yields of cotton, corn, and peanuts. Pastures then were thriving and promising.

But late June and July changed that promising situation into gloom and loss. The corn yields, for example, will be only a minor portion of the early June prospects. Cotton may do a little better, but it, too, took a tragic beating. As this is being written the peanut outlook is very uncertain.

The biggest heartache to me stems from the fact that farmers had done a fine job of preparing soil, fertilizing, planting, and cultivating. With normal weather they would have harvested big yields of cotton, corn, and peanuts.

As I think about it we get around to one all-important fact. It is that rains simply did not come and there was excessive heat.

A farmer may wonder if he would have made more corn if he had planted at another time. The answer is no in most of Alabama because there was no good time to plant corn this year. Rains simply didn't fall.

The same happened in 1951; and 1950 was not a good year for corn. On Sand Mountain and the Tennessee Valley both 1949 and 1950 were tough on cotton because of excess rainfall during the summer months.

All of these facts tell us to keep studying weather information and make the best possible use of it. If a farmer should ask me next spring the best time to plant corn I would answer, "Around the first of May because the rainfall records still point to good rains from late June into early August." These are average records. The trouble is that the average has not worked out the last two years.

Another fact that comes to the top again is the high importance of irrigation. Every farmer who has enough water available for irrigation needs to study it from every angle with a view to action.

He may not have enough water to irrigate all of his farm. He doesn't need to irrigate all of his pasture because a half acre well irrigated is enough to carry one cow over critical periods.

A big problem confronting each farmer now concerns feed for the fall and winter. The best answer that I can give for this need is small grains and legumes for grazing this fall and for feed next spring and summer.

These should be planted early on a seedbed well prepared. Time of planting and proper preparation are essentials to success.

I wonder if we should rely more heavily upon small grains for grain feeding as well as grazing. Two consecutive short crops of corn due to unfavorable weather, have caused me to think a lot on this subject. What are your views?

It is possible that 1953 will be a fine year for corn and other summer crops. No one knows. The risk must be run. But we do know that we have had two unfavorable years and this is enough to warrant serious consideration of a shift from corn to small grains for feed.

But don't get pessimistic. Remember that over the years Alabama rainfall has averaged good. So, we'll plan and work with it in the future.

Clothes For Milady

Fall Fashion Trends

By LEVIS B. ELLIS
API Extension Clothing and Handicraft Specialist

NOW is the time to start thinking of a fall wardrobe. After thoroughly checking the useable left-overs from last fall, make a list of new garments necessary to replenish and pep-up the complete wardrobe. A good collection depends upon the careful coordination of all your clothes, styled to flatter your particular figure and practical for the occasion needed.

By studying the new fall trends, the consumer can plan her wardrobe, save shopping time, and be more satisfactorily dressed on the same amount of money. Good buys can be found in all price brackets by careful shopping.

Styles and Fabrics

Look for the elongated torso, unnatural waistlines and slimmed down bouffant skirts. There will be a full, easy swinging silhouette or a sheath, broken by panels, peplums, or deep inverted pleats. The high or low riding waistline is favored. The long waistline or middy look ends in flounces or knife pleats.

In fabrics look for texture, surface, interest, slub weaves, pebbly effect, and novelty constructions which give simulated depth. Cotton tweeds carry out the tweedy-surface interest and resemble wool in texture and color. Dobby weaves add to fall cotton fabrics. Men's wear rayons, wool jersey, corduroy, gabardine and crepes in rough textures and rich jewel tones will add to the fall wardrobe. Synthetics blended with other fibers will assure such qualities as easy laundering and permanent pleating. Orlon, dacron, and acralon are the big three in this group.

CLOTHING EXPERTS—Fashions in the clothing world pose no problems for these talented 4-H Club seamstresses—they've been keeping up with the trends for years as part of their sewing projects. And the records these girls have made bear out the fact that they are "A" students in the sewing field. The girls are, left to right, Bettie Morris, Blountsville, Rt. 3, state 4-H Club dress revue winner; Joyce King, Vincent, Rt. 2, runner-up in the revue, and Mable Layton, Ragland, Rt. 1, and Jurldean Wigginton, Hackleburg, Rt. 1, district winners. They won these honors at the State 4-H Club Camp held in Auburn in July.

Garments

New lengths, new fabrics, and new colors will add interest to 1952 coats. The shaggy, looped fabrics have a heavy, thick look but are very lightweight. These fabrics fit into the new silhouette in tulip, fitted, or "wrappy" designs. The fabric lends itself to the new, short, wrist-length wrappy coats. Olive green and brown lead the coat color chart. Bronzine, green, and mink browns to lighter beige tones lead in untrimmed coats.

Costume suits are back again. But the really new suit jacket is shaped like a box jacket with curves—semi-fitted. No fancy pockets or lapels, very simple lines, but fancy fabrics, subtly colored, or soft tweeds make up for the absence of tailored details. The shaggy, thick coating jacket will come with a lighter woolen skirt.

Softer silhouette, softer fabrics in all sizes, and straighter lines will be found in dresses. Leading fabrics include chiffon woolens, crepes, tweeds, silk faille, textured cottons and blends of the new synthetics. For information on accessories to go with the fall wardrobe see story on page 5.

Defoliate rank cotton by dusting with 25 to 30 pounds of cyanamide per acre about the time the cotton begins to open. Top bolls should be 25 to 30 days old or almost grown. Pickers prefer to pick defoliated cotton because they can pick more and get started earlier in the morning.

Don't overlook the value of your irrigation system to insure a good stand of fall planted crops, grasses, or legumes. Even though the system was designed for a particular field or pasture, where water is available, it can be used to insure perfect stands of winter crops.

Sudan Grass For Temporary Grazing

R. E. Hereford of Hazel Green is sold on the value of Sudan grass for temporary grazing. And well he might be, because this Madison County dairyman has made good use of two six-acre fields of the crop during a time when many herds were getting thin from lack of grazing. Hereford planted his Sudan grass in early May and fertilized it with 500 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer per acre. He used about 30 pounds of seed per acre. Hereford, shown at left above with Assistant County Agent Fred Glaze, says that when he turned his cows in on the field during one of the hottest spells this summer, his milk production almost immediately went up from five to six cans per day. At the rate of an extra can of milk per day he figures the cows will soon pay for the seed, fertilizer, and other costs of planting the grass.

Four-H'er Today -- Beef Cattleman Tomorrow

THERE'S no limit to the knowledge and even financial gain that farm youngsters can gain if they will select a good project and stick with it.

Take the case of 4-H'er Billy Maples of Elkmont, Rt. 2, for example. He's had a little more than the average amount of luck perhaps—but then he has probably manufactured some of that luck by working for it.

Billy became a project worker in 1947 when he joined the Friendship 4-H Club in Limestone County. And he has not slowed down since. Of course, he followed in the footsteps of his dad, Mack Maples, a breeder of Angus cattle, and selected a beef calf as his first project. From that start Billy has grown into a breeder of Angus cattle in his own right.

The youngster started his fat stock show career with a winning streak. One of his calves was named champion of the Angus division of the Decatur Show and the other calf, a smaller animal, placed first in his class. This small calf had excellent type characteristics so Billy decided to take him home and feed and groom him for another year. And this gamble of a year's feed bill—to say nothing of the time spent in looking after the animal—paid off in 1948 when Billy won the grand champion's ribbon at the Birmingham Fat Stock Show.

Billy sold his steer for a record price of $3,372 and immediately began putting his money back into cattle. He bought five bred Angus heifers that fall and added three more cows to his growing herd in 1949. Since then the herd has multiplied to 24 animals.

FOUNDATION COW—This "typey" cow is one of the animals 4-H'er Billy Maples picked as one of the foundation cows in his registered Angus herd. He bought her with some of the prize money he won with his 1948 Birmingham Fat Stock Show grand champion steer. She's a five-year-old and is producing top quality calves for the young cattleman.

Billy is now in partnership with his Dad and their system is paying dividends to both parties. Mr. Maples furnishes the land and Billy furnishes a big part of the work. Billy's job is to keep the pastures in first class shape—and though that calls for work when most 15-year-old boys had rather be playing—he sticks with the job. "After all," as the youngster puts it, "I'm in business and have a lot at stake in the Mack Maples and Son partnership."

Like most businessmen; Billy Maples has some long range plans for the future. After he completes his last two years in high school he plans to go to college and study animal husbandry. Then it's back to the farm for Billy. He's been a successful cowhand now for five years and feels that there isn't any use in wasting that experience.

TWO-COUNTY DRESSMAKER—Mrs. J. W. Calhoun of Eufaula, Rt. 1, solved her biggest dress-making problem when she made a dress form to use in fitting her dresses. By making the form to fit her own dimensions, she eliminated the problem of standing in front of a mirror and trying to check the seams and make a straight hemline. Then she fashioned a stand for the form out of some scraps she found around the house. She lives on the Barbour-Henry County line and belongs to home demonstration clubs in both counties. Mrs. Calhoun is shown at right with two special occasion dresses which she entered in the dress revues at her clubs last year. She won county first-place honors with each dress.

She's A Member Of Two Demonstration Clubs

County Line Club Member Works Double-Time

LIVING on the county line creates a number of problems for Mrs. J. W. Calhoun of Eufaula, Rt. 1, but these problems don't keep her from doing an outstanding job—on both sides of the county line.

Mrs. Calhoun is a home demonstration club member in both Henry and Barbour County. She is president of the Terese Home Demonstration Club in Barbour and is parliamentarian and song leader of the Chester Chapel Club in Henry County.

An expert seamstress, Mrs. Calhoun enters the annual dress revue in both clubs. And she is usually a winner. In 1950 she won a blue ribbon in the Henry County contest, and last year she won first place in the special occasion class of both county revues. She says that sewing keeps her pretty busy just before the clubs have their revues each summer, but the extra dresses come in handy throughout the year.

Mrs. Calhoun states that she used to tussle with the problem of fitting dresses on herself, but this difficult task was solved by making a personal dress form. She improvised a temporary stand for the form from a can, a short board, cotton padding, cloth, and the limb off a China Berry tree. However, the Chester Chapel and Terese club member doesn't recommend the stand she made—she's planning to do the job over again—but she says the dress form is just right. It saves many hours of standing in front of a mirror trying to get a hemline straight.

Home Agent Mrs. Frances Watson of Barbour County declares that it makes little difference whether the sewing "props" Mrs. Calhoun uses are of scientific design—she is an excellent seamstress regardless. And Henry County Home Agent Lillian Cox agrees. They both depend on Mrs. Calhoun as a leader in their county club work. And they would like to have some more club members to share—across the county line.

Timber buyers are slowing down a little. They want better grades of timber. So it is getting harder to sell rough stuff. Farmers should manage their timberland so as to produce straight, clean logs. Rough timber, removed through stand improvement work, can still be sold for pulpwood, and brings about as much for trees up to 12 inches in diameter as sawtimber Doyle Scale.

Pen Feathers

by John Weeks

THIS fall why not trick your hens—make them think it's spring by using artificial light to lengthen their workday.

Eggs are selling at a good price and every poultryman should strive to get top production from his flock, especially during the next few months. One of the greatest aids in getting this top production is the use of lights in the laying house. Hens do not normally lay well in the fall and winter because they do not get enough light. When lights shine on a hen, as in the spring, her pituitary gland is stimulated. This causes a hormone to be released in her body which reacts on the reproduction system, resulting in greater egg production. The hen may be stimulated by natural or artificial light.

The laying flock needs about 13 to 14 hours of light per day. Producers should take advantage of lights in their management program. Lights should be started in all laying houses when the amount of daylight drops under 13 hours per day. Start the lights in September at 4 a. m., leaving them on until daylight, then as days get shorter set lights to turn on earlier in the morning. An inexpensive electric switch can be secured to turn the lights on at the desired hour.

Many poultrymen who are using lights do not have enough outlets for good distribution of light. Have one 40-watt bulb for each 200 square feet of floor space. Thus, in a 20-foot house, lights would be spaced 10 feet apart down the center of the room. All lights should be equipped with reflectors and the bulbs should be kept clean in order to get maximum light.

Some growers use all-night lights on their flocks. If this is done, one 15-watt bulb should be used at the beginning of the lighting period for each 200 square feet of floor space. As the days get shorter, increase the size of the bulb to 25 watts, then to 40 watts, and finally to 60 watts.

Yearling hens that are now finishing their laying year should be kept until they molt. Move these hens to temporary quarters so that the pullets can have the laying house. Use lights to get the maximum production out of the old birds. Turn on all-night lights using one 15-watt bulb for each 50 hens. Increase the size of bulbs as extra stimulation is needed. Closely cull the flock and sell the birds as they begin to molt and stop laying.

All laying house lights should be suspended six to seven feet above the floor and arranged so that they shine on feeding and roosting areas. The use of these lights will increase production by two to three dozen eggs per bird, at a cost of only a few cents spent for current.

Alabama Dairy Cooperatives Expand In Number And Size

By PETE B. TURNHAM
Assistant API Extension Dairyman

ALABAMA dairymen are more enthusiastic than ever before about good sound cooperatives. Proof of this lies in the fact that 14 artificial breeding associations and 14 dairy herd improvement associations are now in operation in the state. These cooperatives are financed and directed by dairy farmers themselves and have as their sole purpose the improvement of dairy cattle through good breeding, management, and the keeping of sound records.

Dairy farmers in Hale County started their second DHIA group on Aug. 1 and already are looking ahead to the time when they can expand to take in every dairyman in that county. Through this program Hale County dairymen are helping themselves realize efficient production from each individual cow.

The Central Alabama DHIA will start its second testing unit on Oct. 1. This is a five-county association in the Piedmont area of Alabama and is made up of dairymen in Lee, Chambers, Tallapoosa, Elmore, and Autauga.

Farmers of the Coosa Valley DHIA group met in Anniston recently to discuss plans for their second herd association. Although this is one of the newest associations in the state, there is already an expressed need for a second unit in Calhoun, Cleburne, St. Clair, and Talladega Counties. It is expected to get underway around Sept. 1.

Madison County dairymen are laying the groundwork for their first artificial breeding association. All indications point to a breeding cooperative for this county in the very near future. Nearly 50 dairymen met recently in Huntsville and expressed an interest in this work.

Alabama dairymen are definitely interested in better milk production practices. They are willing to invest money in sound cooperatives to help insure that their herds can join the ranks of the best throughout the nation. This is a healthy sign of progress.

Small Start But Steady Growth Tells Story Of Fayette County Poultryman's Progress

DEAN RAINEY of Bankston is building a poultry business—in fact he has made some addition to his poultry houses each year since 1946. That year the Fayette County farmer grew out his first flock of layers and since then he has been gradually enlarging his flock.

The first poultry house Rainey built was a 12 by 50-foot shed, then he doubled the size of this building. A couple of years later he increased the size of the building to 36 by 50 feet.

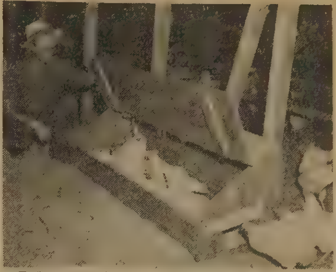
Two years ago, Rainey built another house—this one for use in growing out pullets. He has now doubled the size of this building.

Rainey sells most of his eggs to a local hatchery. He uses Auburn and Gaston strain White Leghorn hens, and crosses them with a laying strain of Rhode Island Red cockerels. Birds from this and similar crosses are proving very popular in Alabama. API Extension Poultryman John Weeks says the Rhode Island Red crossed with White Leghorns makes a much quieter bird than Leghorns; and the crossed hens are of intermediate size. He reveals that in tests at the Experiment Station at Auburn, pullets from Rhode Island Red hens mated with Leghorn roosters produce more eggs than either straight Rhode Island Red or Leghorn hens.

County Agent P. R. Pettis points to Rainey as a farmer who is growing into the poultry business in a practical way. "In expanding his operations, Rainey is putting up low-cost housing and is doing the job with his own labor," says Pettis.

Poultryman Rainey puts in a new flock of pullets each year. And these birds spend much of their time ranging on crimson clover. Rainey follows the crimson clover with grain sorghum, which is used as a grain supplement in the poultry ration.

The Fayette farmer grows a few acres of cotton to supplement his poultry enterprise. He says he can take care of a small cotton crop during the time when he isn't busy looking after his hens. Besides that, an extra cash crop gives him added protection in the event that he has hard luck with his poultry.



FULL HOUSE—Dean Rainey says he doesn't have any trouble getting his hens to use community nests—and the way they line up to get into this nest seems to prove his point. The Bankston poultryman built the nest he's shown examining here. The hens are Auburn strain White Leghorns.

DOUBLE-DUTY LAND—After this crop of crimson clover was harvested, Dean Rainey prepared the ground and planted it to grain sorghum. The grain will be fed to his laying flock this winter, and the clover field will be used as a range area for pullets again next spring. County Agent P. R. Pettis is shown, at left, with Rainey.

Fall Wardrobe Accessories

THE side tilt will be important for fall in small head-hugging shaped hats. Draped turbans in supple fabrics, snug fitting with low backs are new. The entire red color, from pale coral to deep bright wine predominates in the color field. Green takes on a new meaning. Pale shades with undertones of yellow and copper tones of brown are high fashion. Turquoise and purple lead in trimming colors.

Softness is the outstanding characteristic of the fall handbag—softness of line, leather, and fabric. Box-shaped bags are softer, larger, and more roomy; sleek pouches are wafer thin; career bags are large or satchel size. The envelope or underarm bag is a carry-over from last season.

Waistlines are accented by shaped, crushed, elasticized, or ornate belts. These are lovely on some people but appear to reduce the height and enlarge the waistline.

The deep hats demand long drop earrings, if any can be used. Pins will do much to dress up an outfit. Copper and stone combinations will be very new in jewelry—but these don't mix with silver.

Wool jersey in many novelty types will be a leader in glove fabrics for this fall. Bright colored jersey, patterned jersey, and jersey and cotton combinations carry out the soft look in the fall costume.

Elmore Junior Dairyman Builds Big Herd From Small Start

ELMORE County 4-H'er Tommy Nabors has come a long way with his junior dairyman project.

Tommy began his dairy work four years ago when he purchased two registered Jersey heifers. Within the next 12 months this project had returned the youngster $448. He was pleased—but not satisfied. Tommy had his heart set on building up a herd of cows, and that's just what he has done. He now has 16 registered Jersey cows and heifers and five of the cows are in full production.

Of course, there are expenses involved in an operation as large as Tommy's. But that doesn't worry him too much. He has an extensive pasture program and produces much of his feed at a minimum cost. His grazing areas are planted to fescue, ladino clover, sericea, and Kobe lespedeza. And he is figuring on putting in some alfalfa this fall. Crimson clover and ryegrass furnish much of his winter feed and hay from his sericea and Kobe lespedeza fields supply additional winter roughage.

The fruits of hard work are many. Tommy won first place in the manufactured milk division of the State Junior Dairyman Contest last spring. And for this honor he received a registered Jersey heifer from the Carnation Milk Company.

Tommy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Nabors of Tallassee, Rt. 2.

There's No Time To Lose

Squeeze By The Feed Shortage Plant Grazing And Grain Crops

FACED with one of the most serious drought emergencies in history, Alabama farmers are searching for every possible way of producing and saving as much feed, grazing crops, and row crops as possible.

To meet this siutation, API Extension specialists have outlined a program which will help tide livestock and other producers over during the fall and winter. Their suggestions are broken down as follows:

Field Crops and Pastures

1. Harvest cotton as soon as possible. Pick it clean and take it to the gin dry to get best grades.

2. Harvest peanuts to produce the biggest yields of highest quality nuts and hay under existing circumstances. Saving all hay possible is extremely important.

3. Save all available roughage, including sericea, kudzu, Johnson grass, and native meadow hay.

4. Disk early-harvested corn and cotton land and other land after fertilizing so moisture will be absorbed when rains come. Have soil ready for seeding when moisture is in the soil.

5. Seed one or more of the following for late fall, winter, and spring grazing: crimson clover and ryegrass or small grains; oats; oats and vetch; ryegrass, rye, wheat, or rescue grass alone.

Seed Caley peas on Johnson grass in the Black Belt and bottom areas; seed crimson clover on Johnson grass on uplands. Plant crimson clover, vetches, Caley peas, or ryegrass on Bermuda sod after applying fertilizer and disking and just before frost.

When rains come, top-dress Johnson grass, Dallis grass, and fescue grass with nitrogen to make extra growth for hay and grazing.

Seed Ladino (or other white clovers) and alfalfa for grazing hogs on a fallowed seedbed.

Fertilize permanent pastures containing white clover, orchard grass, bluegrass, or fescue as soon as possible.

Beef Cattle

1. Do not dump cattle on the market, especially thin cattle. If necessary, buy feed to carry them until the fall market rush is over.

2. Use corn stover with legume hay or meal to winter cattle, sheep, and workstock. Keep your cottonseed to feed or to exchange for meal if you can get a good trade.

3. Keep your herds and save your best heifers, even if you have to borrow money to buy feed to do it.

Dairying

1. Use a grain feeding table to determine how much cows should be fed according to their ability to produce. And carefully balance dairy rations containing purchased concentrates to cut down on protein costs.

2. Feed calves a milk substitute to release more whole milk for the market.

3. Get rid of low-producing, unprofitable cows.

4. If feeds must be purchased this winter watch the market for lowest prices.

Hogs

1. "Stretch" grain by using protein supplement, mineral mixtures, salt, and early planted oats or other grazing crops.

2. Sell market hogs as soon as possible. Don't try to produce extra fat.

3. Do not sell brood sows. Carry them through winter on grazing crops and maintenance ration of grain. Plant oats or wheat to carry the 1953 spring pig crop until early planted corn is ready for hogging off.

Take Your Choice

MRS. WILLIAM GRANT, left, has reaped a real harvest from a few short rows of strawberries. Besides having all her family could eat fresh, the Sumter County homemaker canned and froze 20 quarts. So the Grants are going to have strawberries just about any way they want them. With Mrs. Grant is Alma Holladay, home agent.

Defoliated Cotton Is Easier To Pick And Grades Higher

By BILL ANDREWS
A.P.I. Extension Cotton Specialist

WHY defoliate cotton? That's a question many farmers are raising these days. Reasons for handling cotton in this manner are simple. Defoliation prevents or reduces boll rot in rank cotton. It causes bolls to open earlier and may prevent or reduce loss in yield and quality caused by excessive rain or freezes. Also, defoliated cotton is easier to pick and picking can start earlier in the day.

Defoliation may cause boll weevils to leave treated fields, thus reducing the percentage of damage to late maturing bolls. It will also reduce the aphid population, which may stain open bolls and reduce the grade.

Mechanical picking makes defoliation almost a necessity. Machines can be more efficiently operated, harvesting a higher per cent of the cotton. It reduces dry leaf trash and green leaf stain resulting in higher grades.

The time to apply chemicals to your cotton depends on the weather and condition of the plants. Heavy loaded, mature plants growing normally defoliate best. Lightly loaded, vigorous growing plants, or plants with wilted leaves, toughened by drought or starved by lack of fertility, are difficult to defoliate.

Results are usually best when temperature and humidity are moderately high.

Applications of delofiants should be made 25 to 30 days after the last top bolls are set. It may be necessary to sacrifice some of the small top bolls to save the bottom bolls from boll rot or severe weather damage. Good results have been obtained when about 10 per cent of lower bolls were open or cracked.

Apply defoliant dust or sprays late in the afternoon or early in the morning. If cyanamide dust, the most generally available material, is used, dew should be present or expected. To defoliate satisfactorily, the leaves should be moist. Leaves usually fall off from 7 to 10 days after application is made.

Don't defoliate the whole crop at one time. Treat only the acreage that can be picked within a week or ten days. It is practically impossible to remove second growth.

A dust containing calcium cyanamide is the most satisfactory material to use. Apply about 30 pounds of dust per acre.

Several new spray materials have given good results, but the supply of these materials is limited. If you try one of these on a demonstration basis, follow the manufacturer's directions.

Defoliant dust may be applied with the same equipment used for applying insecticides. However, in rank cotton, ground machines have not proven satisfactory. Be sure to adjust equipment to get an even distribution of the material. Spray materials are best applied with airplanes.

Experienced Club Members To Lead Alabama 4-H'ers

The 500 4-H Club members who visited Auburn in July for their annual state camp spent much of their time considering the record number of candidates running for offices on the State 4-H Club Council. And they wound up their deliberations by electing one of the best slates of officers that the youth organization has ever had.

Records on the new officials reveal that the youngsters, who average a little more than 16 years of age, have spent a total of 56 years in 4-H Club work. And it has been WORK, because these eight boys and girls have completed an average of 17 projects each.

This Month on the Farm

by API EXTENSION SPECIALISTS

EXPERIMENTAL work shows that well-bred pigs gain a third faster than scrubs and on a fifth less feed per pound of gain. During the next few weeks a number of fall shows and sales of good Alabama grown purebred hogs will be held. These offer commercial hog producers a good opportunity to improve the quality of their herds at small expense.

MANY excellent fence posts can be obtained by saving sprouts and small trees which make two and one-half to three-inch posts. This size takes less preservative and lasts 20 years or more. Instead of piling and burning these sprouts, utilize them for posts.

SEPTEMBER is the month in which to plant the clover-grass permanent pasture mixture in most of the state. With a good seedbed already prepared, the lime and fertilizer applied, and the land smoothed, white clover, orchard grass, bluegrass, and black medic planted during the month of September should produce a good stand.

IT IS NOT too early to start checking lespedeza sericea which will be harvested for seed during the latter part of September or in October. The seed might be ready to harvest. Plan to save all sericea seed possible for home use and for sale. A greater acreage of this important perennial legume needs to be planted in Alabama for grazing, hay, seed production, and soil improvement.

FARMERS should try to save all of the hay possible because of the shortage of corn and other feed crops due to dry weather. A good supply of high quality hay for use when winter grazing is not enough is a sound farm practice. Cut annual lespedeza hay when blooms appear. Later cutting means poor quality. If kudzu has already been cut for hay this spring or summer, do not cut it again until just before frost. Heavy cutting reduces the stand.

FALL planting time will soon be here. A good seedbed is necessary in getting a good stand. Preparation of a good seedbed consists of (1) incorporating organic matter into the soil, (2) aerating the soil to promote the proper bacterial growth and particles, (3) compacting or firming the soil to remove air pockets and to promote the upward movement of moisture, and (4) destroying weeds. The section harrow and cultipacker are good tools in preparing a good seedbed.

DURING the fall and early winter strawberry plants develop the fruit buds for next year's crop. For this reason, they should receive an application of 500 pounds of 6-8-4 fertilizer per acre around September 1, in North Alabama and October 1, in South Alabama. This fertilizer is put on as a top dressing directly on the row.

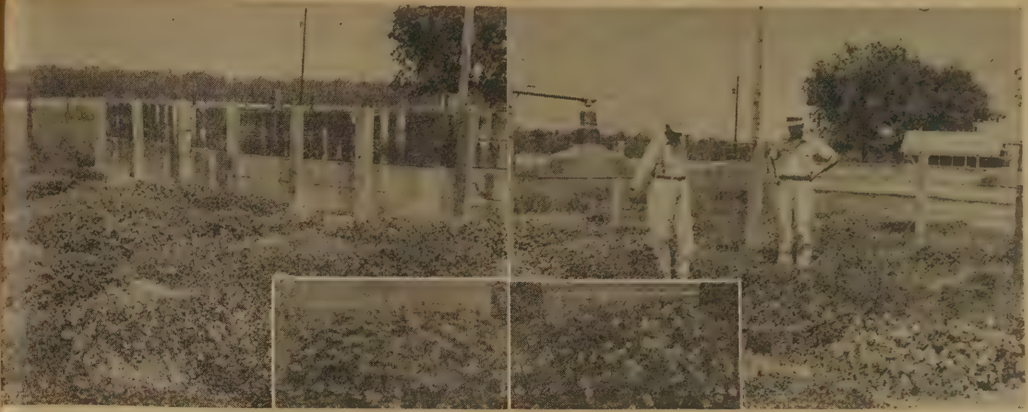
NOW is the time to get pullets ready for winter. Pullets that are already in production should be continued on a good feeding and management program that will stimulate the greatest feed and water intake possible. Pullets that are not yet in production should be brought into the house this month. Use lights on pullet flocks this month.



One Reason Why Ladino Clover Produces Few Seed

Ladino white clover plants normally produce very few flowers under southern conditions. This is one of the reasons why Ladino seed yields are low in Alabama. In an experiment at the Tallassee Plant Breeding Unit, Ladino plants are caused to produce many flowers by extending the day length with supplemental lighting.

The experiment involves a white clover area of about 40 by 80 feet. Half of the area does not receive supplemental light, while the light period on the other half is extended into the night by use of electric lights. The lighted area is separated from the non-lighted area by sheet metal walls. To reduce plant variation large white clover plants were divided and set in four-foot rows in both areas. Ladino and intermediate white clover were used in the test. All plants on both areas have been managed alike except for lighting.

The above photos show how different light periods affect the flowering of Ladino clover plants. In the photo at left, several Ladino plants are shown with few, if any, blooms (Inset—close-up of a single Ladino plant); these plants were grown under normal daylight conditions. At right, all plants are producing flowers as the result of extending the light period (daylight plus supplemental lighting). The Ladino plant in the inset at right came from the same original plant as the Ladino plant in the inset at left. Note the numerous flowers—lighting made the difference. Apparently, additional light made no difference on the flowering ability of intermediate white clover. These plants produced numerous flowers under both conditions.

This experiment is being conducted by P. B. Gibson, associate plant breeder, and J. A. Lyle, assistant plant pathologist, of the API Agricultural Experiment Station, who are studying the presence of diseases on flowering and non-flowering white clover plants.

Careful Management Needed With Sericea-Crimson Clover Mixtures

WITHOUT careful management, the overseeding of sericea with crimson clover may be disappointing.

Tests by the API Experiment Station show that in many cases sericea stands have been lost where crimson clover was allowed to produce a very heavy growth in the spring at the time when sericea normally begins to grow. However, Associate Soil Chemist C. M. Wilson says that when crimson clover is heavily grazed from about April 1 until the clover matures seed, conditions are more favorable to the maintenance of the sericea stand. Even under this system of management the life of sericea may be shortened by competition.

Wilson explains that it may often be desirable to make this sacrifice in order to have the extra grazing furnished by crimson clover at a time when sericea is dormant. So long as stands can be maintained, the sericea-crimson clover mixture probably comes as near to furnishing year-around grazing on the same area as any combination of crops we grow, he pointed out.

Another word of caution stressed by Wilson concerns the use of borax in the fertilizer for sericea-crimson clover mixtures. He says that although borax is recommended on light, sandy soils for crimson clover seed production, it has caused injury to sericea on these soils in some cases. Therefore, it is not advisable to apply borax or fertilizer mixtures containing borax to sericea-crimson clover mixtures. Without borax crimson clover will produce sufficient seed to reseed on most soils, but the yield will be reduced.

It is not recommended that crimson clover be handled as a commercial seed crop in this combination because of the effect of excessive competition on sericea stands. Also, the amount of borax required to produce a good clover seed crop is likely to injure sericea, he concluded.

Homemade Picture Frames Add To Home Beautification

MRS. IRA W. NEVIN, right, of Moundville, shows off her homemade shadowbox picture frame to Hale County Home Agent Mrs. Goldie Kerr. Mrs. Nevin, who recently built a new home near Moundville, made the shadowbox frame from the top of an old phonograph. She has made curtains, draperies, and many other things for the new home. Most of the lumber that went into the house was cut from the farm. And during construction she helped with many of the building and decorating jobs. Mrs. Nevin, a Hale County home demonstration club member, lives on Moundville, Rt. 3.

Use Borax And Increase Your Crimson Clover Seed Yields

IN 1952 borax increased crimson clover seed yields on Sand Mountain soil from about 100 pounds per acre to over 600 pounds per acre, according to John Wear of the API Agricultural Experiment Station.

The associate soil chemist reveals that on sandy soils at Brewton, Camden, and Auburn, the increases in seed yields due to borax were 400, 300, and 200 pounds per acre, respectively. Wear says that on the basis of this and other tests the station recommends 300 pounds of 0-16-8, one ton of lime, and 10 to 15 pounds of borax per acre for crimson clover seed production on the light soils of Alabama.

RECIPE FOR SEPTEMBER

FOR those hot September days when family meals begin to get drab because most of the vegetables from the garden are gone, a stuffed tomato salad helps to add color, variety, and coolness to the meal.

STUFFED TOMATOES

6 medium size tomatoes
½ c. chopped celery
½ c. chopped cucumber
1 T. chopped green pepper
1 T. chopped onion
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
Salt
Mayonnaise

Plunge medium size tomatoes into boiling water and peel. Remove slice from top of each, and take out seeds and some of pulp. Sprinkle inside with salt, invert and let stand ½ hour. Chop pulp in medium size sections. Add other ingredients and small amount of mayonnaise. Toss lightly. Fill tomato and serve on lettuce leaf. (Note: Chicken salad, potato salad, vegetable salad, or cottage cheese will also make a delicious stuffing for tomatoes.)

Dimes Make Aid Possible

Help Is Available If Polio Hits Your Home

By JERRY RODEN, JR., Alabama Representative National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis

DURING the hot summer and early fall months American people have come to dread the crippling disease polio, or infantile paralysis.

"If my child has polio, what help can I get and where do I go to get it?" is the most frequently asked question during this time. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis feels that each parent should know the answer to this and other questions about polio.

In each county in Alabama there is a county chapter of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis made up of local volunteers. The main job of each of these chapters is to see that the best possible care is made available to each victim of polio. Your doctor or county health officer can tell you who the officers of your county chapter are.

A county chapter will help in paying all medical and hospital bills for treatment of polio that a family is unable to pay. Such assistance is never to be considered charity, for millions of American people make this care possible by contributions to the annual March of Dimes. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis feels that this is a trust fund set up to help victims of polio, regardless of race, color, or creed; and, to finance research to find a way to prevent or cure polio.

Of course, the National Foundation does not pay all bills regardless of a family's ability to pay. It does feel that no family should suffer undue hardship or lower a normal standard of living to pay for the care of a polio victim. In other words, no one should have to mortgage the farm, home, farm equipment, livestock, family car, or stop payment on any of these because of polio. Neither should they have to forget about plans to purchase some of these necessities because of an expensive polio case. At least four out of five families where polio strikes require financial assistance under this policy.

There is no red tape to get this assistance. A simple, neighborly visit to an officer of your county chapter and an explanation of what you feel you can reasonably pay, if any, will result in that chapter pledging to pay whatever else is necessary to see that the polio victim gets the best possible care. No limit is placed on the assistance that can be given to any case.

"Does a polio victim have to go to a certain doctor or hospital to be eligible for assistance?" is another question often asked. The answer is "No, as long as the doctor and/or hospital meets recognized standards of good care." Your family doctor probably knows about the closest polio treatment center. However, your county chapter will be glad to furnish any information at its disposal about the location of such facilities.

Other services of the county chapters are helping to arrange transportation to hospitals, if needed, securing equipment such as iron lungs in case of emergencies, and furnishing educational materials such as pamphlets, motion pictures, and the polio precautions, to any person or group desiring them.

Should polio strike when a family is away from its home county or is unable to contact officers of the county chapter, the family may contact the State Office of the National Foundation at 509 Hill Building, Telephone 2-4640, Montgomery, Ala.

Although we would not attempt to minimize the effects of polio, which seems to continue to increase, it should be noted that approximately 50 per cent of all diagnosed cases recover completely, another 25 per cent recover to the point that they can live a normal life, 17 per cent are severely crippled, and only 8 per cent die.

PROGRESSIVE COMMUNITY—Fifteen signs, strategically located to mark community boundaries, cattle crossings, churches, and the school, all denote the progressive and cooperative spirit of the farm folks of Red Rock Community in Colbert County. And back of this community improvement is the entire membership of the Red Rock Home Demonstration Club. Members of this club have devoted many hours to the job of painting the signs and placing them at important points on the roads through the community. Shown here putting the finishing touches to one of the signs are, left to right, Mrs. Fred Rutland, Mrs. Robert McWilliams, Red Rock club president, and Mrs. Bridge Rutland, community activities chairman.

Grow More Grain

Recommended Oat Varieties

ANDERSON, Arlington, De Soto, and Victorgrain 48-93 are the best varieties of oats for grain in Alabama, according to results of experiments by the API Agricultural Experiment Station.

Although these varieties have some susceptibility to helminthosporium, their average yields over several years of testing have been higher than the yields of other varieties in the same experiments. An additional advantage of these varieties is that they have a higher degree of resistance to lodging or falling over than do other varieties tested.

Yield differences in favor of the varieties named was not as large in South Alabama as in the northern and central sections.

The results also indicate that the Red Rustproof varieties, Delta Red 88, Nortex, Nortex 107, and Rustproof 14 are second choice varieties. Rustproof 14 is probably too susceptible to cold injury for planting in northern Alabama.

Three varieties that have not been thoroughly tested are recommended on a trial basis. They are Southland, for the southernmost counties; Fulgrain 48-107 for northern Alabama, and Mustang for the whole state.

Farmers who have planted large partridge peas for commercial seed crops should keep a close check on the stand the latter half of September. As soon as brown seed hulls can be found beneath the maturing plants, the seed crop is ready to be harvested. Since the harvest stage lasts only a few days, the landowner must keep a close watch on the plantings.

Research Results

from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

ALABAMA'S PRODUCTION OF CATTL AND CALVES has more than doubled sinc 1925 while production of hogs has almos doubled. Marketings of cattle and calve from farms have almost trebled and marketings of hogs have more than trebled sinc 1925. These increases are expressed in term of live weight and show rather vividly th increased importance of livestock productio in the state.

LAYING HENS CAN USE GREEN SUCCULENT ALFALFA, oats, rye, rape, an many different clovers in winter months a part of the ration. Such crops are excellen sources of many vitamins needed by chicken and also reduce the feed cost of the eggs These crops can be grazed by the hens o cut and fed daily to those confined in the laying house.

WOOD MOLASSES WAS USED TO REPLACE PART OF THE CORN in the ratio of Jersey cows in a feeding experiment a Auburn. Results showed that wood molasse is unpalatable to the extent that it may no comprise more than 10 to 15 per cent of th concentrate mixture of dairy cows on pasture. On dry feed, cows apparently will consume larger quantities of the molasses tha when on pasture.

PINE SEEDLINGS that were planted during the past winter should be examined thi month to determine rates of survival an growth. If a loss occurred, see if it was du to poor planting, fire, or other controllabl factors. Research at API indicates that a survival of 80 per cent or over can easil be obtained with proper care of seedlings.

PERMANENT PASTURES MUST RECEIVE PHOSPHATE fertilizer for establishment and maintenance. Results of tests sho that superphosphate and basic slag are better sources of phosphorus for pastures tha either rock phosphate or colloidal phosphate. Permanent legume-grass mixtures should receive 600-800 pounds of superphosphate pe acre for establishment and 300-400 pound for maintenance. If basic slag is used in place of superphosphate, it should be applied a the rate of two to two and one-half pound of slag for each pound of superphosphate. Lime and potash may also be needed.

LACK OF PALATABILITY IN SERICEA has often been attributed to its high tanni content. At the same time, livestock seem to eat sericea more readily when it has been limed and fertilized. With these things in mind, work was conducted during 1950 and 1951 to study the relationship between fertilizer practices and the tannin content of sericea. So far very little change has been noted in the tannin content due to different fertilizer treatments.

OPERATORS OF LARGE PEANUT ENTERPRISES in Alabama usually pick the earliest, while those with the smallest peanut enterprises pick the latest, according to recent farm management studies. Sixty per cent of the farmers with large peanut enterprises own pickers, and only six per cent of those with small peanut enterprises own pickers.

During World War II a new recruit joined a company, and as he rudged along to report to headquarters, a staff car with two stars n its pennant, denoting rank of major general, drove up. The new recruit failed to salute and the officer, a stickler for military comportment, stopped the car and got out. The recruit stiffened to attention s the officer approached and roared, "Soldier, don't you know what those two stars on the flag of my car means?" "Yes sir," gulped the recruit, "It means you have two sons in service."

We want to congratulate Mayor C. Fenn Jones on his outstanding victory in Monday's election. Our greatest desire is to see Clanton go forward on a sound basis as we know it is now operating and think that the Mayor has a fine group of Councilmen behind him.

One of the first pieces of business we hope the new City Fathers take under consideration is an auditorium for Clanton and Chilton County. We know this is an old subject, but the need is greater each year. The city would be behind such a project we are sure.

Ten Rules For Living

FOR ALL CHILTON CO. P.T.A.'s

FROM N.E.A. MAGAZINE

1. Keep skid chains on your tongue. Always say less than you think.
2. Make promises sparingly and keep faithfully, no matter what it costs you.
3. Never let an opportunity pass to say a kind and encouraging thing to or about somebody. Praise good work done regardless of who did it.
4. Be interested in others, interested in their pursuits, their welfare, their homes and their families. Make merry with them that rejoice, and mourn with those who weep. Let everyone you meet, however humble, feel that you regard him as a person of importance.
5. Be cheerful. Keep the corners of your mouth turned up. Hide your pains, worries, and disappointments under a pleasant smile.
6. Preserve an open mind on all debatable questions. Discuss but don't argue. It is the mark of superior minds to disagree and yet be friendly.
7. Let your virtues, if you have any, speak for themselves and refuse to talk of another's vices. Discourage gossip. Make it a rule to say nothing of another unless it is something good.
8. Be careful of other's feelings. Wit and humor at the other fellow's expense are rarely worth the effort and may hurt where least expected.
9. Pay no attention to ill-natured remarks about you; simply live so that nobody will believe them.
10. Don't be too anxious about getting your just dues. Do your work, be patient, keep your disposition sweet, forget self and you will be respected and rewarded.

Evangelist At Clanton Methodist Church

ALLEN W. MOORE

Dr. Allen W. Moore, a native of Birmingham, Alabama, attended public schools in that city, and Birmingham Southern College. He has twice received the decree of doctor of divinity. He served as evangelist of the North Alabama Conference for three years, and was then elected a general evangelist of th Methodist Church, being the youngest man ever elected to that office.

After serving as a general evangelist for five years he was appointed to the sixty-Seventh Street Methodist Church in Birmingham where he was pastor for two years. He was then appointed presiding elder of the Bessemer District and held that position for three years.

In 1937 he was transferred to the Florida Conference and was appointed to the First Methodist Church of St. Petersburg. While there he was elected president of the Minister's Association, and also served as chief of the Chaplain's Corps of the St. Petersburg defense area. In 1944, he was appointed pastor of the First Methodist Church in Dallas, Texas. This is one of the largest chudches of Methodism with a membership of approximately 4500 members. Dr. Moore is listed in Who's Who in America. He was a trustee of the Methodist Hospital in Dallas, and was chairman of the Board of Evangelism in the North Texas Conference. He has been in demand for evangelistic services, as an after-dinner and a commencement-day speaker. He now lives in St. Petersburg, Florida, and is devoting his full time to the field of evangelism.

Recreation Training Course Begins Monday

"Recreation is now recognized as a basic human need," according to Helen M. Dauncey, a specialist in leadership training with the National Recreation Association in New York City who will be in Clanton to conduct a course for recreation workers from Monday through Thursday.

The training course will be at C.C.H.S. from 2:45 to 5:00 p.m. and from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Chilton County Board of Education and the National Recreation Association. The course is open to any interested person and all who take it are guaranteed a good time. Learning by doing is the basis of Miss Dauncey's teaching methods.

Supt. J. H. Boockholdt, director of the training course, emphasized the fact that the course is not planned exclusively for professional recreation workers.

Teachers will find in it new ways to keep their pupils out of mischief on rainy days recess periods; parents can learn much about things to do for fun in the home; volunteer leaders in national organizations, directors of young peoples church groups and laymen who are looking for recreation ideas will get them at these training courses.

"The real meaning of recreation—is refreshment," says Miss Dauncey, and the job of a leader is to make richer those activities which refresh the body and spirit. Contrary to the belief of some people," says Miss Dauncey, "recreation is not limited to any age-group. The need is there whether you are 7 or 70. What people do in their leisure time depends to a great extent upon what the community provides. It is really a civic responsibility to see that there are parks, playgrounds, community centers and play fields available for all people and—what is even more important—that there is trained leadership provided to lead programs. Children need attractive places to play where they can find countless ways of letting off steam, where they are given the opportunity to learn skills which become the basis for their interests as adults, and where they can learn how to get along with each other. Under good leadership they are also learning to be good citizens and to respect property and authority.

"Recreation in these years is a real challenge, for people are carrying strains, worries and anxieties.

"Fun and laughter are sorely needed by everyone and more people are learning that leisure time can be used in ways which bring real happiness and satisfaction."

P.-T.A. Of CCHS Met Tuesday

The September meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association of Chilton County High School was held on Tuesday evening, the tenth, in the high school gymnasium with Mrs. H. M. Fulford presiding

The C.C.H.S. Glee Club, under the direction of Mr. Lamar DeLoach, sang two selections before the prayer and the devotion given by Rev. M. K. Vickers.

From the reports of the standing committees, an active year's work is being planned. Because of the heavy work that would fall upon a few committees, the annual Fun Fair was dropped from the calendar this year. A goal of $1,000 was set for the funds to assist the school program, such as the band and library.

All love gift donations made payable to Chilton County High School P.-T.A. and all gifts must be honored by a receipt for the amount by the chairman and members of her committee from each Home Room. These gifts will be publicly acknowledged and carefully tabulated.

A panel discussion led by Miss Louise Foshee was held on how the school and the parent can be allied or work together. Mr. S. E. Waters spoke from the viewpoint of the principal. Mrs. Sarah Palmer gave the schedule of the school day in the high school, expressed the teachers' willingness to cooperate, and read the school's philosophy. Mrs. Russell A. Williams represented the parents on the panel, and Superintendent J. H. Boockholdt discussed some of the needs.

The fourth Monday evening of each month was chosen for the meeting date. The chairman of the yearbook announced that copies will be available before the next meeting.

Old Barn Turned Into Profitable Poultry House

One of the Veteran Farm Trainees, James Kincaid, of Thorsby, Rt. 1, converted an old barn into a poultry house. He made the loft into an upstairs laying house and is also using the ground floor for a laying house. He has automatic water fountains throughout his entire houses. The upstairs is always dry and easy to clean out, but it is a problem in getting the litter and feed up. He says that this will be corrected as soon as he can get an elevator installed.

There are 3,000 chickens on Kincaid's farm—2,300 pullets and 700 cockrels. Of these cockrels, 200 will be selected to mate with the pullets to produce hatching eggs.

James is always improving his system of farming. He says that when he doesn't have time to build another chicken house, it will be because he has reached his maximum number of chickens that he can care for without hiring outside help.

PURE DEMAGOGUERY

September—already half gone—now seems destined to go down in 1952 campaign history as the month in which General Eisenhower hitched his campaign to pure demagoguery.

Early this month the General swung through the South bellowing hoarsely that only Republicans were honest and glibly promising that if he were President there would be no dishonest men in government. That's a big order, General.

Frankly, we were surprised when General Eisenhower, who should know as well as any man in America the need for keeping partisanship out of military and international affairs, then selected world peace and the war in Korea for partisan misuse, in his Philadelphia address September 4. To hear him tell it, only the Republicans want world peace. The Demcrats alone want American boys fighting in Korea. And the Communists would never have dared attack South Korea with a Republican in the White House.

Tough guys, these Republicans. Scare Joe Stalin to death.

To hear the General talk these days, we shouldn't be punishing Communist aggression in Korea. Has his memory faded so badly that he forgets his own words of July, 1950, in a San Francisco press conference? We can refresh his recollection. Here's what he said then: "When our government guaranteed the government of Korea, there was no recourse but to do what President Truman said and did."

The General says now that we are in Korea because this Administration failed to build up adequate strength in Korean national defense forces. Has he forgotten the occasion when, with other members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, he called on the Secretary of State in 1947 and advised that the United States had no strategic interest in keeping U. S. troops in Korea?

Today, Candidate Eisenhower virtually promises a quick truce in Korea if he should be elected President, and practically commits himself to save the great Asian mainland from the Reds. That's an ambitious program, Candidate Eisenhower.

As a presidential nominee Candidate Eisenhower has shown a remarkable ability to forget what General Eisenhower has said in the past. With a memory this short, could he be expected to remember the grandiose promises of Candidate Eisenhower if he were to be elected?

By the simple expedient of making his own decisions and knowing a good deal about the issues involved, Governor Stevenson is running like a creek in floodtime. He is appealing to the intelligence of the people. — The Nashville Tennessean.

Around OUR HOUSE
by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Sisters, no matter how devoted, don't always get along without fussing. A sisterly misunderstanding developed in our neighborhood recently over the closet space shared by two junior high school age sisters. Each sister accused the other of using more than her share of the closet.

Their mother, a wise woman, settled the dispute by painting half the closet blue and half pink, assigning a color to each daughter. She even divided the clothes hangers and painted them to match the closet walls. Now there's no more fussing over closet space!

Speaking of clothes hangers, the next door neighbor ruined one of her favorite dresses recently by putting it on a metal hanger to dry. When she got ready to press the dress, she found big rust spots on the shoulders.

It's too late now to do that special dress any good, but next time she'll know to put a layer of paper or cloth between the hanger and her dress.

Those tiny brushes used to apply nail polish are just the right size to use in doing small touch-up jobs with paint or enamel. Our handyman neighbor gets his wife to save the little brushes for him to use on all such jobs.

In every household there comes the night when time is short and there is nothing in the refrigerator that can be converted into a quick supper.

On such occasions, here's what our good cok neighbor does: She takes a can of undiluted tomato soup, empties it into a saucepan, adds ½ cup shredded sharp cheese and a dash of Worcestershire sauce, heats and serves over crisp toast.

Every now and then around our house, usually shortly after the first of the month, it becomes necessary to get out a pencil and paper and do some fairly complicated figuring. The purpose of this activity is to attempt to make a long column of figures headed Bills balance with a very short column of figures headed Income, quite a difficult feat. Sometimes impossible.

Well, the other night we were engaged in this activity when the five-year-old came over and leaned on the table to watch the proceedings. Finally she asked:

What are you doing? It curiouses me."

And thus was added another word to the around-our-house vocabulary.

The opening of school and the return of cooler mornings marked the end of barefoot days for the season for most of the youngsters in our neighborhood. Most of the mothers were even more unhappy about the end of foot-freedom days than the children were—it's a lot easier to bandage an occasional stumped (or stubbed, if you prefer) toe than it is to keep a batch of socks washed and darned.

The mother down the street, the one with the big family, always dreaded the task of sorting socks after the weekly washing. Now she has turned the sorting over to her pre-school youngsters, making a game of it. Matching colors, sizes, stripes, etc., is fun for the children, and it also is a practical way of teaching them to recognize different colors.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

RUPTURE

A hernia is commonly known as a rupture. Actually there are several types of hernia, the commonest of which is the so-called inquinal hernia. The inguinal hernia is often found in the working man, but not necessarily one who is engaged in hard manual labor.

The small area where the thigh meets the body is called the inguinal area. When there is a weakness in the lower abdominal muscles, a protrusion results which in reality is a sac containing omentum or fat. The protrusion may also contain a portion of the small or large bowel or the bladder. The hernia is termed reducible when the contents can be pushed back, but the hernia contents may become attached to the inside of the hernia sac so that it may not be reduced. When this occurs, the hernia is called irreducible.

When the hernia becomes irreducible, the condition becomes complicated. Now the omentum or fat, the small or large bowel, either individually or in combination, are constantly outside the abdominal cavity and consequently becomes susceptible to further injury or constriction.

This may cause an interference in the normal flow of the intestinal contents, producing the condition known as intestinal obstruction. If the constriction is great enough to shut off the blood supply also, the hernia contents are apt to become gangrenous. If this complication is not cared for promptly, additional serious complications develop which may necessitate the removal of the gangrenous bowel.

Trusses and supports may be of some value in certain individuals who develop hernias, particularly where surgery is not indicated. However, surgery is the treatment of choice in the correction of most hernias. Through surgical repair it is not only possible to return the protruding contents to their normal position, but to remove the sac caused by the pressure and to effect needed surgical transplantation to insure greater support and strength to the weakened abdominal wall.

Verbena Trips Jemison 28-0

Continuing their fine record from the past two seasons, the Verbena High School footballers won their 1952 season opener by white-washing the Jemison Panthers 28 to 0 last Saturday night.

Rain Friday afternoon forced a postponement of the game until the following night. Playing before a large number of spectators and supporters for each team, the Verbena boys gave a fine demonstration of blocking and tackling. This was in evidence that the JHS team could only produce four first downs against the visitors' nineteen.

Jemison kicked off first. Three minutes later after rolling up three quick first downs, Burkhalter, Verbena's fine little half-back, plunged across for their first touchdown. They quickly converted the extra point by a straight line play. The JHS gridders played fairly even with the visitors the remaining part of this quarter. The second quarter neither team scored, yet; Verbena carried the ball over the goal line once, only to have the touchdown nullified by a penalty.

The second half opened with Jemison receiving the ball. After a quick first down, Verbena recovered a fumble and on a second down, Moore got through for a 65-yard run for their second touchdown. This clever full-back, six minutes later, carried over Verbena's third marker, lifting the score at the third quarter end to 21-0.

The Jemison boys never seemed able to mount a real threat. Three times, however, they were within twelve yards or less of Verbena's goal, but the visiting team threw up an impenetrable defense and there the threat stopped. The home team was out-tackled, out-blocked, and out-scored. The only thing our team excelled in was in drawing penalties. Verbena drew eight 5-yard and two 15-yard penalties for a total of 70 yards loss, while Jemison, for the first time in its football history, did not have a single penalty called against it.

The Jemison team cannot feel too down-hearted over the loss of this one, because they were playing one of the better teams of the state. Considering this fact, our team gave a fairly good account of itself, especially considering that several of our regular gridders are first-year players.

The fourth and final touchdown came the last minute of play when Burkhalter again hammered through the JHS line, with some clever blocking on the part of B. and H. Prickett, Pierce, Patterson, Wingard and Thomas.

For Jemison, Guin, Cannady, Ellison, Collins, Cleckler, Price, Martin, Marcus, Hilyer, Jones, Fortner, and Langston, all played their best against the veteran team from South Chilton. Their best efforts could not cope with the experience and skill generated by the Verbena boys. Our hearty congratulations to Coach Porch for the fine record he has built for a school, where only a limited number of boys are available for playing football.

Jemison goes to Billingsley High next Friday night, September 19, for a game with their team. The Billingsley team swamped us last year 36 to 0, but we hope to give 'em a better tussle this time.

KEEP TRACTOR CLEAN FOR BEST OPERATION

Keep a tractor clean, and it'll keep running, advises J. T. Gaillard, API Extension farm mechanization specialist.

He says it's a simple job to service the air cleaner. Just clean it according to instructions in the operator's manual, then fill with new oil. Of course, any material that has been sucked up against the air intake screen should be removed.

"Also," adds Gaillard, "care of the oil filler or breather cap is an easy but important chore. Merely dip it in a solvent or kerosene to wash dust and grime off the filter screen inside."

When making fruit pies, make the slits in the top crust near the center, and the juice will not run out inside the stove. Berry pies are done when the juice that bubbles out of these slits is the consistency of a rather thick syrup.

PLEASANT GROVE METHODIST CHURCH

On Sunday, September 7th we had our homecoming day. Our pastor, Rev. H. A. Jones, brought a good message at the 11:00 hour. Lunch was served on the church grounds. A while was spent in talking and meeting together. We assembled back into the house around 1:30 and sang for about 45 minutes then Rev. John Rountree, our former pastor, brought the message for the afternoon. After the message, we had a while of fellowship together. We all left the church feeling much better that God had watched over us and had spared our lives to come back to this old place of God to have another home coming day.

Our revival began Monday with Rev. A. L. Martin from Selma doing the preaching. Some of the best sermons that has ever been delivered in this church was delivered by this man. God was with him in bringing them to us. A great spiritual awakening has been seen from the results of this revival. We had visitors from all of the surrounding churches and we appreciate them coming to worship with us. We invite them back any time they can.

On Sunday, September 14th, we had the largest crowd out for Sunday School that we have had in some time. We had over 100 percent attendance. We also had some new people to join our Sunday School. We just want to keep it up.

We want all of our members to remember that on the third Sunday in each month we will meet at 9:45 prompt for our Sunday School so we can go down to Mount Nebo for their preaching services. We wish to remind you also of our weekly prayer meeting that was started Sunday night which will be held each Sunday afternoon at 6:30 and will be followed by MYF at 7:00 p.m.

Remember that the church needs you and you need the church. Your church is just what you make it. So come on out and make it one of the greatest churches by your prayers, atendance and services to it.

Lutheran Church News—

Sunday School 10:00; The Service 11:00. Everybody welcome.

Why was Jesus baptized? This is a question that has a vital significance on the Christian doctrine of baptism. Below are a few questions that I have been asked, and I will briefly answer them hoping that my observations will be helpful.

1. "Why was Jesus baptized?" He was baptized to "fulfill all righteousness" (Matt. 3:15). This means that his baptism was a legal act whereby he was received into the Levitical priesthood. We are not baptized to fulfill all righteousness, but for the remission of sins (Acts 2:38).

2. Why was Jesus thirty years old at the time of His baptism?" Mosiac Law required that a Jew must be at least thirty before he could be ordained into the priesthood. See Numbers 4:3-35-39 and 47. Another reason why he was not baptized to set us an example."

3. Was John the Baptist a disciple of Jesus?" No; John belonged to the Old Testament era entirely. John himself made it clear that he was only a voice in the wilderness" and when Jesus appeared on the scene, his ministry was over.

4. How was Jesus baptized?" Most probably by sprinkling because that was the mode prescribed by the Old Testament for inducting one into the Levitical priesthood. See Numbers 8:7.

Next week I shall discuss Romans 6:1-10. — William R. Morgan.

September 30 will witness an event of monumental importance to all Bible reading Christians. The Revised Standard Version of the Bible, in the process of preparation for about fifteen years, represents the efforts of the best scholarship of about forty Protestant denominations. This Bible will be available to the public on that date.

This Bible is written in modern English with all of the obscure words, antiquated terminology, and errors either removed or re-translated. The Bible will be as simple to read as any modern book purchased from a news stand, and yet all of its' precious truths will be preserved intact. This Bible may be obtained through your denominational publication house. Consult your pastor for particulars.

In honor of this great event, the churches of Thorsby plan to hold a joint service and present this Bible to the people. A committee, called the Thorsby Bible Observance Committee, has been appointed and consists fo the following: Chairman, Rev. William Morgan; Secretary, Rev. Carolyn Welch; Mrs. Lloyd Howard, Mrs. James Kincaid, Mrs. Sol Rudolph; Mrs. Raymond Cobb, and Mrs. Frank Porter.

This observance will be held on the evening of September 30. The exact time and place has not yet been decided. Plan to come to this service commemorating a history-making event. Watch your papers for further developments. Signed: Rev. William R. Morgan.

MONEY-SAVING ROAST FOR SMALL FAMILIES

Auburn, Ala.—Meat roasts, which often come cheaper by the pound than chops and steaks, are sometimes overlooked by the woman who cooks for two or just for hreself.

"For example," says Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, "a small pork loin roast of two and one-half to three and one-half pounds can provide at least three different pork dishes. The butcher might be asked to cut off a chop or two from the end of the roast. The chops can be placed in the freezer tray of the refrigerator for longer keeping. And the roast itself provides savory roast pork in moderate amount plus 'scraps' for pork chop suey, salad or some creamed dish, or gravy."

Miss Hulsey further states that a one-rib beef roast suits very small family needs. Weighing three to five pounds with bone in, it will roast well when turned often and basted frequently.

DRY COWS

It is a mistake to pasture dry cows on poor pastures until they freshen. Cows on such areas might fail to build up proper body reserves for a healthy calving condition. And cows won't reach peak production unless they are healthy and strong at calving time.

The health of your children is protected by CONCRETE SEWERS

Unseen and seldom considered by the citizen, sewers nevertheless play a vital part in protecting the health of his family. And the best protection is afforded by strong, durable, concrete pipe—the kind that serves dependably through many decades and keeps sewage flow safely confined within joint-tight walls—cuts leakage and "infiltration" to the minimum.

Concrete Saves Taxpayers Money

Your municipal sewerage represents an important investment. Concrete protects that investment! It resists corrosion, rust and decay. It is moderate in first cost and serves for decades with the minimum of maintenance expense.

Population has outgrown sewage systems in many cities. Urge your officials to plan new sewers using safe, economical concrete.

REA Co-Op Power Use Advisory Committee Meets

At the Power Use Advisory Committee meeting at Central Alabama Electric Co-op in Prattville, the members made plans to carry out their demonstration program in the schools in the Co-op's area. At the opening of the meeting, "Bob Marshall Come Home" a film on providing electricity for the sparcely populated area was shown and followed by a talk by the Co-op. manager Mr. W. C. Wingard. Mr. Wingard discussed some of the basic facts concerning electricity and showed how the knowledge of the facts could help individuals plan economically when adding new electric appliances and fixtures. The discussion also involved individual problems brought up by the power use members representing their respective sections, who were Mrs. J. W. Thomas, Mrs. E. A. Fischer, Mrs. Ed Rogers, Mrs. J. S. McEwen, Mrs. Ernest Klinner, Mrs. F. C. Gibson, and Mrs. Gordon DeRamus, Chairman.

After this discussion, the committee made plans to expand their demonstration and educational program to include the schools in this area. Included in this program will be demonstrations, movies, and forums, held to discuss the problems which arise in the communities.

After the business session the committee had a buffet lunch in the Co-op kitchen. The highlight of the meal was the birthday cake and ice cream, which was served to celebrate the first birthday of the Power Use Committee.

STEEP, ROLLING LANDS ADAPTED TO SOD CROPS

Too many farmers are still waging an uphill fight by trying to grow cotton and corn on very rolling and steep lands, declares S. R. Doughty, AI Extension soil conservationist.

He points out that such lands are not adapted to growing row crops because the erosion hazard is too great. However, these lands may be used to grow sericea, kudzu, and grass-legume mixtures. And the forage grown can be harvested by cattle and sold in the form of beef and dairy products.

Doughty adds that sod crops provide the most economical source of feed for cattle. Also, they produce a sound cover that protects the soil from erosion, and they supply organic matter to increase the water holding capacity of the soil and its fertility.

[illegible] fort, he inspired the entire [illegible] AACS Wing's historical system [illegible] a new high in accurate, comprehensive, documentary reporting

The historical volumes prepared by Sergeant Parker, permanently recording the work of the [illegible] AACS Wing in Korea and throughout the Pacific area, are filed for future reference of Air Force students, who will benefit by the experience of today's AACS men.

AACS is the world-wide U. S. Air Force agency that provides United Nations aircraft with communications and navigational aid facilities through the most modern rado and radar equipments developed. The 1808th AACS Wing maintains a vast network of communcation stations spanning the Pacific ocean from the west coast to Japan and into Korea

A veteran of 10 years service with the Army and later the Air Force, Sergeant Parker served in Europe during World War II, taking part in the invasion of France. He served in the Phillippines for two years after the war, and was assigned to the Pacific theatre again in April 1950 to his present unit in Tokyo.

Sergeant Parker will return to the United States this month—September—for assignment at Mitchel Air Force Base, Long Island, New York.

Tingle stated that he wished to thank the many citizens of the county for their support in the past and promises them a clean, honest, efficient, administration if he is elected their probate judge. Bible Observance To Be Held By Thorsby Churches

The churches of Thorsby will hold a joint service at the Thorsby Baptist Church, September 30, at 7:30 p.m. commemorating the completion of the Revised Standard Version of the Bible.

This Bible is written in modern English so that it can be easily read and understood. Nothing has been taken away from the Bible as far as content is concerned, but rather the outmoded English has been translated into modern speech. This version has been in the process of preparation for over fifteen years and this task was accomplished by scholars of all the major Protestant denominations. This is actually the first "authorized" version since the translation of the King James Bible in the year, 1611.

During this service, five copies of the new Bible will be presented as gifts to some of the leading citizens of Thorsby.

A committee, called the Thorsby Bible Observance Committee, is in charge of arrangements. The Baptist, Congregational, and Lutheran churches are represented on this committee.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this service and get acquainted with the Bible that will probably become the standard version among English speaking people for years to come.—Rev. William Morgan, Chairman, Thorsby Bible Observance Committee.

Between 1890 and 1900, population in Alabama's Wiregrass section increased more than 65 per cent, with Covington County's population hike being even greater than that of Jefferson County.

NIXON'S FIXINGS

Nixon is a whizzaroo.
Wants his cake and eat it too.
Never did he stop to think—
Bad money makes an awful stink.

Looks like the Republicans have a "mess" before they get to Washington.

We like Governor Adlai Stevenson's remark about cutting cost in government departmental expenditures. Instead of giving increase in salaries to department heads who hire another clerk: "Promote and give the most pay to the man who does the best job with the fewest employees." Reminds us of the story about the three old maids at the insane hospital. Asked what one would wish for if she could have one wish, she said: "I would wish for a man to love me." One of the other two turned and said: "Mary, Sara will be leaving us pretty soon. She's done started talking sense."

CYNICISM ON SECURITY

General Eisenhower had not got around to running for President when he made the cynical remarks quoted under Mr. Bishop's cartoon on this page. We sympathize with the awkward position in which these callous sentiments leave Candidate Eisenhower. So we invite him to do what he did on farm policy—borrow from the Democratic platform.

The platform—and Adlai Stevenson is running ON it, not AROUND it—calls for:

"Further strengthening of old age and survivors insurance, through such improvements as increasing benefits, extending them to more people and lowering the retirement age for women.

"A stronger system of unemployment insurance, with broader coverage and substantially increased benefits including an allowance for dependents.

"Furthering improvements in public assistance programs for the blind, the disabled, the aged and children in order to help our less fortunate citizens meet the needs of daily living."

Which do you prefer: Ike's dinosaur thinking, or the pledges of the party which has long since proved its leadership in the field of Social Security?

STEVENSON SAYS

Following are key passages from some of Governor Adlai E. Stevenson's recent speeches:

"We must remember that liberals are not Communists, and that socialists are not Communists, and that radicals in the American tradition are not Communists."

—Address at Albuquerque, N. M.
Sept. 12, 1952

* * *

"The farmers of America have a too vivid memory of the Republicans in the House voting against the 90 per cent support law last spring to be impressed by big talk about 100 per cent today."

—Address at Phoenix, Ariz.,
Sept. 12, 1952

* * *

"We must have a new (labor) law, and my conclusion is that we can best remedy the defects of the present law by scrapping it and starting over. What should be retained can be written into the new law after the political symbolism of the Taft-Hartley Act is behind us."

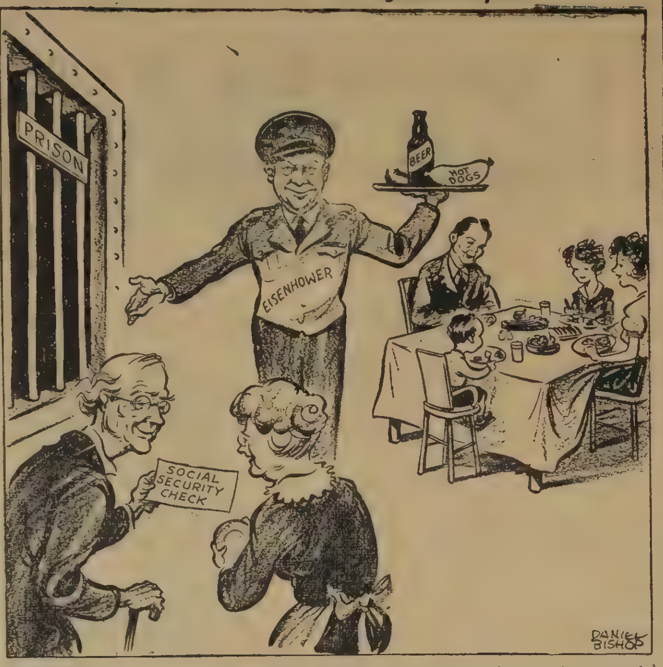
—Labor Day address at Detroit,
Sept. 1, 1952

* * *

"Corruption in public office is treason . . . I've learned by actual experience how to use an axe for misconduct, and I've used it on my own party men without fear or favor or hesitation . . ."

—Address at Denver, Colo.,
Sept. 5, 1952

"It's Time For A Change, Really!"



PRISON, HOT DOGS AND BEER—On December 7, 1949, General Eisenhower said in a speech in Galveston, Texas, that "If all that Americans want is security, they can go to prison." On September 27, 1949, the General told a group of Columbia University students in New York City, "I should think that the best example (of security) would be a man serving a lifetime in a Federal prison." On November 30, 1949, the General said in an address in New York City that "Maybe we like caviar and champagne when we ought to be out working on hot dogs and beer."

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Cowboy guns, airplanes, dolls and even comic books have been almost forgotten around our house since The New Baby arrived. The three-year-old and the five-year-old are so filled with wonderment by the little lady that none of their former pasttimes can compare with the charm of hovering over her, watching her and asking questions about her.

Her every movement delights and fascinates them, and their greatest joy is to be allowed to hold her in their laps in the big rocking chair by the window.

The five-year-old has counted the baby's fingers and toes a hundred times, just to make certain she has the proper number of each. The three-year-old is trying to teach her to shake hands, rather like a young puppy is taught a new trick.

At her slightest whimper, her guardians call, "Mother! Mother! The baby wants you!" And if the whimpers turn into real cries, as they often do, the three-year-old and the five-year-old are genuinely distressed. On such occasions, the three-year-old usually covers his ears with his hands and goes galloping from the room while the five-year-old pats the baby and makes soothing, solicitious sounds.

And the questions they ask! Why does she keep her fists doubled up? Why does she sleep so much? (No baby ever sleeps too much in a busy household.) Why hasn't she got any teeth? Why does she wet her pants so much? (I wish I knew!) Why doesn't she eat anything except milk? Why are her tonsils so little?

Everything she does, or fails to do, brings on a whole new series of questions.

Of course, the three-year-old and the five-year-old, being active youngsters and full of energy, have to be reminded often to be a bit less noisy while the baby is asleep. However, any baby who can sleep peacefully in a hospital nursery with three or four other babies crying lustily all the time isn't too much bothered by normal household noises.

Every time I have to calm the older children down, I'm reminded of bringing the three-year-old, then a new baby, home from the hospital to be greeted by a very excited and very noisy two-year-old. I didn't realize those first few days how often I was telling the two-year-old to be quiet, not until she ended her prayers one night with:

"And bless my little brother—but be real quiet so You won't wake him up!"

Most of the new toys and gadgets the baby received as welcoming gifts already have a decided "used" look. The three-year-old and the five-year-old don't exactly play with them, they just have to "show the baby how this works." A funny little plastic man who bounces on a rubber spring and a brightly-colored cradle gym have been demonstrated so much it's doubtful that they'll work at all when the baby gets big enough to play with them!

O, we like the new baby around our house. As the three-year-old said, "I like God very much; He sent us such a nice little baby sister."

CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING

Carbon monoxide is a deadly poison gas. It causes many deaths each year, particularly in cold weather. The gas, a by-product of imperfect combustion in stoves and furnaces and a component of exhaust gas from automobiles, has a seldom noticed garlic-like odor, is tasteless and colorless. It is unusually dangerous because victims can be overcome before being aware of the gas.

When carbon monoxide gas is breathed into the lungs, it passes into the blood stream where it combines with hemoglobin and blocks out oxygen from uniting with the red blood cells. Death follows quickly when the tissues are deprived of oxygen.

The symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning vary with the amount of gas in the air and the length of time of exposure. With small doses, there are no symptoms. When the percentage of blood cells loaded with carbon monoxide instead of oxygen reaches 20 per cent, there is likely to be a tingling of the forehead with a slight headache and dilatation or expansion of the blood vessels in the skin. Between 20 and 30 per cent, there is severe headache and throbbing in the temples, irritability and errors of judgment. At 40 per cent, the headache becomes worse; there is a sense of weakness and dizziness; the vision becomes dim; nausea and vomiting follow; and the victim may collapse, especially if he is actively at work. From 60 per cent up, breathing may cease; the victim is unconscious and may die. When the percentage is over 70, death is certain. Carbon monoxide is dangerous if exposure lasts an hour or more at 1500 or more parts per 1,000,000 in the air.

In the home, persons may be exposed to carbon monoxide gas through leaks in gas fittings, improper combustion in gas heaters, clogged chimneys and improperly operated dampers.

Automobile drivers should never start their cars without having the garage doors open and never drive without ventilation in the car. They should stop, on long trips, to walk about for a few minutes in the fresh air. The slow absorption of carbon monoxide in closed cars makes drivers sleepy and causes many accidents. Don't sit in a car with the windows closed and the motor and heater working.

The victim of carbon monoxide poisoning should be moved to fresh air immediately. A physician should be called at once. Artificial respiration should be given until he arrives, and the patient should be kept warm. Carbon monoxide is a dangerous killer. Remember that it can cause severe damage and even death—without warning.

Goodyear Building New District Office In Birmingham

Birmingham, Ala. — Construction of a new district sales and warehouse building for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, will be started immediately here following awarding fo the contract to Richardson Construction Company of Birmingham, Ala.

This was announced by J. W. Tulloss, district manager, who said that the expansion is being made to better serve the company's customers and dealers in the Birmingham district area, which includes all of Alabama, middle Tennessee and north Florida.

The new district building will be located at S. 10th St. and Fifth Ave. S., about four blocks from the old location at 2100 Sixth Ave. S. It will be one story in height and will have 40,000 square feet of floor space, of which 33,000 will be warehouse area and the balance for offices.

Size of the plot is 190x400 feet, providing ample room to expand the building by 10,000 to 15,000 square feet whenever needed.

The building will be of masonry construction, with exterior walls of brick and stone. It will be served by a spur of the "Frisco" railroad and will provide space for loading or unloading five railroad cars simultaneously. There are also to be five freight bays for trucks, and a paved parking area for automobiles.

Total cost of the land and building, it is estimated, will be $260,000. All office areas will be air-conditioned. In addition to offices for the district manager and other sales and office personnel, the building will include a dealer conference room.

Plans for the new building were prepared by the Goodyear architectural division, real estate department, at Akron. Horace Weaver, Birmingham architect, will supervise construction.

The Birmingham project is the second major construction program started by Goodyear this year in Alabama. Work is now under way on a giant single-factory warehouse in Gadsden, measuring 400x 1,020 feet and located near the company's Gadsden factory, which produces tires, tubes and shoe products.

Land Values At All Time High

Interest paid on the farm mortgage debt in the United States in 1951 totalled $284,000,000, or about 9 percent more than in 1950, G. B. Auburtin, secretary-treasurer of the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association, reported this week. He said the larger amount of the farm mortgage debt outstanding was the main cause of the larger amount paid for interest charged.

Mr. Auburtin said the average rate of interest for farm mortgage loans held by all lenders was 4.7 percent. The rate of interest on land bank loans is 4 percent.

Because of the low interest rate on land bank loans, Mr. Auburtin said many farmers who have more short-term obligations than they can conveniently meet are converting their short-term debts into long-term land bank loans.

The index numbers of the average value per acre of farm land in Mississippi increased from 90 in 1935 to 312 in 1952, or nearly 3½ times.

For the same period the gain in Alabama was from 110 to 321, and in Louisiana it advanced from 103 to 260.

Land values are now at the highest level in the history of the country, Mr. Auburtin added.

Way To Remove Grease Spots From Walls

Many unsightly grease spots on walls can be removed by one of the following methods, according to Alice Peavy, API Extension home management specialist.

She says to apply fullers earth or magnesia to the spot. Let stand over night, then brush off powder.

The specialist adds that a clean blotter placed over the spot and pressed with a warm iron may remove the spot. The blotter should be changed often.

Alabama Highlights

Alabama is one of the few states in the nation with more than two hundred thousand farms. Production on these farms is highly diversified. Cotton, corn, peanuts, potatoes, oats, soybeans, cowpeas, and hay are important crops. Millions of pounds of legume and grass seed are sold each year; the legumes include such plants as vetch, crimson clover, Caley peas, and sericea. Many kinds of vegetables and truck crops are produced. Apples, pecans, peaches, and strawberries are included among the fruit and tree crops. Farmers earn many millions of dollars each year from cattle, hogs, dairy products, chickens, eggs and turkeys.

Natural appeals of Alabama that made it attractive to Indians, and later to settlers from other states and nations included the mild climate, abundant water, great forests and productive soil. Upon these same natural resources, and others that have since been discovered and made useful, Alabama's citizens depend today for food, for many employment opportunities, and for numerous products made in mills and factories.

* * * *

Grass will grow in Alabama almost every month in the year and because grass is the cheapest of all cattle feeds, Alabama has a great advantage over states in other regions or sections in producing both beef and milk. Since that fact became increasingly clear to farmers, Alabama has gone forward rapidly in livestock farming. In some recent years it has been the leading state of the nation in increasing the number of cattle on farms.

Forest products are a major source of Alabama income. Alabama has more than eighteen million acres of forest land and woodlots.

"Good Neighbor Policy"

Remember one time when I told about the old loose-stone wall that separated Easy Roberts' property from Handy Peterson's?

That was when they decided they really didn't need the wall between them in the first place — so they simply stopped repairing it.

Now I hear where a fellow, who bought the old Johnson place, wants to buy all those stones. It seems he figures a stone wall is just what's needed on his property.

From where I sit, if that fellow wants to build himself a stone wall, that's his business. But if it's not really serving any useful purpose he may sooner or later discover — just like Handy and Easy did — that he'd be just as well off without one. Even some old-fashioned walls of prejudice are disappearing — like those that would deny a person's right to a friendly glass of beer now and then. Most Americans are learning that "walls" can get in the way of the persons inside as well as the persons outside.

The new class officers for the coming year were most ably installed by Mrs. Lake Jones, with the group singing the hymn, "Higher Ground," after which Mrs. Jones impressed each officer and group captain how important her job was. This was illustrated with shoes, new and old ones. Using the theme, "Shoes," they walk only where we walk, go where we take them, and each incoming officer was challenged to wear her shoes out on Higher Ground.

A prayer dedication was offered by Mrs. Tom Kemp.

Each member present pledged her full support to the new officers.

They were engaged in playing games on the front lawn and were called inside to the "fish pond," as their numbers came up. Here each angler hooked a surprise from a sea of toys.

After a very gay time, the litle folk gathered around the table in the dining room which was decorated with two cakes, one in pink and white with four candles, and the other in blue and white and holding five candles. A May pole centered the table around which were grouped "story-book" dolls, depicting the seasons and special days of the year.

Lutheran Church News—

Sunday School 10:00.

The Service 11:00.

Everybody welcome.

Romans 6:1-10 has often provoked quite a bit of discussoin. It too bears heavily on the doctrine of Christian baptism. Let us see what it means.

Actually the first verse is the key to the meaning of the whole chapter. The Roman Christians had perverted Paul's teaching of salvation by faith to mean that if you had faith that you could do anything that you wanted to. Many were living in open sin.

Paul was heartsick when he learned of this. He said how can we live in something that we are supposed to be dead to?' He meant that when a man accepts Christ as Saviour, his whole personality should change and there will be no desire to sin. Those who continue to live in sin are not genuine-converted and do not have saving faith. The expression, "buried with Him in baptism," means dying unto sin and not "going under the water." The whole chapter deals with the Christian life and not with a mode of baptism.—Rev. William R. Morgan.

Mrs. Bosworth Passes—

It is with the deepest regret that we announce the passing of one of our faithful members, Mrs. James Bosworth. Mrs. Bosworth passed away Wednesday evening shortly before midnight. The funeral was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock with interment in the church cemetery. Rev. Wm. R. Morgan officiated, the Rev. Carolyn Welch of the United Protestant Church assisting at the grave.

Nephews of Mrs. Bosworth served at pallbearers and were as follows: Marion and Sidney Bosworth, [illegible]bert Foss and Hugh Carlisle, of Birmingham, Ralph Mason, of Selma, and Thomas Wingfield, of Opelika.

The many beautiful floral offerings were banked solid across the entire front of the church. A group of girls from Thorsby Institute sang, "I Am With Thee," with Miss Shirley Petersen at the console of the rogan.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary had charge of the flowers.

Those who survive to mourn her loss are: The husband; one daughter, Mrs. John Brothers; one son, Leonard Bosworth; five sisters and one brother, namely, Mrs. Anna Thorson of Waseca, Minn., Mrs. Karl Peterson, Mrs. C. R. Foss of Birmingham, Mrs. A. E. Reagan, Carl Turnquist and Naemi Turnquist of Thorsby, besides the in-laws, a number of nieces and nephews.

Many out-of-town relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Spigener was in charge.

A lifelong Lutheran, she and her children were faithful members of the church. She was for many years president of the Ladies' Aid, now the Women of the Church. Her loss will be felt by all of us.

CONCRETE
Home Improvements Give Lifetime Service

You can enhance the appearance of your house, add years to its useful life and reduce repair and maintenance bills by making needed repairs and improvements with concrete.

Sturdy concrete footings, foundations, walls and floors make your home stronger and safer. Outside improvements like steps, walks, drives and patios help keep the house clean too because they keep mud from being tracked in.

Concrete home improvements are moderate in first cost, require little or no repairs or maintenance and have extra long life. Concrete construction also is resistant to fire, storms, decay, termites and vermin. That's why it pays to build or remodel with durable, economical concrete.

BIG LIFT
to Better Farming

Better farming, new methods and machines, better livestock, and improved marketing are helping bring about a new era of progress and prosperity in Dixie.

Rural telephones (they tripled in number since World War II in the area served by Southern Bell) are bringing a big lift to farm work and farm living. During the first eight months of this year, we installed more than 92,000 rural telephones.

We'll keep on putting them in as fast as we can—because we know how much they mean to prosperity on the farm and in town . . . and to a strong, well-fed America. More farm telephones also mean more valuable telephone service for everyone.

Alabama's Farm Mortgage Debt Continues Up

Alabama's farm mortgage debt continued to increase in 1951 for the seventh consecutive year, and on January 1, 1952, totalled $96,164,000, the largest volume in the history of the State.

The statement was made this week by G. B. Auburtin, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association. Mr. Auburtin said that was an increase of 6.7 percent over the size of the farm mortgage debt the previous year.

The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans made 3,669 loans for $13,420,845 in the fiscal year ending July 1, 1952, reported. He said this compared with 3,917 loans for $10,488,133 during the previous year.

The Canebrake National Farm Loan Association closed 47 land bank loans during the past year for a total of $261,540.00, the secretary-treasurer revealed.

He said 61 per cent of land bank loans are now being used to refinance debts, while less than 3 percent are used to finance the purchase of land. About 12 percent are for building and soil improvement.

Mr. Auburtin said that in view of the severe drought and its effect on farm cash income, he expects to see a further increase in the number and volume of land bank loans.

Montgomery, Ala. — State Director L. B. Sullivan has appointed three new criminal investigators for the Alabama Department of Public Safety.

Named were Willie B. Painter, Montgomery; Jack White, Tuscaloosa, and Maurice Chambers, of Huntsville. All were formerly members of the State Highway Patrol. Painter at present is attending the FBI Academy in Washington.

Pay range for investigators is the same as that for lieutenants on the patrol—from $310 to $400 a month.

Between 1880 and 1900, the population of Jefferson County almost quadrupled, while that of Birmingham increased from 3,086 to 26,178. In population, Birmingham stood second only to Mobile, having surpassed Montgomery by more than 4,000.

Mayor Smith Scores Again—

His Honor, Mayor Fred Smith, came to bat as a pinch hitter in Jemison's Municipal Election and slammed that political ball for a home run with the bases loaded by council candidates and landed himself spank dab in the Mayor's chair for another term.

Jemison really has the team that can't be beaten with Old Fred as Mayor and Russell Peterson, James Chandler, Lester Pate, L. C. Shields and J. O. Cobb as Councilmen.

We can all look forward to bigger and better things for Jemison through their able efforts. We are assured our water works, fire department and police department will be maintained at their present high standard and may expect almost anything to jump out of their mystic hats for the benefit of our town and community.

Executive Comm. W.M.U. To Meet—

The Executive Committee of Chilton Association W.M.U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Russell Scott in Thorsby, September 29th, at 10 o'clock to 2:30 o'clock. A covered dish luncheon will be served.

Bridal Shower—

One of the loveliest occasions of the season was that of a bridal shower for Mrs. Robert Hall (nee Mary Julia Blewster), a recent bride. This affair was given at the home of Mrs. J. E. Littlejohn, with Mrs. Homer Carroll, Mrs. Rose Sutley, Mrs. James Holley, Jr., Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Mrs. A. C. Bratton, and Miss Miriam Harvey as co-hostesses.

The home was lovely with seasonal flowers in pink and pale yellow hues. In the dining room the bride's table was covered with a quaker lace cloth and featured an artistic arrangement of yellow snapdragons in an American fostoria bowl. Punch was served with dainty party cakes in yellow and green, with mints of these delicate tints.

The many lovely gifts were displayed for all to see. Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Peterson were in charge there. Miss Sue Bratton in a blue net dress, presided at the bride's table. The honoree was wearing a pale green embossed marquisette dress, ballerina length. Fifty guests called during the receiving hours.

Mrs. Lester Pate Hostess To Club—

On Tuesday night, September 16, the Quest Club met in the home of Mrs. Lester Pate. Mrs. Leroy Peterson, president, presided at the meeting. The minutes were read and adopted. Members responded to roll call by naming a political leader. The treasurer gave a report and dues for the year were [illegible]. When other business was completed Mrs. Flna Cost presented [illegible] Marvin Da[illegible] who reviewed [illegible] chapters of the book, "The Mature Mind." Miss Doris Williams Weds Mr. Joseph Ray Owen

Miss Doris Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Williams of Rt. 2, Clanton, and Joseph Ray Owen, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Owen, were married in a candle light ceremony on Saturday evening, September 13, at the home of the bride. The Rev. J. I. Bice performed the double ring ceremony.

Miss Sara Carter, pianist, and Mrs. James Payton, vocalist, presented a program of nuptial music. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a two piece dress of blue velvet with black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

The candles were lighted by Miss Margaret Littleton, niece of the bride, and Master James Smitherman.

Miss Dorothy Mullins was the bride's only attendant. Miss Mullins was dressed in a grey suit and wearing a pink carnation corsage.

Mr. Howell Carter served the groom as best man.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception.

Mrs. Edgar Littleton, sister of the bride, served the three tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Clayton Beckett presided at the punch bowl. Mr. Thomas Noah, sister of the groom, also assisted in serving.

The couple are at home on Glendale Drive in Clanton.

Different Times To Add Dressing To Your Salads

When to add the dressing depends upon the kind of salad being served.

Since French dressing tends to wilt salad greens, Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, recommends that dressing not be added until salad is ready to serve.

One exception to the rule is when meat or a cooked vegetable-mix makes up the salad. When this is the case, many housewives prefer to marinate ingredients in French dressing an hour or two for added flavor.

Control Insects In Fall-Planted Home Garden Crops

Auburn, Ala. — About this time of the year home gardeners get the urge to plant such crops as turnips, cabbage, collards, rutabagas, and beets.

And worms, plant lice, and many other insects heartily approve—especially if the grower doesn't know about the Auburn-approved garden dust that contains one per cent rotenone.

W. A. Ruffin, API Extension entomologist, says the turnip webworm is one of the worst pests that attacks these crops in the fall. They feed in the buds of beets, cabbage, turnips, and collards. And since they spin a web in which they hide, the worms are not usually noticed until after they have caused serious damage.

Ruffin adds that aphids may attack cabbage and turnips, and large green worms may cause damage to cabbage leaves. All of these pests can be safely and effectively controlled by using the Auburn-approved garden dust. It must be applied every seven to 10 days from the time plants are up until cold weather.

Homemakers Set Cleaning Rules Of Their Own

Auburn, Ala. — Every housekeeper has her own standards of cleanliness. When her home falls below these standards, she is upset.

Alice Peavy, API Extension home management specialist, points out that the pressure of other jobs may make it impossible for her to keep her home as clean as she would like.

When this is the case, usually a definite but flexible plan will help. "Remember that a thin layer of dirt is easily and quickly removed, but an accumulation is hard to remove because it cakes and requires extra time and equipment for cleaning," says Miss Peavy.

"Enlist the cooperation of all family members. A cheerful attitude on the part of the housekeeper makes it easier to get other family members to help," continues the expert. "Give children responsibilities suited to their age. Even a very small child can hang up his clothes if low hooks are provided."

Clover-Grass Pasture Needs Fertilization

Auburn, Ala. — Clover-grass permanent pastures pay off too well not to be properly maintained by annual fertilization.

"For example," says D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist, "a clover-grass permanent pasture not limed and fertilized produced only 3,940 pounds of green material per acre over a four-year period at the Tennessee Valley Substation. During the same time, a pasture that was limed and fertilized with phosphate and potash produced 7,622 pounds of green material per acre. In other words, the limed and fertilized pasture produced more than twice as much grazing as the unlimed and unfertilized area.

Harbor adds that pasture fertilization increases quality of grazing, too. This means that livestock grazing fertilized pastures receive more of the minerals and nutrients needed for producing high-quality, profitable products.

Importance Of Conserving Land

Land conservation practices are used to get a larger amount of production over a longer period of time, according to S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationists.

He further points out that conservation is in sharp contrast to getting maximum production from land in a short period. Therefore, the purpose of conservation is not just the preservation of the land—it's land use that assures a continuous supply of food, fiber, and services from the land.

"In other words," says the specialist, "good land use and conservation consists of using and managing land in such a manner that it will be kept permanently productive."

More Grazing From Fields Of Sericea

Many Alabama farmers have found that sericea fields may be grazed over a longer period if a reseeding winter legume is planted in them in the fall. A mixture of sericea and reseeding crimson clover or Caley peas will furnish grazing from around January 1 to October

Electrical Wiring Can Be Dangerous Fire Hazard

Auburn, Ala.—Farmers are warned to watch for electrical wiring hazards that may cause fires.

William T. Cox, API Extension specialist, agrees that electricity on the farm, if properly installed, eliminates many old hazards, such as the kerosene lantern. However, it is amateur electricians and the misuse of electricity that cause electrical that hazards.

Cox urges farmers not to overload circuits and to remember that a fuse is a safety advice. When a fuse blows it should never be replaced with a fuse of higher amperage. Instead, the cause of the trouble should be eliminated.

(Too Late For Last Week)

Last Sunday and Sunday night were our regular preaching services. Bro. Dees delivered two very inspiring messages which was enjoyed by all present. Attendance was fair at both services but there are many in our community who do not attend church. Let's all work and pray that we might win them to Christ and that they will attend church.

We were glad to have some visitors for both morning and evening services and would like to invite them back

Everyone remember next Sunday and Sunday night is the time set to elect officers and teachers for our Sunday School and Training Union. Everyone come and pray that the Lord will lead in selecting the ones best suited to serve

Let's all remember to pray daily for those wh oare sick that they may soon b eable to come back to church. By praying daily we can grow in grace and truly honor God

Come to Sunday School at 10:00 o'clock and Training Union at 6:30 o'clock. — Reporter.

Community Service—

Community Service is the most interesting and easiest of the many services rendered by the Ladies Auxiliaries to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in any part of our great country.

We were taught in our first Sunday School to "Love Thy Neighbor As Thyself." Each community or city is composed of groups known as neighborhood groups, our members are vital parts of these groups and thereby vitally interested in their affairs.

It is much easier to know the needs of our own communities, because of the lack or fulfillment affects our own family life.

Someone must lead in advocating the building of better community life.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and their auxiliaries are always on the alert to assume leadership and help in community projects.

It is not known how many brave and wonderful things the auxiliaries are doing. Each one has a chairman for this important service, that checks the city or community in which she lives and brings the need before the auxiliary.

The Ladies Auxiliaries to the Veterans of Foreign Wars make their slogan, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN
—By Ben

The other morning we came by the School Patrol that daily guards the little ones who need cross the street on their way to school. A ditch digging machine was starting to work close by and the urge to watch the mechanical ditch-digger was too much for the Patrol. While a little girl stood on the side of the road awaiting an opportunity to cross the street, the "Little Patrolmen" were busy as bees a dozen yards away watching the marvel of the machine, with duty, traffic, school children, and all, completely forgotten.

Note that Dr. Samuel Upchurch was one of eight Birmingham Surgeons who recently became members in the American College of Surgeons. Dr. Upchurch is the son of the late Dr. E. E. Upchurch and Mrs. E. E. Upchurch of Clanton. He was one of 1000 American physicians receiving fellowships in the world's largest organization of surgeons in cap-and-gown ceremonies at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City last week end.

Bootleggers are the most enterprising people. This week Luther Kendrick was showing us a homemade wall jacker-upper he took from a bootlegger recently. The way the thing worked was a regular automobile jack with a flat piece of cast iron welded to it about three feet long. This was placed under the wall and a small hole was bored into the floor where the handle could be inserted. When anyone wanted a pint of giggle water the bootlegger would insert the jack handle, give a few turns and a section of the wall would rise allowing the whiskey to be taken from under the wall. Luke has the home-made affair around at the Sheriff's office and we suppose the former owner will go where the walls won't raise with a jack.

Next Tuesday night is Father's Night at the Clanton Grammar School Parent-Teachers Association meeting. All fathers are invited to come out to the meeting with their wives. Refreshments will be served. Time has been announced as 7 o'clock. There will also be a nursery for those wishing to bring their children.

You friends are really bringing in your subscription money fine and we do appreciate it. Subscription money to a newspaper is just like axle grease to a wagon— if the wagon is going to roll it's just got to have axle grease. So come on and if you haven't paid your subscription to Chilton County News do it today.

Rip Burnett was telling us a "Believe It, Or Not," the other day. Seems a customer came in and had his automobile appraised for a trade-in on a new car. When his automobile arrived and he delivered it, Rip said the party came in and told him he owed for an aerial. Then it was explained to him there was already an aerial on the new car. "But," said the customer, "you don't understand. When I brought the car in that I traded you there was an aerial on it. While I was waiting the arrival of my new car the aerial got broken off, so I owe you for the aerial that was on my old car, but got broken off before delivery was made." Well, to tell you the truth, we suppose Rip was too dumbfounded to do, or say anything. The party paid for the aerial and departed. We omit the name upon request but the honest man was a colored man who is well known hereabout. Diogenes can now blow out his lantern.

We have a fan we didn't know about until this week. She's little Hilda Cox, who says she watches for F & T every week. Well, Hilda is a fan of ours too, and we think she is a very sweet little girl.

The Scot was heatedly contesting the amount of his fare with the train conductor. Out of patience, the conductor snatched up the Scot's suitcase and tossed it out of the window just as the train was crossing a bridge. The case landed with a splash. "Hoot mon," screamed McTravish. "First ye try to rob me and now you have drowned me boy!"

Herbert Linton was telling us of the excitement down around Claud Craig's store Tuesday morning when a prisoner the Sheriff's Deputies was chasing was caught. He grabbed one of the deputy's guns and Linton said he and James Parr, who was standing on the sidewalk watching the chase suddenly realized they had nothing to hide behind but their curiosity. So they decided it would be a good idea to get somewhere else even if it was crawling under the sidewalk. Well, by the time they had made this important deduction the law had the prisoner under control and all was quiet again Herbert and James went back into the City Grill and had another cup of strong black coffee.

Quincentennial Of First Bible

The young people of the chapel of The Resurrection, presented a program at the chapel, after Mass on Sunday morning, commemorating the Quincentennial of the first printed book: A Catholic Bible.

In the year 1452, Johann Gutenburg, a man of faith and many talents, printed the first Bible, 500 years ago. Before Gutenburg, the Bible could be reproduced only by hand. The Bible, during the ages of barbarian invasion in Europe, was passed along from generation to generation in manuscripts copied by hand. The poor monks, copied for centuries, worked from dawn until dark, day in and day out. They saw the Bible as a recording of God's voice in the world. Theretore, these nameless servants of God, shared gloriously in Sunday Morning's program, of Catholic Bible Week: September 28-October 5.
tin aaar

The Gutenburg Bible was the Latin version, the Vulgate, the translation from the original languages—Greek, Hebrew, Aramic—by St. Jerome over 1500 years ago. A brilliant and dynamic Saint, who died September 30 in the year 520. The Post Office Department will issue a commenorative stamp on September 30, in honor of the Gutenburg Bible Anniversary, that amazing landmark in religious and cultural history.

Of the 45 known copies of the Gutenburg Bible, 12 are in the United States. The best is in the Library of Congress. It is valued at over a million dollars. It was purchased for $300 000.

Father Mikosz, the pastor of the Resurrection chapel, expressed himself as being most pleased with the work of the children Sunday morntheir program, was :s ing, he said both their posters and their program, was scholarly in tone, and showed much preparation.

New Milk Route Organized To Include Maplesville

Beginning October 2nd the newly organized milk route will start operation. For the first time the Maplesville area will be included in the territory being served by Carnation route.

The new route will originate at Posey's Cross Roads. From this point it will proceed to Maplesville and the University Highway. After leaving the University Highway it will follow the spur route that is now operating. After reaching Clanton the route will follow Highway 31 to the point where Highway 22 intersects Highway 31. At this point a spur ruote from Autauga County will transfer milk to the Chilton route. After leaving the highway intersection the milk will go directly to the Carnation plant in Dadeville, Ala.

Leon Tillery of Posey's Cross Roads will be the new route driver. Many of the spur patrons already know Leon as he formerly handled the first route organized. A new covered truck with the familiar white and red body will start the regular run October 2nd and more of Chilton County's farmers will have a reliable milk market for the first time. Dairying still continues to be one of the soundest farm programs. SPORTSMANSHIP AWARD FOR HIGH SCHOOL OF CHILTON COUNTY

The Clanton Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a "good sportsmanship" award this school year for the school and community that displays the best sportsmanship in interscholastic sports. This particular award is confined to the high schools. Plans are under way to provide a similar trophy for Junior high schools.

The general purpose of the award is to encourage better sportsmanship in athletic events. At present the attitude between communities within the county is very good, and it is hoped that this move will help to maintain this spirit and improve it. Judging will be based on the attitudes of (1) School personnel (principals, teachers), (2) the pupils, (3) the teams, and (4) other fans attending the games. Judging will be done by persons selected from each community to judge opposition teams and communities. Reports made by game officials will be used also in deciding the community that has won the award.

The success of such an undertaking will depend upon the attitude taken by the sports fans of the county, points out Dick Arnold, Clanton Kiwanis Club president. If the fans of a community want their home school to be considered the most sportsmanlike in its attitude toward opponents, they can assist by conducting themselves properly toward opposing teams and fans. The Golden Rule should at all times govern all sports fans and participants.

Word comes that all schools are planning to make every effort to bring the trophy to their school this year.

WHITE SUPREMACY

FOR THE RIGHT

1953 TAGS DUE

Your 1953 automobile tag becomes due this week, and it will cost you just $3.75. The seventy-five cents is the fee for issuing the tag. Trucks, taxi cabs, etc., will still cost the same price, as the bill passed in the State Legislature lowering the price of tags didn't include trucks, etc.

HAIL THE YOUNG DEMOCRATS

Monday night at the courthouse the Young Democrats of Chilton County organized.

Too much cannot be said for the necessity of these young men taking an interest in their county, state and national government, having the best possible men to fill the elective offices. This is the objective of this young organization.

The young democrats organized under the name of the "Chilton County League of Young Democrats," and will hold weekly meetings until November 3rd. E. A. Fulmer was elected President of the group.

The News extends them hearty congratulations and offers our services in any way.

OUR SHERIFF GETS THEM

Luther Kendrick is due a pat on the back for his fine work as sheriff since his election. Time and time again we have heard complaints about this or that "bootlegger" who is getting away with selling his wares without molestation. Seems to us from the record that the Sheriff's Office is doing a good job. True, some do get away for awhile, but sooner or later they are caught. The Sheriff's force is on the job regardless of what seems to be lax enforcement at times. They must have evidence, you know, if they are to get a conviction.

We'll still have better law enforcement if the good citizens of the county will work with our law enforcement agencies instead of against them.

BENNETT'S LOWLIGHTS

We were talking the other day about a friend of mine who recently married a wealthy girl. I defended my friend. He didn't want to marry her for her money. But he didn't know how else to get it.

A lot of old timers earn reputations as outstanding amateur weather forecasters. I knew one once who never missed when it came to prognosticating. He always opinioned that, "I figure we'll get a rain, right at the end of this dry spell."

* * * *

My finicky old maid aunt was reading in the paper the other day about a man who robbed a store and the account described him as "around 40, weighing some 15 pounds, and wearing a tan sport shirt and a straw hat." "H-m-m-m," she snorted, "won't people like that ever learn? Imagine — wearing a straw hat after Labor Day!"

* * * *

It really isn't the late sleeping that makes Sunday morning so pleasant. It's more fun to wakeup early and just lay there realizing that you can sleep late if you want to.

* * * *

Ain't it just like human nature? Poor people tip better than rich people because the poor man is afraid to let anybody find out that he's poor, while the rich guy is afraid to let anyone find out he's rich.

* * * *

There must have been a double meaning in this. We were talking the other day about the styles that our wives look best in. Said one man, "I'd like to see my wife in something flowing — preferably a river."

Some people don't have much to say, but you have to listen a long time to find it out.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

RINGWORM OF THE FEET

Because the preponderance of cases of ringworm of the feet seem to occur among persons frequenting swimming pools, gymnasiums and shower rooms, the condition has taken on the popular name of athlete's foot. Actually the condition is not limited to these public scources of infection, since it can be picked up from the floor of the bathroom or bathtub in the home if some one previously infected has deposited the organism believed responsible for it.

Fungi are considered the causative agents. They arrive on damp, moist areas of the skin and may be dormant for months and even years. The condition is not confined to the feet but may appear in any area of the body that is susceptible to moistness such as the groin, armpits, the scalp and hands. Thus the medical term for the condition, dermatophytosis, means any skin disease caused by fungi.

Prevention of ringworm of the feet is most important. In prevention of athlete's foot, good hygiene is essential. Careful attention to the areas between the toes is necessary, particularly in bathing and drying the feet. In washing, the toes should be separated and cleansed thoroughly but gently. The same procedure should be followed in drying the feet. This is important in all seasons of the year but particularly during the summer months when humid and excessive heat causes the body to perspire more.

The top cells are constantly being replaced by new cells from the lower layers of the skin. If the dead surface cells are not removed, they, with the moistness natural to the areas between the toes, create a field conducive to the growth of fungi.

Once the condition is noted, such as a dry scaliness of the skin or cracks between the toes, a physician should be consulted because the infection can be transferred from one part of the body to another and from one member of the family to another.

Ringworm of the feet is tricky and difficult to control once it takes hold; so it is wiser to consult a physician in the early stages of the condition. Thus distress and possible loss of time from school or work can be avoided.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

The three-year-old likes chewing gum. Now there's nothing unusual about a little boy liking to chew gum, but the three-year-old doesn't chew it—he swallows it.

The five-year-old, who prides herself on being one of the finest gum chewers and bubble blowers in the neighborhood, has tried and tried to teach her little brother to chew instead of swallowing, but her lessons have been completely unsuccessful.

One day recently, after three pieces of gum had disappeared quickly and completely from the three-year-old's mouth, I asked:

"Why do you always swallow your gum?"

He thought the question over carefully before he answered:

"Well, my mouth is just so big!"

As any homemaker will agree, no house ever has quite enough storage space. The husband down the street declares that the next house he builds is going to be all closets, and he hopes then his wife will have all the storage space she wants.

Our neighbor around the corner helped solve her where-to-store-it problem by having drawers built beneath the treads of her attic stairs. The drawers, though shallow, can hold a surprising amount of out-of-season clothing, Christmas decorations, toys, etc.

Most obnoxious person of the year: the new mother with no circles under her eyes who says smugly, "It must be terrible to have to get up at night with a baby. My baby has slept all night every night since we brought her home from the hospital."

There's nothing like a cup of hot tea, says a certain red-haired radio celebrity, for perking you up. I decided to try his suggestion the other day when the mid-morning lethagy struck. After I got the cup of tea brewed, I discovered the only lemons in the house had dried out until they looked like yellow rocks.

I had despaired of enjoying my cup of tea when the next door neighbor arrived on the scene with her usual good advice. Soak those hard knots in hot water, she said, and they will take on new life. I did, and the tea was fine.

This neighbor taught me two more tricks with lemons: Any lemon will give more juice if it is soaked first in hot water before it is squeezed, and, if you need only a few drops of juice, prick the lemon with a fork instead of cutting it in two.

Met our neighbor down the street with a can of paste wax in her hand when we were out rolling the baby in her buggy one afternoon. I thought she was getting ready for an old-fashioned Fall house cleaning, but it turned out she was going to use the wax to protect the finish of her new leather purse. She gives her leather belts a coat of protective wax, too.

Writing of lemons brought to mind a favorite recipe for lemon mincemeat pie which tastes especially good this time of year. This recipe makes enough filling for two pies, and it may be kept in the refrigerator until used:

Mix together well 1 cup raisins which have been scaled and chopped, 3 cups finely chopped apple, ½ cup lemon juice, 1-3 cup orange marmalade, 2-3 cup chopped nuts, 2 cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves and 1 teaspoon ginger. When ready to bake pies, add [illegible] cup melted margarine for each pie.

Alabama is an Indian word said to mean "clear the thicket," which suggests making a permanent home, in terms of one task that confronted many of the first settlers. Years later, the words, "Here We Rest" were made part of the Great Seal of the State. Use with the word Alabama, they may be said to mean, "Here we stay and engage in those tasks involved in making conditions favorable for permanent homes."

PAVE ALL STREETS WITH CONCRETE!

1. Every street demands a gritty, non-skid surface for the protection of motorists and pedestrians.
2. At night you need a pavement with high visibility.
3. Safety also calls for a pavement that is free from chuck holes, ruts and bumps . . . and stays that way with minimum maintenance.
4. You want a pavement that drains quickly . . . that is easily cleaned and stays clean . . . no depressions to catch dirt.
5. You want a pavement that makes the whole neighborhood look modern, prosperous, attractive.

Concrete . . . and only concrete . . . completely meets all of these specifications.

Lutheran Church News—

Sunday school 10:00. The Service 11:00. Everybody welcome.

Nothing is more important to the weary, burdened soul than to know God's plan of salvation. All of us, sooner or later, must answer the question, "What shall I do with this man called Christ?" Look with me in your Bibles and let us reason together this most important question.

No better starting point could be cited than John 3:16. Here we see that God, out of undying love for man, sent His Son into the world to fulfill the Law, and at the proper time, to offer Himself upon Calvary's cross as an offering for your sins and mine. Do you believe that He is your Saviour? If so you have heaven's assurance that you are a child of God.

Cast yourself at the foot of the cross and say, "God be merciful to me, the sinner." Accept Him and trust Him and then believe that all of your sins are forgiven because surely they are. To those who trust Him, He will have mercy and abundantly pardon.

If you seek salvation, read the following Scripture passages: John 3:16-18; John 11:25; Acts 16:30-31; and Romans 3:28. If you desire additional help, write me and I will be happy to render such assistance as God will impart to me.—Rev. William Morgan.

Such obligations or evidences of indebtedness may (in addition to any pledge or pledges authorized by subdivision 8 of this amendment) be issued upon the full faith and credit of the municipality or may be limited as to the source of their payment.

"7. To levy and collect annually, in adddition to all other taxes now authorized or permitted, a special tax or taxes of not exceeding two percent on the value of all taxable property therein as determined for state taxation, in the same manner as other county or municipal taxes are levied and collected. DEMOCRATIC AIDE KNOWS FARM PROBLEMS—Former Governor Roy Turner of Oklahoma congratulates Gene Evans of Washita County, Okla., on winning individual judging honors at the recent annual field day held on Turner's ranch. Turner, the director of the Democratic National Committee's Agricultural Committee, with offices in Springfield, Ill., is one of the best known Hereford cattle breeders in the United States.

Democratic Agricultural Aide Pioneered Farm Youth Program

Roy Turner, director of the Democratic National Commitee's Agricultural Committee, is one of the leading Hereford breeders in the country.

But even politics and livestock take a back seat with Turner when someone mentions farm youth programs.

Turner, who was Governor of Oklahoma from 1947 to 1951, has been active in promoting 4-H and Future Farmers work since buying the Turner Hereford Ranch near Sulphur, Okalhoma, in 1933.

Beginning in 1940, the Turner ranch each year has been the scene of a Field Day and judging event. The one last June attracted more than 1,000 boys and girls and their adult leaders.

The 10,000-acre Turner Ranch, located in the 'Hereford Heaven" country of Southern Oklahoma, is devoted to the improvement of Herefords.

Turner has served three terms as President of the American Hereford Association and was on the association's board of directors for nine years.

As Governor of Oklahoma, Turner was an enthusiastic supporter of the Rural Electrification Administration, soil conservation and other farm programs. Under his leadership, the state highway program was reorganized, with strong empasis on rural roads.

The biggest road development in the history of the state occurred during his administration. He also sponsored a school consolidation bill which greatly expanded educational opportunities for boys and girls going to rural schools.

Turner's first official act as Director of the Democratic National Committee's Agricultural Committee was to establish his headquarters in Springfield, Illinois, where he could be close both to agricultural affairs and to the headquarters of Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for President.

Local Church And Social Happenings

Our Church School attendance broke all records last Sunday. We are delighted over this fact and would like to invite those who did not attend church school last Sunday to join us this Sunday and make an even greater record.

The worker's council met to discuss plans for our Church School program for the next quarter, Monday night at 7:00 o'clock. A delicious covered-dish supper and an hour of fellowship were enjoyed by the members present.

Tuesday night the members of the Men's Fellowship Club, and others interested in visitation met at the church for a Training School for Visitation Evangelism. We hope to be able to give each one a cordial invitation to attend our revival which begins October 19th. Dr. Allen W. Moore, who will do the preaching for us at that time, is already well-known by many of our fellow citizens and we feel sure that you will not want to miss hearing him speak.

Our repairs and improvements are coming along nicely and we are happy to know that plans have been completed to have our heat and air-conditioning in within a few weeks. Work has also begun on the parsonage and it won't be long before we can see the result of our labors and feel a pride in having a part in this work.

The WSCS will hold their regular monthly business meeting at the church Monday afternoon at 3:00. Mrs. Clara Mullins, Secretary of Christian Social Relations, will present an interesting program on "Home Missions Winning Human Rights." All members are urged to attend. The nursery will be open for the convenience of mothers.

Former Teacher Honored—

Mrs. Bell Wade was honored on Tuesday afternoon when members of her Sunday School Class spent the afternoon with her.

Mrs. Wade is a former teacher of the Phillips Willing Workers Sunday School Class of the First Methodist Church. Working with the members for many years before she became inactive due to her health. A most enjoyable afternoon was passed. Delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. James Wade to the honoree and her guests, who were: Mrs. B. L. Jones, Mrs. O. C. Roper, Mrs. Florence Wilbanks, Mrs. Will Hayes, Mrs. W. A. Reynolds, Mrs. Mark Tucker and Mrs. John Marlow.

Homemakers Class Enjoys Spend-The-Day—

Friday of last week was a day not to be forgotten soon by thirty-nine regular and honorary members of the Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church, when they gathered at the summer home of Mrs. J. Lee Smith on Bird Creek for a wonderful day of fellowship.

Some came with fishing poles. It was a perfect autumn day for any kind of outing.

After walking over the camp grounds and exploring the cottages which were so artistically bedecked with many odd pieces of drift wood and leaves from the woodlands in the glorius fall hues, the ladies enjoyed the day in a leisurely manner.

As the dinner bell rang out, and seemed to say "Come and enjoy the wonderful fried fish and hushpuppies furnished by your hostess, and indulge in the luscious salads, pies and cakes brought by you and your friends." After everyone had gathered around the long buffet table covered with red oil cloth and centered with an odd piece of drift wood, holding red and gold leaves, when Mrs. J. G. Hutchinson returned thanks in behalf of the group.

After the delicious dinner the afternoon was spent even more leisurely, with some of the ladies enjoying the boat rides up the river.

I feel sure this writer is speaking for all, when I say that each member present felt even closer to her Sunday School classmates when the day was over. We especially enjoyed having our honorary members and the two little girls with us.

"It is through fellowship we build friendship."

Birthday Surprise—

On Thursday of last week friends and neighbors of Miss Virginia Buckner surprised her with a birthday get-to-gether, her birthday being the following Sunday.

An hour of neighborly friendship was enjoyed as the guests sang Happy Birthday to Virginia and she opened the gift wrapped packages.

The group enjoyed Cokes and cookies as light refreshments.

Mrs. Lawrence Hostess To Club—

Mrs. C. O. Lawrence entertained members of the Tuesday afternoon Canasta Club at her home the past week.

Lovely arrangements of mixed early fall flowers adorned the rooms where the guests were assembled.

Players at the two tables were: Mesdames W. C. Nuss, Faust, J. W. Suit, Howard Fulford, B. F. Williams, J. W. McGinnis and Lawrence.

The hostess served party daiatiec and Cokes to her guests.

Mr. Thompson Honored—

Mr. John Thompson celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday on Sunday, Sept. 27, with the annual family reunion which was held at the home of his son, Mr. Jack Thompson, Clanton.

Jemison High Bounces Isabella Mustangs 20-12

The Jemison High School Panthers outpointed the Isabella Mustangs 20 to 12 last Friday night at Jemison.

Neither side was able to spring a scoring threat the first quarter. It was Isabella who drew first blood, however, the second quarter, when Hyman Raspberry, Isabella's hustling quarter-back, blocked a punt on Jemison's 18 yard line, and right tackle Frank Owen covered the ball behind Jemison's goal line. A line bucking play failed to produce the extra point.

The Panthers continued their sluggish play and the half ended with the Mustangs leading 6-0. The second half was a far different story as the Panthers came back with fire and fury. They received the ball on their own 21 yard line and in a sustained drive of four plays, Douglas Cleckler, right half-back for Jemison, plowed through a stubborn line for nine yards and over for the lcoals first touch down. Don Price left half-back then lunged across putting the Panthers in front 7 to 6.

It was Douglas Cleckler again in the early part of the fourth quarter that kept the pot popping, when he intercepted a long pass and ran yards for Jemison's second touchdown. They failed to cash in on the extra point try.

With the scoreboard reading now 13 to 6, the Isabella boys cut loose with a deluge of passes that brought them down to Jemison's eight yard line. Isabella's little left half, James nor, zipped straight through Jemison's line to pull within one point of a tie, 13 to 12. With this situation existing Isabella's quarter-back drew back and fired a perfect pass to his receiver who was awaiting four feet behind the Jemison line, only to have him drop the ball.

With only three minutes left to play, Jemison received a long punt. It was Glenn Marcus, Jemison's quarter-back, who took the ball, brother, he took it! With well-nigh perfect down-field blocking, Marcus receiving on the Jemison hugged the leather 65 yards for the locals TD Number 3. Marcus followed this off by kicking a perfect one pointed right between the posts for the final 20 to 12 margin.

For this victory we must give much credit to Jemison's injured little quarter-back, Wayne Guin. Due to his severe shoulder injury he did not even dress out for the game, but after watching his mates fumble and muff their plays he simply couldn't stand it, so dashing away to the dressing room, he soon returned and managed to get in the game the last half. With his encouraging words and steadying influence the J.H.S. boys settled down and began to saw wood, like wood ought to be sawed.

John Cannady, Tommie Martin, Douglas Fortner, Ronnie Shaw, Jerry Conway, Bobby Jones, Robert Gulyer, Earl Ellison, Wayne Mathews, Johnnie Gentry, and Johnny Ogburn were the shining lights in Jemison's line that last half.

The visitors simply could not dent it to any extent, until they began uncorking a volley of passes that almost spelled trouble. This was by far the best passing attack the Jemison team ever had flung at 'em.

Jemison lost 70 yards through penalties, against Isabella's 50. J.H.S. made 13 first downs against Isabella's nine.

The Jemison Panthers go to Calera tomorrow afternoon (Friday) to meet the Calera High School team.

PREPARE TO CONTROL PEACH TREE BORERS

In Alabama the peach tree borer causes more damage to peach and plum trees than any other insect pests.

The worm stage of this insect feeds on the cambium layer of the growing tissue just under the outer bark of peach and plum trees. And young trees may be completely girdled and killed within the first or second year after they have been set in the orchard.

The way to prevent serious damage to peach trees that have not been sprayed during the summer months with DDT or parathion is to treat them with paradichlorobenzine in October. In the northern half of the state treat trees the first two weeks in October. In Central and South Alabama treat trees the latter part of October.

SEED BEDS

Firming seed beds are especially important at this time of year. If plants do not come up to a good stand, replant the skips until a good stand is obtained.

Thorsby-Jemison Lions Annual Night A Success

The T-J Lions Club held their first Anniversary night last Thursday at Jemison. Thirty-six Lions with their wives and guests were present, making a total of 55 present.

A fine supper was served by the Jemison Home Demonstration Club.

Lion Lewis M. Askew, our District Governor, was the principal guest speaker. Lion Askew brought a fine message on the origin, purposes and objectives of Lionism—emphasizing the qualities it takes to make a good Lion.

Lion R. L. Scott, our Deputy District Governor also delivered a series of fine thoughts on the responsibilities of a true Lion. Lion Scott then presented four canes to individuals whose sight limitations qualify them to receive same.

The recipients of the canes were Mrs. Ray, Mrs. Glass, Mr. Price and James Mahafferty, (colored).

This part of our program was very touching to all in attendance, for this is only one of the worthy contributions which the T-J Club has made during its first year of existance.

Lion Archie Ogburn, past president, presided over the meeting. At the request of our present president, Lion Fred Smith, who was suffering from a severe cold.

The following were among the guests in attendance: Lion D. Elliott and wife, president, Montevallo Lions Club, Montevallo, Ala.; Lion Lee A. Barkley and wife, Montevallo; Lion M. C. Sutley and wife, Clanton, Ala.; Lion R. L. Scott and wife, Clanton, Ala.; Lion Lewis M. Askew and wife, Alex City, Ala.; Lion Nabors and wife, Alex City, Ala.; Lion B. L. MORE SOD WATERWAYS FOR ALABAMA FARMS

During heavy rains more water falls on cropland than it can absorb, even where good terraces, contour farming, and crop rotations are used.

S. R. Doughty, API soil conservationist, says this surplus run-off must flow from the farm through some kind of waterway. And unless a safe waterway is provided, serious damage from erosion will result.

Doughty adds that it is generally easiest and cheapest to use bottoms of natural draws or depressions for sod waterways.

HIGH-QUALITY COTTON PRODUCED IN ALABAMA

Alabama farmers and ginners are doing an excellent job in harvesting, handling, and ginning the 1952 cotton crop, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture cotton quality reports.

Nearly 68 per cent of the cotton ginned through September 1 was "middling" or higher in grade. And only one per cent of the bales ginned were reduced in grade by rough preparation. Staple lengths one inch and longer made up over [illegible] per cent of the ginnings in Alabama.

Good grades and staple lengths mean added income to the grower. Therefore, farmers are urged to pick cotton clean and carry it to the gin dry. Many farmers have been observed picking cotton and piling it on sheets to dry. This is a good practice, especially when cotton is damp with dew or rain. Sheets are made of used burlap or cotton bags sewn togteter."

Procter

and Ernie,
the Hamburger
King

Procter & Gamble is the biggest advertiser in America.

Last year they spent over $18,000,000 in radio. Like the National Biscuit Company, Liggett & Myers and many other of America's largest advertisers, they invested more money in radio than in any other medium. Ernie, the Hamburger King, of 118 Pike Street, Seattle, is one of the smaller advertisers in America.

Last year Ernie spent approximately $7,000 in radio. Like countless other local merchants from coast to coast, he invested more money in radio than in any other medium.

Sales results? P&G had the biggest year in its history. So did Ernie. (In fact, Ernie's sales climbed to an average of 1,200 hamburgers a day.) The truth is that at both the national and local level, radio offers economy and flexibility that no other medium can touch.

And do you realize how much the radio-listening population has grown? Today there are 105,300,000 radio sets in the U. S. A. Virtually every home is a radio home—and over half of them have two or more sets.

The average American now spends more time with radio than with magazines, TV and newspapers combined.

Beyond question, the smartest buys in all advertising are being made in radio. And they're being made right now.

CHILTON COUNTY TIGERS STEAM ROLL MONTEVALLO

(By Hal Smyer)

The undefeated fighting Tigers of Chilton County High defeated Montevallo High to the tune of 46 to 6 last Friday night. The Tigers speed proved too much for the Bulldogs to cope with.

Captains Bill Smith and Corky Oaks won the toss of the coin, and Clanton elected to receive-defending the west goal. Oaks received the initial kickoff on the 12 yard line and scatted to the 32 before being brought to the turf. Nedford Williams then picked up enough yardage for the first down. Earl Smith next took off and cruised to the enemy 33. Oaks ripped off two and Roy Mims next faded to pass, found no receivers open, reversed his field and raced down the sideline all the way" for the Tigers first score. The "educated toe" of Joe Ellison sent the pigskin through the uprights and Clanton was in the lead, 7 to 0. Smith's kickoff was returned from the 10 to the 20; and after the opponents advanced the ball to their 39, Delmus Anthony faded to pass and shot an aerial over the center, which was snagged by Captain Smith of the Tigers. Ed Littlejohn, on an end-around play, and Williams, on two nice sprnits, lugged the pigskin to the opponents 22, where possession was lost via downs.

Montevallo and Anthony's passes did not click too well and the first quarter ended with Don Askins throwing the ball carrier for a three yard loss on the 27. Montevallo was forced to punt, and the ball was downed on the Tiger 39. Two line plays failed and on third down, in deep punt formation, Mims attempted to pass and fumbled, the visitors pouncing on the ball on the 21. Capt. Smith haulted any foreseen threat of the opponents by intercepting Anthony's aerial on the 20. Oaks next dove through for three and on the next play Askins took off like a streak of lightning, showed a nice change of pace in picking up downfield blockers, shifted into "overdrive" and cruised 77 yards to pay dirt.

Clanton's line did some beautiful down-field blocking. Joe's toe came through and Clanton was ahead 14 to 0. Smith's kickoff of 48 yards was returned to the 21. Jimmy Harrell picked up a first down on an end-around jaunt, but to no avail as two plays later Anthony fumbled and Clanton recovered on the opponents 32. Williams, Richard Caton and Mims advanced the pigskin to the seven yard line with the very capable aid of the forward wall. On the next play the forward wall opened a hole in the middle of Montevallo's line large enough to drive a truck through and Caton shot through across the double stripe for the third TD. Ellison's conversion was good—score 21 to 0. Two plays later after the kickoff, Caton intercepted a pass on the visitors 30 yard line as the first half ended.

Smith kicked 50 yards to Earl McNeil in getting the third period underway. McNeil returned the kickoff to his 32; Louie Reach lost six yards on an attempted end-around play; Anthony could not hit his targets with passes; and McNeil punted to Clanton's 47. The very next play brought the spectators to their feet as Don Askins reversed the field twice and outsprinted Mickey Lovelady 53 yards to the end zone. Joe's toe worked like well oiled machinery and the Bulldogs trailed—0 to 28.

The next kickoff covered 52 yards but McNeil returned to the 27. Earl Smith was injured on the next play as he dove and deflected a southpaw pass from the waiting arms of a Bulldog receiver, which if completed, would have been a sure touchdown for the visitors. The Tiger line held and the Bulldogs punted to Williams on the Tiger 40 yard line; Nedford galloped 21 yards before being tackled. Askins and Williams, behind good blocking, carried the ball to the 15. Littlejohn swept wide on an end-around and went over the goal line standing up. Ellison's attempted conversion was wide by inches and the Tigers jogged up the field on the long end of the score 34 to 0.

Clanton's kickoff went out of bounds and the ball was put in play on the opponents 40. Oaks intercepted a Bulldog pass on the mid-field stripe and nearly got away for a TD before being haulted at the Bulldogs 21. Speedy Nedford Williams displayed some crafty broken-field running in taking the ball to the three yard line. Littlejohn scored again from the 3 on the end-around reverse. Joe's place kick was blocked — score Tigers 40; Bulldogs 0. The third period ended after Anthony completed one of three passes attempted. The Bulldogs were forced to punt and after a first down was picked up by Caton on the Bulldogs 49, Williams, with the aid of a key block, scored the Tigers 7th touchdown. The place kick was wide of the uprights.

Coach Spicer then sent in most of his second team. The Bulldogs received the final Tiger kickoff on their 20 and marched 80 yards in 15 plays to their lone score; Anthony scoring from the one yard line on a quarterback sneak. Smitherman's try for extra point was wide. The ball game ended five plays later when Joe Ellison punted the only Tiger punt of the game.

The Tiger team immediately rushed to the sideline and hoisted deserving Coach Spicer to its shoulders and paraded him down the gridiron.

Don Askins was top ground gainer with 141 net yards, with an average of 23½ yards per try. Nedford Williams ranked second with 136 net yards gained, with an average of 12.3 yards per trip.

The growth of mining and manufacturing and the building of railroads were the outstanding developments in Alabama's economic history between 1880 and 1900. Coal was being mined in Alabama at a lower cost than in any other state, and iron ore was being produced at 82 cents per ton, as compared to $1.10 in Pennsylvania.

PRODUCE MORE MILK, MAKE HIGHER PROFITS

Since sale of milk brings in the bulk of dairy income, practices that will help increase milk production are important.

Some of the practices include breeding cows to freshen in the fall when most milk is needed; breeding cows to bulls that transmit high milk and butterfat production characteristics; waiting at least 60 days after calving to breed cows again; adjusting grain feeding to pasture conditions and the individual cow's production, and feednig cows all the roughage they will eat in the form of pasture, hay, or sileage, or a combination of these feeds.

Between 1885 and 1900, large lumber mills were erected along the railroads in all parts of Alabama, especially in the southern counties, with a daily capacity of 25,000 to 75,000 feet each. But there were some, such as that of the Black Warrior Lumber Company, Demopolis, the Seaboard Manufacturing Company at Fairford, and the Peters Lumber Company, at Alco, which sawed from 100,000 to 200,000 feet per day.

Be Careful

Eliminate Fire Hazards

DAMAGE to crops and livestock because of droughts, hail storms and other freak weather conditions is beyond our control—these are just some of the expected hazards of farming. But there are some farming hazards that can be prevented. For instance, fires and their dreadful aftermath of destruction and property loss can be reduced.

As we observe National Fire Prevention Week, October 5-11, it is a good time to look around for the fire hazards that could wreck your security and cause far more damage than you probably suffered from this past summer's drought.

Faulty wiring, accumulations of trash, careless smoking habits, and improper storage of gasoline and kerosene are all major fire hazards. And yet, these potential barn and home burners can be found on almost every farm.

It takes a little time and trouble to correct or prevent these hazards—but think how much more trouble it would be to start over after a burn-out.

Don't overlook the job of harvesting all of the seed possible from your sericea fields. This year's drought in the Southeast has proven the crop to be one of our best pasture plants for the poorer upland areas and it is expected that the demand for seed next spring will be good.

WELL DRESSED FOR SCHOOL—With school back in session, Nellie Fay Gibbs, right, of Ranburne, is beginning to get the benefits from her summer sewing work. The 12-year-old Cleburne County 4-H'er has made a number of dresses, three skirts, five blouses, and a number of undergarments which are coming in handy now that it takes a freshly starched outfit for school each day. Shown here giving Nellie Fay a few tips on sewing is Assistant Home Agent Mary Lynn Smith.

What's The Story On Rescue Grass

MORE and more farmers are beginning to ask questions about rescue grass. Where does it fit in the grazing program? And how does it stand up against diseases? These are two of the most frequently asked questions. In answering these queries API Extension Agronomist J. C. Lowery points out that the grass has not been under tests at the Experiment stations long enough for substantial recommendations to be made. However, rescue appears promising for use in crimson clover-grass mixtures for winter grazing. But rescue also shows susceptibility to a number of diseases just as do most other grasses.

For livestockmen who want to try this grass, Lowery recommends that it be planted on a small scale in combination with crimson clover. And those who are interested in planting large acreages might first plant a small patch and save their own seed. Like most new grasses and clovers that come on the market, rescue seed is selling at extremely high prices.

Kirk's Grove Club Wins State Contest Award

THE winner in the 1952 Alabama "Club of the Year" contest sponsored by the Farm Bureau Mutual and Casualty Insurance Company is the Kirk's Grove Home Demonstration Club of Cherokee County.

At the beginning of the year, the 30 members of the Kirk's Grove Club began their work year with five broad objectives which they wished to achieve. These goals, covering every phase of home and community life, have been the target for the group's work throughout the year.

Under the leadership of Mrs. O. B. Wilson, club president, the Kirk's Grove Club has grown in both membership and activities. Ten new members have been added to the club's roster. Average attendance for the year has been 35 members. Rural youth work has been a major project for the club. And 90 per cent of the club women and their families belong to the County Farm Bureau. Each of the club's objective chairmen has worked tirelessly at her appointed task, and Mrs. Claude Davis, vice president, and Mrs. P. A. Flynt, secretary-treasurer, have been on the job continuously.

Perhaps the most outstanding project of the club was the building of a new community club house. The decision to build was made on Jan. 8, and by Jan. 11, the building site was leveled and actual construction was underway. Six weeks later the club house was completed. Quick action might well be the motto of this Cherokee County club.

District winners in the state contest were Capps Home Demonstration Club, Henry County; Saks Club, Calhoun County, and Brewer Heights Civic Club, Montgomery County.

The first place club received a $100 prize and each of the district winners received $25 awards. In addition, Mrs. O. B. Wilson received an expense paid trip to the state Farm Bureau Convention at Auburn.

Save Money--Save Your Hogs

How To Keep Swine Diseases Off Of Your Farm

By G. B. PHILLIPS
API Extension Hog Specialist

AS human population becomes more congested, disease problems multiply. As hog numbers on Alabama farms increase, danger from swine disease losses is increased.

In the last decade or so, dollar value of market hog production has increased twentyfold in this state. The time is here when livestock growers who produce pork must become more disease conscious; must quit considering swine diseases as a haphazard problem. Few hog diseases can be cured, but most of them can be prevented.

Follow these suggestions and your swine disease risk will be very small.

Raise your own clean, thrifty pigs. Buying feeder pigs through public stockyards is always dangerous because pigs pick up disease germs so readily. If you must purchase feeders, buy them from a known clean source; always isolate them from other hogs on the farm for thirty days.

Keep pigs healthy by good feeding. Pigs—like people—can resist disease better when their systems are strong and vigorous. Feed balanced rations, including protein supplement and mineral mixture; make full use of green grazing.

Keep all pigs and hogs well housed. This does not mean expensive buildings. Simple shelter to protect them from cold, sleety rains will help prevent costly attacks of colds, flu, and pneumonia. Avoid overcrowding, night piling, and dusty, or wet sleeping quarters.

Farrow pigs on clean, green ground. Green grazing on land that has been turned and planted since hogs last used it is the best place for your pigs. Keep them on green grazing until four months old, or better still, until they go to market. This will help prevent parasites, save feed, and promote health.

Keep all animals off old, marshy, undrained areas. Water might be handy but parasites and disease breed and multiply in such places.

Follow a regular vaccination program. Treat all pigs against cholera at two weeks after weaning and treat brood stock once a year. Don't consider vaccination a rainy day job—do it regularly. No farmer having one brood sow, raising two good litters a year, can afford to risk cholera without vaccinating.

Be alert for Brucellosis. If a sow that has been fed properly and has not been hurt, slips pigs, be suspicious of this disease and have a blood test made. It's spread mostly by the boar. Don't use an unknown, untested boar and remember it's usually cheaper to give a neighbor a boar than to let him use yours. Never buy breeding stock except from breeders who can supply clean health certificates.

Fight parasites constantly. Use clean, green ground and sodium chloride for internal parasites and DDT, Lindane, or BHC for the external pests. They'll steal your feed and profits and weaken animals so disease can take hold.

Stay away from sick animals on other farms. Always keep contaminated livestock trucks, trucks that have been used for hauling commercial livestock, out of your lots and pastures.

Three Vital Factors

Grazing, Management, Breeding, Make Dairying Profitable

WHEN eight milk cows bring a monthly check of $200, dairying becomes mighty interesting to most farm families.

This is what Mr. and Mrs. Roy Strain are telling their friends in Randolph County. But, they add that checks of this size are possible only if herd owners are willing to work for them.

Citing their own experiences, they point out that their first job was to work out a pasture program to furnish grazing the year around. That was no small undertaking, but it was the job that has played the biggest role in their success.

Because the Strains put in plenty of hard, long days in getting what they needed in the way of pastures, their cows today aren't feeling the effects of the drouth. Their pasture system includes crops for every season. The rolling pastures are covered with orchard grass, fescue, Ladino clover, alfalfa, sericea, and kudzu. And for winter grazing they fallow land in late summer and seed it to crimson clover and ryegrass. Alfalfa, oats, and sericea are used for hay. With this pasture program producing all the time, Strain feels sure his grazing problems are solved.

But problems of a good breeding program are always with him, just as they are with all other dairymen. He solves these the easy way, too. He depends altogether on artificial breeding—and has had good luck.

With this type breeding, he can control the time when the calves are dropped. Strain believes that calves grow better during the cooler months. The heifer calves are taken off the cows when they are one month old. At this time they are fed grain, hay, and water, along with a commercial feed. Strain says that this does not stunt the calves' growth, but will make good, rugged milk cows to help those milk checks keep rolling in.

TALL MAN—TALL CORN—Six-foot six-inch Monroe County Agent A. V. Culpepper has a hard time reaching some of the ears of corn in this field on the farm of L. B. Mitchell of Frisco City, Rt. 1. Culpepper predicts that the farmer will gather between 40 and 50 bushels per acre from this 70-acre field of Dixie 18 hybrid corn. Mitchell used 400 pounds of 4-10-7 fertilizer under the crop and side dressed with 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate per acre. The difference in this field of tall corn and that of most farmers is a little bit of water. Mitchell's corn received several showers while most of the state's corn was twisting under the effects of the long summer drought.

with
P. O. DAVIS
DIRECTOR, API EXTENSION SERVICE

THE day before this is being written newspapers carried a story with this lead: "Mid-August retail food prices, reports the government's Bureau of Labor Statistics, were the highest in U. S. history."

The story added that food prices are now about 16 per cent higher than when the Korean War began in June, 1950.

Perhaps the non-farm reader of this story said to himself that farmers are getting rich. But farmers are not getting rich. In fact, they've had no increase in net income in recent years. Their gross has increased some but their expenses have increased more, thereby leaving them no net gain.

Thus the food story may be misleading in that it tells only one side of the story. It is true that food prices are up in terms of money, but in terms of non-farm income they are down. The average industrial worker can now buy enough food for his family for a smaller portion of his income than at any other time in a number of years.

This is due to the fact that non-farm wages have increased faster than food prices. Evidence of this is the fact that the average U. S. industrial wage is now about $1.50 per hour. Twelve years ago (1940) it was $1.00 an hour. In 1900, or half a century ago, it was 27 cents per hour; and in 1850, a century ago, it was 7½ cents per hour.

Let me remind you that I'm not critical of higher wages. I'm strong for high wages for all who do good work and thereby earn them. This is fair and right for everybody.

The main point I'm emphasizing is that farmers are not getting too much. In fact, they're getting too little in relation to others.

This reminds us of another important fact about farmers. It is that fewer people on the farm continue to increase production of farm products.

For a decade or more farm population in the U. S. has declined at a daily average of 1,000 people; but the total population has gained 7,000 daily.

This means, in brief, that each morning there are 7,000 more people to be fed at breakfast than the day before. It means also that there are 1,000 fewer people on farms to produce this food.

The farm populaton of this nation has declined to about 15 per cent. Secretary Brannan said that only 13 of each 100 U. S. workers in 1951 were working on farms. But more and better equipment, more and better fertilizer, improved varieties of plants and better animals, all coupled with more and better "knowhow," enable farmers to continue increasing their production.

This "knowhow" is, in my judgment, of top concern. It is why county agents continue to be of such high importance because they are constantly presenting to farmers basic facts about how to improve their operations in every way and to cut costs.

Another important fact is that since farmers are a small minority and getting smaller, they need to keep themselves well organized and working closely together in behalf of their mutual welfare. The value of farmer organization begins at the community level and moves up through the county, the state, and throughout the Nation.

While I'm fully aware of the high value of the national farm program—which has been sponsored from its beginning by the American Farm Bureau—I'm fully aware, also, of the high importance of action at the local LEFT—Paul Allums, Dora, Rt. 1, poultryman, opens a floor level ventilator on one of the Allums brothers laying houses. Keeping the houses well ventilated is an important phase of any poultry operation. Half of all wall space in the house is used for ventilation.

CENTER—Paul Allums shows the method used to insulate the roof of his poultry house against extreme heat and cold. Four inches of shavings are held against the roof by building paper and poultry netting. The layer of shavings helps to keep out excess heat during the summer months and helps to hold the heat in and prevents the metal roof from sweating during the winter.

RIGHT—Careful handling of eggs from nest to consumer does much to determine egg quality. Maintaining high quality on the Allums farm is accomplished by gathering the eggs twice daily in wire baskets and storing them in a cool, clean concrete block egg room. Paul Allums is shown here sorting the eggs for a biweekly shipment to market. Watching the process is his young son, Jerry.

St. Clair Farmers Test Fertilizer Practices on Whole Farm Scale

A complete fertilizer program for the whole farm is a project that several St. Clair County farmers are undertaking this year.

Working with County Agent H. L. Eubanks, these farmers are following recommendations throughout their farming operations. Potash, lime, nitrogen and phosphate are being used in the demonstrations to carry out a balanced fertilizer program on each farm. Records will be kept on receipts and expenses as well as on the fertilizer and crop results.

Farmers taking part in the program are Dwight Blair, Odenville; J. H. Hardwick, Pell City; Glen Murphree and Willie and Ella Steinkopf, Ashville, and M. L. Wright, Ragland.

As results from these farms become available County Agent Eubanks says they will be released for the benefit of all farmers in the area.

Jefferson County Brothers Grow Into Large Scale Commercial Egg Business

J. D. ALLUMS and his son, Paul, have come a long way since they started in the poultry business fifteen years ago.

The Dora, Rt. 1, poultrymen started with 500 laying hens and 1,000 broilers as a means of adding extra income to their general farm operation. But after keeping careful records on their operations they soon found that their hens were more profitable than their broilers so they doubled the size of their laying flock and dropped the broiler project.

J. D. Allums, Jr., became a partner in the farm operation five years ago and J. D., Sr., retired from the poultry business. J. D., Jr., took over the general farm work and Paul cared for the laying flock which had been increased to 2,000 birds. But carefully kept records soon indicated that the brothers needed to change their farming system. They found that their laying hens were paying more per hour for their labor than other farm operations, so the laying flock was again increased, this time to between 4,000 and 5,000 birds. The row crop land has been converted to pasture and J. D., Jr., and Paul are both in the poultry business now.

Poultry houses on the Allums' farm have been carefully planned to protect the birds from heat in summer and extreme cold in winter. Each of the 200 by 20 foot houses is divided into 50-foot pens. Ventilation is provided at the top of the wall and at floor level so that in summer 50 per cent of the wall space is open. The roof is insulated with four inches of shavings under a metal roof to cut down heat in summer and prevent condensation in winter.

Automatic waterers are used in all laying and growing pens and feed rooms are constructed every 100 feet to cut down on travel distance in feeding.

The Allums plan their business so that over 50 per cent of the eggs are sold during the fall and winter months when eggs are at peak prices. Paul says this is done by starting the main crop of pullets during December. This way the pullets are in good production and eggs are full size by late July or August. The pullets reach a peak of 85 to 90 per cent production about October, and they usually stay above 70 per cent during the remainder of the year. Additional pullets are sometimes started in July to replace birds culled during the winter.

Paul and J. D., Jr., use lights throughout the winter and if extreme cold weather or a slight cold or other trouble causes a slump in production, they also start pellet feeding to keep feed consumption at a high level. The Allums' feeding system is simple. They keep a 20 per cent mash before the birds at all times. In winter they feed all the corn and oats the birds will clean up in the afternoon. In summer they feed only oats in addition to the 20 per cent mash.

The Allums sell their eggs to cafes in Birmingham. They grade their eggs carefully into two sizes, and cool them in wire baskets in a concrete block egg room before packing them in cases.

The Allums have found by experience that a successful laying flock depends on the growing of strong, high-quality pullets. At present they are using about 4,000 in-bred cross pullets and 1,000 Auburn Strain Leghorns. Their pullets are grown in clean houses that are isolated from the old birds. The pullets are put on a clean range when they are eight to 10 weeks old and stay there until they are ready to go into the laying house.

level where neighbors meet, think, talk, and act together on their local problems, most of which are also national problems.

As farmers decline in numbers and other people increase in numbers each farmer becomes more important to non-farm people, because more people depend upon him for food and fiber.

And more people depend, also, upon the average farmer as a market for merchandise, including equipment and supplies for operating the farm as well as the farm home.

While farmers have not gained in net income in recent years all indications point to a growing opportunity for the farmer to produce more products and sell them. For farmers who are efficient in production, this means increasing success, provided prices for selling and buying are in line, or on a level fair to all.

Co-Op Market Succeeds

Dream Comes Through For Monroe Farmers

FRISCO CITY boasts of a million dollar agricultural industry that little more than three years ago was just a dream in the minds of Monroe County farmers. This dream is a thriving co-op market which farmers have organized, financed, and supported.

Like most of the markets that have sprung up in the last few years, the Farmers Cooperative Market at Frisco City is an outgrowth of the livestock expansion program in Southwest Alabama. But unlike many of the markets, this one serves row crop farmers as well as the producers of hogs and cattle.

The Frisco Co-op was organized in 1949 when farmers subscribed for $10,000 worth of preferred stock, and the first livestock sale was held on August 31 of that year. Although livestock marketing was the primary purpose of the co-op, this is not the only function of the organization. The directors soon added a seed, feed, and fertilizer unit to the business and this enterprise has been growing steadily. Later, they authorized the purchase of a $4,000 cotton seed reginning plant which was used by many Monroe cotton producers this past spring.

Monroe County Agent A. V. Culpepper describes the co-op as an excellent example of farmer cooperation at work. During the three years since the business was organized, the co-op has retired most of the preferred stock, and total sales have shown a big increase each year.

In 1951-52 the organization did over a million dollars worth of business. Manager Charles Grant says almost three-fourths of this was made up of hog sales and $250,000 worth of supplies were sold. This was $80,000 above the total sales of feed, seed, and fertilizer for the previous year.

Officials of the Frisco City co-op are especially proud of the fact that their farmer owned business is providing producers with a good market for their hogs and cattle. P. T. Norris, Uriah, president of the board of directors of the co-op, says, "Farmers in this area are confident that they can get good prices for their livestock here because there is always competitive bidding. We almost always have three outside buyers and sometimes more than that."

The livestock sale is held every Wednesday. And there is usually a crowd of trucks surrounding the big auction barn. Manager Grant says the co-op handles the livestock on a straight commission basis. And the farmer who sells livestock at the auction gets quick and efficient service from the well organized business office at the stockyards.

Although the hog embargo and generally poor grazing conditions for the past few months have both had an effect on livestock sales, officials expect total sales for the year to reach a new high. And that also means a new high in cooperation among Monroe County farmers who have found that they can help themselves by helping each other.

Rock Creek Club Women Spark Community Blood Donor Drive

HOME demonstration women in the Rock Creek community have gone all out for civil defense.

They recently sponsored a visit of the Red Cross mobile unit to their community in Jefferson County. Under the leadership of Mrs. O. J. Parsons, club president, and Mrs. Irene Crowder, defense chairman, the women canvassed their neighborhood and the surrounding areas to advertise the project and encourage donors.

Their efforts were rewarded when 57 men and women met at the appointed time to offer their blood for the defense program.

Not Enough For Bugs-And Livestock

Protect Stored Grain

By W. A. RUFFIN
API Extension Entomologist

THE supply of corn and other grains in Alabama will be extremely short this fall. It is important, therefore, that farmers do everything possible to protect what grain they do have from insect damage.

Damage to corn in storage is done by a number of different insects. The rice weevil, which is a black snout beetle about 1/16 of an inch long, causes the most damage to stored corn. The rice weevil migrates from corn cribs or other storage space in late summer to infest nearby corn fields. It will attack corn in the field anytime after the grains begin to harden. These insects cannot get into ears of corn that have a good, tight shuck covering, providing worms have not eaten holes in this shuck while the ear was developing.

One of the most important steps in protecting corn from weevil damage is to harvest the crop as soon as the grain is dry enough to be stored. Cribs or other storage facilities used for storing the new crop should be thoroughly cleaned, and the floors, walls, and ceilings should be sprayed with 2½ per cent DDT. The DDT spray can be made by adding one pound of 50 per cent wettable DDT to four gallons of water.

After the storage facility has been thoroughly cleaned and sprayed, it is then ready to receive the new crop of corn. Where corn is stored in the shuck and any appreciable number of weevils are found present in the ears, it should be fumigated within about two weeks after it is placed in storage. The best fumigant for the control of weevils and other insects is a mixture containing 20 per cent carbon disulphide and 80 per cent carbon tetrachloride. This mixture should be poured over the top of a pile of corn at the rate of four to six gallons for each thousand cubic feet of space to be treated. A thousand cubic feet of space will hold about 250 bushels of ear corn.

For fumigation to be effective, the crib must be air-tight. Walls and floors can be made tight by covering them with 15-pound asphalt felt. The felt can be bought at any local hardware or building supplies store.

To get the best results when fumigating, the temperature must be around 70° F. during the day. All windows and doors should be closed tightly when treating the corn. Chemicals used in fumigation should be kept in the crib for about three days. After this time, all doors and windows should be opened so that the fumes given off can escape from the building. Within one day after the crib has been opened, it is perfectly safe to enter the crib and the corn can be used for food or feed.

Pyrenone grain protectant has been highly advertised for the control of weevils in corn and other grains in storage. Pyrenone is a mixture of pyrethrins and piperonyl butoxide. These chemicals are nonpoisonous and will effectively protect uninfested shelled corn or other grains from weevil damage for a number of months. However, tests in Alabama have shown that these chemicals are not effective in preventing weevil damage to corn that is stored in the shuck.

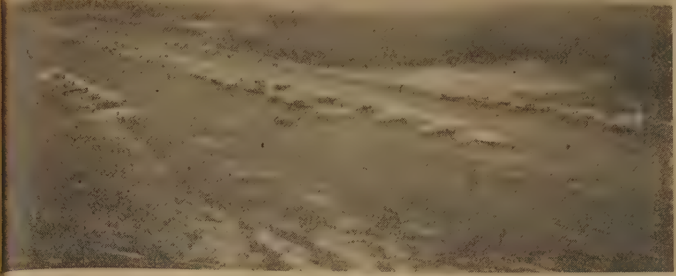
Tractors are used for digging peanuts by about 75 per cent of Alabama's peanut farmers. Only 44 per cent use mechanical shakers. Considerably more power machinery could be used by farmers who dig peanuts with tractors and shake by hand.



GONE TO ROOST—These are some of the metal, canvas, and part wood mechanical birds that took up emporary roosting quarters at the Auburn-Opelika Airport when the National Flying Farmers buzzed into uburn for their annual convention, August 27-29. On hand for the meeting were some 600 flying farmers ho flew to Auburn from 36 states. Airport officials were quite justifiably proud of their record of no acidents because more than 250 light planes used the field during the week.

Flying Farmers Roar In For National Meeting

THE roar of many motors announced the arrival in Auburn of over 200 airplanes ate in August as the National Flying Farmrs Association converged on the city for heir seventh annual convention.

Serving as hosts for the group of over 500 armers were the Alabama Flying Farmers ssociation and Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

At their three-day conclave, Aug. 27-30, he pilot-farmers who had flown in from 36 tates compared notes on their airplane farmg techniques and discussed the problems f their unique group. And they enjoyed arbecue and an unusual "earth roast" prepared Southern style. Special entertainment or the convention was furnished by talented -H Club and FFA members from over the tate.

General chairman for the meeting was L. . Smith of LaFayette, who was ably suported by W. A. Womack, Ashford, state resident, and other members of the Alabama ssociation.

Officers elected to head the National Asociation for the coming year are E. M. Anerson, Medina, Texas, president; Lee Tallaay, Milan, Mich., vice president; Fred Triptt, Hillboro, Texas, secretary, and D. G. Mcarty, Idaho Falls, Idaho, treasurer.

The 1953 meeting will be held at Wichita, ansas, at which time the National Flying armers will dedicate their home office buildg which is now under construction.

Save Replacement Heifers

EVERY Alabama cattleman should save the best 20 per cent of his heifers to take e place of cows that will go out of producon for one reason or another.

The Black Belt Substation has been followg this practice since 1928. With this sysm they have built up a herd of brood cows at produce top calves.

During the period of 1948 through 1951, 7 cows were culled from the station herd. hese cows weighed an average of 1,099 ounds and brought $216.48 each for beef. his is much more than common cows, picked p as replacements, would have brought. And is also more than these cows would have rought if they had been sold when they ere heifers.

Costly Forest Fire

NEARLY two-thirds of Alabama is forest land which is producing the raw materials for a 450 million dollar industry.

Every year forest fires rage over certain sections of these woodlands. And the threat of fire hovers over all the forest areas. Such fires do much to keep our timber industries from expanding. Fire is the outstanding "bogey man" in the management of our forests. Without complete fire protection woodland management comes to a standstill. One fire can make all plans and inventories on that land worthless.

Timber land is valuable property. Many Alabama acres are worth $200 to $400 in timber alone, not counting bare land value. Fire in the woods can cost much more than the price of a house or barn. Protect woodlands from fire and they will produce sufficient income to build many houses.

October 5-11 is National Fire Prevention Week. Observe it. But remain conscious of forest fires and their damage the year 'round.

Flying Farmers Take A Wagon Ride

IN keeping with their main occupation of farming, officials of the National Flying Farmers Convention solved the transportation problem for their meeting in a novel way. As the planes landed at the Auburn-Opelika Airport, officials sent out their fleet of tractor-wagon conveyances to haul the incoming pilots and their baggage up to the airport administration building. Bringing in a load of out-of-state farmers at right is Miss Mary Elizabeth Gregory of Auburn. Mary Elizabeth and several other local girls served as "tractor pilots" during the convention. Much to their own surprise, the girls reported no airplane-wagon collisions. The tractors were furnished by Opelika Truck & Tractor Co.

Candied Yams Are Scarce

Prospects For Potatoes

By JOHN BAGBY
API Extension Horticulturist

THE U. S. sweetpotato crop for 1952 is estimated at 28.3 million bushels which is about the same as last year's crop. But this is only about one-half of the average production for the last 10 years and is expected to be the smallest crop in 70 years.

Prices for sweetpotatoes have been extremely high for the past year and there is every reason to believe that they will remain high throughout the present marketing season. There has been some decline in prices in recent weeks and this may be expected to continue through the fall harvest period—but this price should rise again.

Based on these facts it should be profitable for farmers to store all of the sound, edible potatoes they can for sale through the winter. Any reasonably tight building or room might be used satisfactorily for storage. It is best if some form of heat can be supplied for the first 10 days or two weeks after storing to cure the potatoes. The most important thing, however, is to not let the temperature of the potatoes get below 50 degrees.

In harvesting sweetpotatoes it is essential that every precaution be used to prevent bruising. Freshly dug potatoes bruise easily and bruises seriously detract from their appearance and even develop into decay. The best practice is to pick up the No. 1 and No. 2 potatoes in separate containers and store in different stacks in the house. This will save considerable labor when they are taken out and packed for market.

One reason for the short crop in Alabama this year was the scarcity of good seed and plants. The only way to maintain a good supply of disease free seed—those which have the desired interior and external color—is to make hill selections at digging time. Have someone follow the plow and select only hills which have at least three No. 1 sized potatoes. Examine these closely and discard any which show signs of disease or dark spots or which do not have a good copper skin color. These should then be nicked or cut off about one-half inch from the end to examine the flesh color. Save only those showing the desired salmon pink flesh color. Place these carefully in crates and store separately from potatoes which are to be sold for eating, preferably in a different room.

Certified seed sweetpotatoes will very likely bring a good price next spring and farmers having good seed might very profitably increase their acreage.

Your county agent can give you more detailed information on storing and selecting seed sweetpotatoes.

CATTLE SAVER—Farmer J. D. Vines, right, of Centre, Rt. 1, has already decided on one of the grazing crops he will grow for his dairy cattle next year. That crop is Sudan grass. Vines had 17 acres of Sudan this past summer and he says the crop supplied his herd of 19 cows with plenty of feed during the time when most cattle were going on short rations. Shown with the Cherokee County dairyman is Assistant County Agent Leo Calhoun.

Poultry Chain Profits

A Boy And His Chicks

A 4-H Club project that has been catching on in a big way in the state during the past several years is the poultry chain idea. This year alone over 35,000 chicks have been placed with club members in 35 counties.

The poultry chain is a simple plan. Each year 10 or more club members each receive 100 baby chicks. They grow the birds out and save them for a laying flock. In most cases the boys and girls exhibit some of their birds at a county show. Then they return enough of their pullets to the chain to pay for their chicks, or if they prefer, they can keep all of the birds and pay for their chicks.

While one project alone will not make a professional poultryman out of a farm youngster, the county poultry chain does give a group of 10 or more members a chance to learn how to grow out pullets and manage a small laying flock—to say nothing of the profit the youngsters can make.

Leon Trawick

One of the enthusiastic boys in the Baldwin County chain this year is 11-year-old Leon Trawick of the Stapleton 4-H Club. Leon received 100 chicks from the Sears, Roebuck & Co. chain and succeeded in raising 52 pullets. The cockerels were used for home consumption and some were sold to pay for replacing the chicks in the chain.

Leon keeps a close check on his flock and keeps them well fed on a balanced ration of mash and home grown grain. And he says the birds are responding to their good treatment. On several occasions he has gathered as many as 47 eggs from the 52 hens in one day. Leon markets the surplus eggs locally. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Trawick of Stapleton.

Other members of the Baldwin County 4-H Club Poultry Chain are Jack Flemming, William Manifold, Benny Biggs, David Bryars, Jane Flowers, Patsy Ann Rogillio, Patsy Robinson, Shirley Styron, and Evelyn Boothe.

More Milk Needed

The Outlook For Dairying

By PETE B. TURNHAM, Assistant Dairyman
API Extension Service

MILK production is the second largest farm business in America. Last year the national gross income from milk and its products was nearly five billion dollars. Without any question, dairy products play a big part in the total food supply of this country.

The size of the dairy industry is greatly affected by the growing appreciation of the nutritive value of milk and milk products. The demand is expected to increase steadily because milk products are cheap in relation to the nutrients received per quart and due to the increasing population.

Last year dairying played a big part in Alabama's farm program. It was the fifth largest source of farm returns amounting to around 70 million dollars in income and products consumed on the farm. Its future is unlimited here in the state.

Dairy farmers in Alabama, as well as in the nation as a whole, have a great challenge to meet the growing need for milk and milk products. In the six big links in the dairy chain—the farm, transportation system, processing plants, plant machinery and equipment, delivery men and consumers—farmers hold the balance of power. The farmer must keep the five other links in the chain going, for if he stops milking cows, business in the entire industry lags.

To help meet the challenge for a better dairy program in Alabama several factors loom as "musts." Without a good pasture program, dairy profits will not be high enough to assure a sound operation—feed in the form of pasture grasses and legumes is the cheapest source known. Research by the U. S. Bureau of Dairy Industry reveals that pasture can be used to replace a large portion of bought feed and at about one-fourth the cost per unit of feed.

Management also plays a big part in sound dairying. Cows go out and graze during the day, but it's up to the milker to get this milk night and morning. Not only that, but its also the milkers' job to see that the cow gets any additional feed she needs to balance her diet. It is here that a grain feeding table becomes important. High producers should get enough feed and low producers should not be over-fed.

Higher production per cow is another important factor. This can be obtained through a planned breeding program. With the growth of artificial breeding, dairymen now have the opportunity to breed cows to outstanding bulls and thus develop herds with higher levels of milk production. This method of breeding also offers a good way to prevent the spread of many diseases.

Opportunities for a sounder dairy program are unlimited. But the greatest challenge now, as always, is still in management, breeding and feeding. These three are the determining factors for successful expansion of the dairy industry.

LITTLE pigs need plenty of milk during their first eight weeks of life and they need more drinking water than most of them get. Baby pigs will usually begin drinking a little at five or six days if pans or vessels are low enough for them to reach.

TREATING peach trees for borers is a "must" for successful peach production. If the DDT treatment has not been used earlier, October is the time to apply Paradichlorobenzene, or Ethylene Dichloride or Propylene Dichloride Emulsion. It is important to follow directions carefully in order to avoid injury to the trees.

THE fall forest fire season will soon be here. Even though many more people are conscious of fire damage, we still have fires caused by carelessness or incendiarism. Nine out of ten fires can be prevented.

NINE to ten months grazing may be obtained on sericea areas by overseeding them with reseeding crimson clover. The clover should be planted on the sericea immediately after frost, when competition from sericea ends.

ALL stalks and other crop residues should be cut or disced down onto the ground as soon as harvesting is completed. This will help protect the soil from erosion and enable the stalks to decay. It will also help to control insect pests.

SELL your cotton on the basis of grade and staple length. Lending agencies will accept the green classing cards for making government loans. Keep up with market reports made through radio, newspapers, and the market news service to help you know the real market value of your cotton.

SAVE Dixie Runner peanut seed or arrange for certified seed of this variety for nex year's crop. Try to plant a winter legume o other fall seeded crop on every acre where peanuts are dug.

CONTINUE to plant oats for green grazing grain and hay. Complete the job durin October. Use certified seed or seed from well known reliable sources. This is a goo month in which to plant wheat. Whea planted in October usually will not be affected by the Hessian fly. Use the recommended amount of fertilizer and plant goo seed of a recommended variety.

ALL cattle should be thoroughly spraye with a spray containing DDT and BHC This spray will help control screwworms, ri the cattle of lice before cold weather sets i and protect them against other external parasites. Look at every animal three times week to see that screwworms do not caus damage, if screwworms are known to be i your county.

RECIPE FOR OCTOBER

WHEN Autumn days begin to come around we think of serving golden sweetpotatoes in many different ways. Sweetpotatoes are an excellent food—they contain vitamin A in large amounts. Something extra special in the way of potato dishes is grated sweetpotato pudding. Try this dish and you will agree that it's a taste pleasing, nutritious dessert.

GRATED SWEETPOTATO PUDDING

4 c. grated, raw sweetpotatoes
1 c. sorghum syrup
¾ c. milk
1 t. nutmeg
⅛ t. cloves
½ c. butter, melted
½ c. chopped nuts
⅛ t. salt
2 eggs, well beaten

Combine sweetpotatoes, syrup, milk, nutmeg, butter, cloves, nuts, and salt. Add eggs and pour into buttered shallow pan. Bake in a moderately hot oven (370° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. One-half cup sugar may be substituted for an equal amount of syrup.

Having on hand a good supply of high quality planting seed is one of the first steps toward growing a successful cotton crop in 1953. High quality seed of recommended cotton varieties are always in demand. Alabama farmers who planted breeder or certified seed this year should save all of the good seed possible for planting next year's crop and to sell to other people who will want good seed. Good cottonseed should be of a recommended variety, not over two years from the breeder and should germinate 80 per cent or more.

A New Kind Of Storage Pantry

Something new in the way of pantries is the trailer-pantry that the Batcheldors of Phenix City, Rt. 3, have built. They bought an old all-steel, van type trailer and towed it to their back yard where they placed it on a rock foundation. Next they built shelves along both sides and across the front end of the trailer. Mrs. J. C. Batcheldor, shown at left above, says the trailer makes an ideal storage place for canned goods and also for bulky vegetables such as potatoes. The pantry is ratproof and moisture proof. Shown with Mrs. J. C. Batcheldor is her mother-in-law, Mrs. C. L. Batcheldor. They are both members of the Crawford Home Demonstration Club.

BEATING THE DROUTH IN RANDOLPH—In their fight to offset drouth damage to crops, some Randolph County dairymen are filling silos with corn silage to feed cattle until fall-planted crops are ready for grazing. Above, on the farm of C. G. Marshall of Wadley, Rt. 1, neighbors watch as corn is fed into a silage cutter and blown into a temporary silo. County Agent Sam Jones predicts that silos are going to become extra popular as a means of storing feed at a low cost.

Ace In The Hole In Randolph

Dairymen Beat Feed Shortage With Silage

SILOS full of feed are the ace in the hole that a number of Randolph County farmers are depending on for feed this fall. They suffered from the drought just as their neighbors did, but their cattle have had plenty of good eating for the past month and will keep on getting plenty until fall crops are ready to graze.

To these farmers, silage means no sagging in milk checks—for all the silo owners are dairymen.

Silos are something fairly new for Randolph County, just as they are for many other areas of Alabama. Depending on good pasture systems to furnish year-around grazing for livestock, most farmers haven't been interested in building silos and filling them with silage.

That was well and good, as long as the grazing was plentiful and hay was saved. But in a year such as this one, when cattle and their owners alike have had to scramble for feed, silos packed with corn silage are awfully popular in this county.

Sam Jones, Randolph County agent, put it this way: "A full silo helps take the gamble out of dairy farming every year. And in a year like this one, it's a lifesaver."

Jones says that not more than a dozen farmers are using upright silos this year. However, after scores of dairymen see how well they pay off, the agent has little doubt but that there will be silos all over Randolph within another year or two.

Both temporary and permanent type silos are being built. C. G. Marshall of Wadley, Rt. 1, has a temporary one made of 11-gauge steel welded wire and rosin reinforced building paper. Materials for this silo, which measures 16 feet in diameter and 16 feet in height, cost $90. It holds about 60 tons of corn stalks cut by hand in the field and chopped into tiny pieces by the silage cutter.

The wire on the temporary silo, believes Jones, will last three or four years. New paper must be used each time the silo is filled.

Robert Smith of Woodland has a new 10 by 20-foot brick silo. The silo cost Smith only $183 for materials. It will last indefinitely.

Marshall and Smith believe that without a silo they would have gotten little or nothing from their drought-stricken corn crops. As it is, both feel they have enough feed to carry their herds until fall-planted grazing crops are ready.

Other Randolph farmers who have built and filled silos are Otis Smith, Woodland; Cerill Brumbaloe, Leonard Brown, and Jimmy McMurray, Roanoke, and Lonnie White and Luther Rice, Wedowee.

API Extension Dairyman John Parrish says the short corn and grazing crops of the past three years have emphasized the need for more silos all over Alabama. He explains that upright silos are far more efficient than trench silos, which are actually only ditches dug into hillsides. The trench silos cause a fairly large waste of silage. In addition, more labor usually is needed to feed from the trench than from an upright silo.

Parrish says silage meets these three big needs:

1. Provides succulent feed when grazing is short in periods of doughts and freezes.

2. Allows a large amount of feed to be stored at little cost.

3. Permits farmers to cut corn (or other crops produced for silage) early enough to get land ready for early fall grazing.

Parrish does not believe silage is a roughage for farmers to provide only in years when corn, grazing, and hay crops have been in short supply. "Every year many dairymen—and beef producers—need to fill silos with grass silage in early spring to feed in summer. They need to grow some grain or grass crop to fill them again in late summer for late fall or winter feeding," he states.

Three tons of corn silage are equal in feeding value to one ton of hay, and cost about the same to produce. Silo space for three tons of silage is far less expensive than that for a ton of hay, explains Parrish.

Almost any grass, legume, or grain crop produced in Alabama can be made into silage. Farmers interested in silage should see their county agents for complete details and begin making plans now for next year.

Handy Garbage Disposal Unit

A conveniently placed garbage slot has cut down on the bending and stooping in Mrs. McKinley Daily's kitchen. When the Franklin County homemaker remodeled her kitchen she found that she had some extra space between her sink and cabinets. A slot was cut in the cabinet top and a small door, just large enough for a garbage can, was put between the cabinets and the sink. The can is placed under the slot in the small section next to the sink, and the garbage is dropped through the slot into the can. Mrs. Daily is a member of the Waco Home Demonstration Club.

More Dairying In Cleburne

DAIRYING is a fast growing business in Cleburne County, according to County Agent Tom Ventress.

There are four Grade A dairies operating in the county. Two more, now under construction, will be in production soon.

Ventress reveals that there are 23 Grade B dairies now in Cleburne. But they are continually changing their operations to the production of Grade A milk.

Dairy herd improvement work and artificial breeding are playing a large part in the county's expanding industry.

FRAGRANT HOBBY—A love of flowers has blossomed into a profitable hobby for Mrs. L. E. Porter of the Blue Springs Home Demonstration Club. Mrs. Porter began making corsages as a hobby several years ago and has now expanded into the greenhouse business. The Clio, Rt. 1, homemaker has a small 10 by 18-foot greenhouse where she grows some of the more delicate flowers, and she has turned part of her yard into a commercial flower garden. Examining some of the hothouse specimens with Mrs. Porter is Assistant Home Demonstration Agent Helen Mitchell, left, of Clayton.

Matches And Careless Smoking Responsible For Many Fires

CARELESS discarding of lighted matches and smoking materials was responsible for nearly thirty per cent of all fires from known causes over a ten-year period. A burning match or tobacco debris recklessly tossed aside may start a disastrous fire taking heavy toll of lives and property.

This hazard will remain enormous until caution as a national habit replaces carelessness. Remember, one little thoughtless act may take your home—even your life!

Here are a few common sense precautions:

1. Keep all matches out of the reach of small children. Matches with easily inflammable heads should be kept in non-combustible containers.
2. Have plenty of ash trays conveniently placed—and keep them clean.
3. Anywhere—be sure your lighted matches or smokes are completely snuffed out before you discard them.
4. Don't Smoke in Bed or where No Smoking Signs are posted.
5. Don't strike matches in closets, garages or other places where inflammable materials, dust or vapors may be ignited.

Long Range Irrigation Plans

TWO Randolph County farmers have irrigation in mind in planning their programs for next year.

Jackie Chaffin has a grazing program for 145 acres near a river. Practically all of this land can be irrigated. Sericea will be used for summer grazing and hay. Fescue and Ladino clover is planned for winter grazing.

Traylow Herren is adapting a pump for use on his tractor for irrigation work. When completed it will be the largest pump in operation in the county.

Research Results

in brief from A.P.I. AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION

FISHING IN FARM PONDS during fall and winter can be made easy by bating at spots four to six feet deep beginning in October. Good results have been obtained by baiting each spot at weekly intervals with either a loaf of well-soaked bread, or two pounds of soybean or cottonseed cake.

FOR WINTER LAWNS Italian ryegrass may be planted alone, or on areas established in Bermuda grass only, at the rate of one-half pound of seed per 100 square feet of area. October and November are the best months to plant. On freshly prepared seedbeds, good stands have been obtained by lightly working the seed into the soil; and on established lawns by raking the area lightly to settle the seed to the ground.

SLAUGHTER ANIMALS, both cattle and hogs, are by far the most important class of livestock sold in Alabama. Feeder animals make up a larger proportion of hogs sold, however, than of cattle. If, as it appears, the livestock market in Alabama is principally for slaughter animals, farmers may gain by keeping this in mind in their feeding and grazing as well as their buying and selling programs.

ALABAMA IS FAR FROM SELF-SUFFICIENT in supplies of milk for manufactured dairy products. The quantity of butterfat purchased by Alabama users in manufactured dairy products is about four and three-fourths times the amount sold by Alabama farmers in milk of manufacturing grade, farm-separated cream, and farm butter.

ALABAMA SUPPLIES OF FLUID MILK INCREASED from an average of about 71,000 gallons per day in 1947 to an average of about 85,000 gallons in 1949. Net exports of milk to Georgia and Florida took about five per cent of these supplies. These exports were more than compensated by imports from year-round sources in Mississippi and Tennessee.

A BETTER STAND OF LONGLEAF PINES was obtained on areas that were burned during the winter than on areas where fire was excluded in experimental longleaf pine plantations in Baldwin County. Under proper conditions brownspot disease of longleaf pine seedlings can be controlled with winter fires. Only extremely hot fires during a dry spell kill the seedlings in large numbers. Longleaf pine seedlings in the grass stage frequently escape any serious damage by winter fires. However, the results were exactly opposite with slash; stands were completely eliminated by fire.

SHELLED SEED CORN CAN BE PROTECTED FROM WEEVILS by the use of insecticidal dusts. Two ounces of 1.5 per cent or one ounce of 3 per cent DDT dust per bushel have given good results. Pyrenone dust at the rate of one pound to 10 bushels of grain has also given good protection. The dusts must be thoroughly mixed with the grain. Grain treated with DDT should not be used for food or feed.

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Bon

What the Clanton Fire Department wants to know is how you go to two fires at the same time when you got only one fire department. That's the fix they were in last week. They answered a call out the Maplesville Highway and about the time they got out there the fire whistle started moaning again and here they come tearing back through town heading South. Something was on fire in South Clanton. Neither fire was of much size, but we imagine the fire fighters were in quite a tizzie there for a few minutes.

Lester Connell, J. B. Atkinson and Buck Roberts were talking in the halls of the courthouse the other afternoon. Lester said he had heard of a horse meat scandle in Illinois and since he had been up there two or three times this summer and had eaten some mighty fine steaks up there, if he thought it was so he would refuse to vote for Gov. Stevenson. He wasn't fixing to eat horse meat. J. B. told him not to worry, that if a Republican was elected it would be like back in the times B.D. (that's Before Democrats) the horses wouldn't have enough meat on them to get a steak from.

Tuesday night at the Grammar School Parent-Teachers Association "Father's Night" exercises, Patterson Hicks told the parents a little story. He said there was a fellow who always went around telling his friends this is My son, this is My barn, this is My house, this is My farm. Finally the wife got fed-up on this kind of talk so she told her husband where to get off. She told him this was OUR house, and OUR son, and OUR barn. So he got the idea pretty well. Next morning he was up and scratching around under the bed. When his wife wanted to know what he was looking for he said: "I'm looking for OUR britches."

We have always said we had the best bunch of subscribers in the world taking the Chilton County News. Today a subscriber came in to renew his subscription and told us that he had received the paper for six months back in 1938 that he hadn't paid for and he was anxious to pay the dollar and get it off his mind. He told us that he had thought of it many times, but never when he was close enough to the News office to pay up. We appreciated the dollar much more than if it had been paid back in 1938. It may be worth less—but we need it more.

It was often heard around town Sunday and Monday that the worst harm Earl Parrish had ever done—he had done to himself. We suppose that statement is pretty well right. There isn't many people in Chilton County, man, woman, or child, that Earl Parrish, at one time or another hasn't befriended. When he made the race for County Treasurer recently he lead all other candidates on the ticket, even though at that time he was in poor condition to make a race for public office. People just liked Earl Parrish, and that certainly goes for this writer who lost a very dear friend. We're not trying to make a saint of Earl. He was just a human being like the most of us. He was a person who made friends easy, kept them, and believed in "being a friend to man."

B. E. Reeves Named To Make Race For County Treasurer

B. E. REEVES

The Chilton County Democratic Executive Committee, in a meeting at the City Hall Monday night named B. E. Reeves as nominee of the party to take the place of E. C. Parrish who died last Sunday morning.

Reeves has served as county treasurer for the past four years and has been complimented numerous times on his ability as treasurer and his faithfulness to his office. He made the race in May against Parrish when Parrish was nominated.

A large crowd attended the Monday night meeting and all agreed that B. E. Reeves was well qualified to continue in the office and each offered his support in the November 4th election. Reeves's opponent is Carlos Wyatt.

At the same meeting it was voted to place the name of J. C. Pattillo on the ballot for Justice of the Peace for Beat Four. Only one name had appeared on the ballot heretofore, that of M. D. Foshee, but since the ballots will be reprinted due to Mr. Parrish's death, Mr. Pattillo's name will be added. The voter must vote for two in this race.

B. E. Reeves Asks Support Of Voters

To All Voters of Chilton County:

It is with deep regret that I learned of the death of Mr. Earl Parrish, and my sympathy goes out to his family and friends.

In his place, the Democratic Executive Committee in a special meeting, has nominated me for the office of County Treasurer, for which I am grateful that they have given me the opportunity to place myself before the voters, offering myself to continue serving the people of Chilton County; in the same office which I now serve.

If elected, I shall continue to perform the duties faithfully, honestly and efficiently, and will cooperate with all other officials, to help make Chilton County a better place in which to live. I shall strive to merit the confidence which is placed in me.

Due to the short time before the Election on November 44th, I will be unable to see all the voters, but shall see as many as I can. However, for the consideration of all voters of the county who are not personally acquainted with me, I want to give a bit of my qualifications for your serious consideration.

I am 46 years old. I am married, and have two daughters (one of whom is married to a young man serving in the Navy) and one son, who is still in high school. I am a member of the Baptist Church, and for several years have been active in fraternal affairs in Chilton County.

I was reared in Prattville, Ala., and received my elementary and high school education there, having graduated from Autauga County High School in the Class of 1923. I am also a graduate of Draughon Business College.

I have wroked continuously as a bookkeeper and accountant since October, 1925. I was accountant in the Automobile Business in Birmingham for a period of seven years before coming to Chilton County November, 1934, and was connected with Hayes Chevrolet Company from 1934 until the Spring of 1952; and since then until the present time I have been bookkeeper for Taylor Wholesale Grocery Company in Clanton.

Four years ago I was elected your County Treasurer, in which capacity I am still serving. I have been personally commended by several State Auditors and their audit reports give me a clean record in office.

In May of this year I was defeated in the primary election by Mr. Parrish, but I did receive a real good vote for which I am most grateful. I have never felt badly by having been defeated, but I believe that I will be re-elected, if the voters will give serious consideration to all my qualifications and record of service and experience.

I am asking each of my friends to tell their friends about this matter and sincerely hope that the voters will go to the polls on November 4th and make Chilton County remain a Democratic County in a Democratic State.

I am very grateful, and flattered, to the many people who have called me and have offered their support in my behalf, and the Democratic Ticket. If we will be as Democrats should be, united in every respect, then we will have a great victory in November.

B. E. REEVES,
Candidate for County Treasurer on Democratic Ticket.

Grammar P.-T.A. Has Fathers Night

On Tuesday night, October 7th, at 7 o'clock the Clanton Elementary P.-T.A. met at the school lunch room. The devotional was so beautifully given by Mrs. Dick Scott, after which pupils from the fifth and sixth grades marched in and quoted scripture verses led by Billy Miller and sang two hymns, under the direction of Mrs. Ray Bonanno.

Mrs. Ed Mullins, program chairman, presented Mr. Patterson Hicks, guest speaker. This being Father's Night, Mr. Hicks spoke on the subject 'The Father as a Parent," humorously explaining his points with examples such as we see every day. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed Mr. Hicks.

The following sixth grade boys served as ushers, and a swell job they did: Joey Morris, Albert Gramatas, Neal Bice, Charles Turner, Charles Hyte, Robert Earl Hand, Bobby Littleton, Eddy McSetliff and Denny Wood.

There were one hundred fifty-two adults present for this meeting, this being the largest attendance for any one P.-T.A. meeting we have had.

Democrats Hold Rally At City Hall Saturday

A large crowd of Democrats attended the meeting held at the City Hall last Saturday morning.

Principal speaker was Congressman-elect Armistead Selden, who stated that he was solidly behind the Democratic Ticket in Chilton County and thought that more good could be accomplished by him in Congress if Democratic officials were elected to work with him.

Other speakers on the program were Probate Judge W. L. Parrish, Lee Smith, Miss Ruth Hicks, Cliff Walton, Mayor V. B. McCain of Maplesville, and Luther Little.

E. A. (Red) Fulmer introduced the speakers. G. C. Walker and J. B. Atkinson made short talks.

More Money For Needy Under New Welfare Budget

The increased State Welfare budget approved September 23 by the State Welfare Board will mean that most needy people in Chilton County can expect larger welfare checks in October, Miss Ila Jean Lake, Director of Public Welfare, said today. "At the same time, some of the few people getting both welfare checks and small Federal OASI checks may get less from the welfare department because their OASI checks have been raised."

Miss Lake gave changes in the Federal Social Security Act as the reason for the increased welfare and OASI benefits. She said more Federal money was provided for the needy aged, blind, permanently and totally disabled, and depenent children at the time benefits were raised for people getting OASI.

"With every check mailed from the welfare department will be a notice about the amount of the check," Miss Lake explained, adding that since only a small number of persons get both OASI and welfare, nearly every welfare check will be larger in October.

Miss Lake went on to say that the amount of welfare checks will continue to vary among individuals, depending on individual needs. She said the same proportion of unmet need is met for all people in the same category of aid, and each person's need is figured in the same way. From the amount the welfare department can allow for such items as food, clothing, and shelter, there is deducted each person's income and resources. To the remaining unmet need is applied the percentage that can be met for that category. "The percentages that can be met in October are higher than those met in September for all categories," she concluded.

Layman's Day At First Baptist

The First Baptist Church of Clanton, and throughout the Southern Baptist Convention territory literally thousands of Baptist churches will observe Laymen's Day. This is an annual observance. It is a day that means much to the lives of individual men and much to the mission of a New Testament Church.

The slogan for this Laymen's Day is "Laymen Fill the Pews—The Pastor Fill the Pulpit." The men of the First Baptist Church will occupy the choir, and will be seated in the main section of the auditorium. All men and boys will be the guest of the pastor.

Men will be at work in the church and what better way can you honor men for loyalty to the organization and missionary life of their church than to "put them to work and utilize their talents and efforts in such a challenging opportunity.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

Ralph Mims and Marvin Oats have turned forty acres or more of land and are in the process of finishing or dressing the land down to plant a mixture of Fescue, White Clover, Oats and reseeding Crimson Clover. Lime and fertilizer will be applied before planting seed.

Farmers interested in Coastal Bermuda grass and are prepared to do the necessary things in preparing land, fertilizing and sprigging the grass should contact this or the County Agent's Office soon. The order must be placed soon to insure delivery in late winter or early spring.

Professor J. C. Grimes at Auburn told a group of Chilton County farmers touring the Experiment Station that with 800 pounds of 0-1-8 fertilizer and 200 pounds of amonia nitrate the Station weighed 800 pounds of beef per acre from a mixture of Coastal Bermuda grass and reseeding Crimson Clover.

Dr. Goe Gowan, Reedie Taylor, C. C. Gay, Sr., and O. H. Lawrence have seeded Rescue grass with a mixture of Clover or seeded on a sod of grass or Sericea.

R. C. Williams finished seeding 10 acres of Fescue and Ladino just before a good rain fell Thursday afternoon.

Good volunteer stand of Crimson Clover, Button Clover, Subterranean Clover, Vetches and Caley peas are up to a stand from the recent rains. Partial grazing or mowing to take off excess top growth on grasses or weeds, but leave enough shade to shade the young plants would help hold a stand providing enough moisture is received from rain. Properly fertilized these reseeding legumes would go a long ways in helping feed the livestock we now have in addition to helping conserve soil and water.

It is the sincere wish of the Chilton County League of Young Democrats to get the women of the county between the ages of 21 and 40 to join this organization and to take a part in urging all of the qualified voters of the county to be at the polls on November 4th and cast their ballots.

The date is Monday, October 13; the time is 7:30 p.m.; the place is the County Courthouse in Clanton. Please don't forget to be with us.

Protect Your New Clothes For Better Service

To protect clothing against wear and perspiration stains, often difficult to remove from clothes which are not washable, put shields in both wool dresses and coats before wearing.

Also," advises Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, give a new dress underarm shields and sew in a piece of thin washable fabric over the upper back to keep oily soil from the dress. For coats, make shields of fabric that matches the lining so that they can take stains and rubs and be replaced when necessary." Miss Thompson adds that it's far easier and cheaper to put in shields early than to entirely re-line the coat later.

Many women have found that it is a good idea to protect new trousers by sewing retreads inside, at seat and knees. A re-tread—that is an underneath stretch of firm but thin fabric—is used sometimes for the seat of a skirt. Long sitting is likely to cause a skirt to bulge or stretch out of shape unless it is reinforced underneath.

THE DIFFERENCE

The impression seems to persist among some hurried readers that the "Nixon fund" and the "Stevenson fund" were more or less alike. This is far from the fact.

The Stevenson fund was the balance remaining in the treasury of the Stevenson-for-Governor Committee at the time it was dissolved early in 1949, after Adlai E. Stevenson's inauguration as Governor of Illinois. The committee turned this balance over to the Governor for "such purposes connected with the office of the Governor as Mr. Stevenson shall determine." To this balance of $19,744 were added subsequent contributions of $2,900 by Chicago businessmen. Out of these funds Governor Stevenson made donations to eight state officials whose salaries he considered so inadequate as to constitute a financial hardship.

The Nixon fund was a horse of another color. The money was raised not for campaign purposes, since Senator Nixon had just been elected to the Senate, but —or so he said—to help him defray various expenses as a Senator. Nixon did not mention in his carefully-staged television act that he was drawing more than $60,000 a year from the government for office and travel expenses, in addition to his salary. Nor did he repeat the admission attributed to him by columnist Peter Edson: "If I had not received this help (the contributions), I could not have made the down payment on my house."

In short, the oil men, real estate men and so on who picked up some of Nixon's bills enabled him to save enough out of his salary to swing the purchase of a house. The end result was the same as if they had contributed to a fund for the specific purpose of helping him buy the house.

But the Senator acknowledges no breach of ethics on his part.

Is this man good enough to be elected to a job from which a sudden death could elevate him to the Presidency?

JOHN MAPLES WRITES ON IMPORTANCE OF COMING ELECTION

Dear Mr. Fulmer:

Please accept my appreciation for your invitation to be present at the meeting of the Young Democrats of Chilton County at Clanton October 4th, 1952. I regret very much that it will be impossible for me to leave my work on that date.

I consider the issues involved of vital importance to us all and the thing for us to guard against the emotional appeal to support the great General who has the remedy for all our political ills. We cannot rely on the promises made by the Republican party who have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. They have failed us in the past and we can reasonable assume that if given the opportunity, they will fail us again. "Ye shall know them by their fruits." For the past 80 years the Republicans have held the seat of Government in the aggregate of 44 years and if they have ever enacted a piece of legislation beneficial to the South I think we will fail to find it in the pages of our history.

Josephus Daniel said that if the Republican party, when they came into power in 1920, had not thrown Wilson's League of Nations in the waste basket there would have not been a chance for Hitler and Mussolini to have built up the powerful military machine with which they defied the world. Consequently according to his belief there would not have been the second World War. We see the same inclination in the minds of the Old Guard to destroy the United Nations which was created as a safeguard against war.

We look back again to the time when the Republicans came into power in 1920, from that time to the advent of Roosevelt in the White House they had refused to do anything about utilizing the Wilson dam for the benefit of the people of Alabama and the South. I can remember one instance in which Henry Ford offered to pay a flattering price for the rental of this property. He said he would build a city 40 miles long along the borders of the Tennessee River. The Republican congress turned a deaf ear to this proposal. Then Roosevelt's administration arranged to utilize this great structure for creating power which made it possible for Rural Electricity.

Can we conceive that we would have had this convenience for our rural homes had the Republicans been in power? We would consistently say no. Would we have had the farm program that the democrats have given us which sustained the price of our farm products? We can consistently say no. Would we have had so many tenant farmers become landowners? I would say surely these farmers who have profited by the F.H.A. projects would say we are grateful to the Democrats for making it possible for us to become independent citizens and as home owners instead of tenant farmers.

The people of the South are grateful to the Democratic party for acquiring for us equitable freight rates, which rates formerly discriminated against us. There are many other benefits that have come to us through the Democrats that are worth while. We have the reciprocal trade treaty which has made it possible to expand our international trade, and the bank act of 1933, which insured depositors against losses in defunct banks.

This truly is a "crusade" to hold what we have accomplished during the past twenty years and not trust to promises from those whom we have tried and they failed us. "Ye shall know them by their fruits."

Yours very truly,
JOHN MAPLES.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

CONTACT LENSES

Not every person can wear contact lenses. For this reason, it is important that an individual requiring a correction for vision should be carefully evaluated, particularly when a contact lens is desired rather than glasses or spectacles.

One type of contact lens has a portion that fits over the central or corneal part of the eye and a second part that fits over the scleral or white part of the eye. In other words, this type is in contact with two parts of the eye. Another type is known as the corneal cap and is fitted to the size of the cornea of the eye only, making it come in contact with only one part of the eye.

With the contact lens which fits over two portions of the eye on accessory fluid is used which rests between the contact lens and the cornea of the eye. This thin layer of fluid permits the uninterrupted transmission of light rays from the contact lens to the cornea. It sometimes takes the patient considerable time to become adjusted to the fluid, since the eye becomes irritated after an elapse of several hours; and then, too, it frequently causes the vision to become cloudy.

On the other hand, with the corneal cap no fluid is necessary; and the cap just fits over the cornea of the eye, not too tightly and not too loosely. The thin layer of tears normally present over the eye forms a thin layer between the corneal cap lens and the cornea of the eye. The lens then holds its position in part by the suction, or what is technically called capillary attraction.

Many advances and improvements have been made in contact lenses. Because of their practical value, the progress is interesting; but generally speaking they are not suitable to all types of visual disturbances and are not the answer to everyone's problems. Medically, they would be more suitable to the group of people whose vision is appreciably much better with contact lenses than it is with spectacle glasses. Vocationally, they would apply to those persons whose occupation prohibits the use of glasses but who still need better visual acuity.

Moral Obligation In Primary Pledge

If you voted in a Democratic or Republican primary in the State of Alabama during the year, 1952, you made a pledge that is printed on the ballot. It reads as follows: "By casting this ballot I do pledge myself to abide by the result of this Primary Election and to aid and support all the nominees thereof in the ensuing General Election."

This pledge has been a part of the primary law of the State of Alabama since the year, 1931. The Legislature of Alabama in the year 1951 wrote the same pledge.

If a person is either a plaintiff, defendant, or witness in a case in court, whether it be an individual, a partnership or a corporation, it is the opinion of many judges that it would be admissable evidence if it is shown that the party involved deliberately, knowingly, and wilfully violated a pledge that is in the statute books of the State of Alabama.

If two attorneys vote in a Republican or Democratic primary, and one supports the nominee of the primary and the other, knowing at the time of the primary, that he did not intend to support the nominee, is one's reputation thereafter better than the reputation of the other?

If a group of people join together and participate in a primary, and one or more enter into said primary with the intention of going contrary to the pledge and their purpose is to nominate a candidate whom they feel will be more easily defeated, and they do not go along with their pledge, is their reputation for honesty as good as the reputation of those who stayed with the ones to whom they had pledged their support?

If a member of a church votes to select a pastor, the superintendent, or a teacher and one is selected by 90 per cent majority, do the 10 per cent quit that church in an attempt to destroy the church?

If a groung of players leave the community to go over to another community to play ball and only eleven of the players are chosen to play the game, does the remainder of the team go home and leave the others and want his home team to lose the game, or does he get on the other team in an attempt to defeat his home team?

The Republicans can have primaries and do have them in some of the counties in Alabama. They have conventions in some counties and primaries in others. The question is—can a person who has knowledge of the pledge in the primary to support the nominee thereof, etc., participate in the Democratic primary presumably for the purpose of offering their support to the nominee and later participate in the Republican convention or offer his services as a Republican candidate? Is there a moral obligation somewhere?

In this county in the Democratic primary of June, 1952, approximately 3400 voters chose to support the nominees of the Democratic ticket. I do not believe that the people of this county will support those who advocate the violation of this pledge. Do you believe that twelve people who are competent to sit on a jury would believe a witness or party or have respect for a member of the court, if it be shown that either of them knowingly, intentionly, and wilfully violated any pledge or statute enacted by the Legislature of Alabama that did not suit them or that could be used for his own gain? — Roanoke Leader.

"BUY DEFENSE BONDS TO REPLACE OLD TRACTORS," SAYS 'MAID OF COTTON'

Tractors, cotton and thrift are woven together in the fabric of American life, according to Miss Pat Mullarkey, Dallas, Tex., 1952 Maid of Cotton. Today, there are a million tractors on Southern cotton farms and 25,000 are added annually, sparking the trend to cotton mechanization. These tractors will last about 10 years. By putting the annual depreciation of the tractor, 10 per cent of the purchase price, into U. S. Defense Bonds each year, the thrifty cotton farmer can pay cash for a new tractor when he needs it. So, the young lady in the made-of-cotton costume reminds the cotton farmer: "Save for your new tractor the easy Defense Bond Way."

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Supreme Court has granted license to practice law in Alabama to six persons who have passed the State bar examination.

The list included: James Giles Adams, III, Birmingham; Edwin D. Breland, Heiberger; William C. Daniel, Rt. 1, Renfroe; Lt. Elliott G. Biggons, 18th Infantry Regiment, APO 1, U. S. Army, New York, N. Y.; Walter B. Henley, Selma, and David Miller Nettles, Monroeville.

What Is Freedom Of Our Religion

by Rev. William R. Morgan

One of the greatest freedoms enjoyed by the American people is freedom of religion. During the days of Nazi Totalitarianism, this was considered one of the Four Freedoms. What does it mean however? The following outline is a brief discussion of the essence of this great freedom. Here are a few pointers.

Seperation of Church and State is the first pre-requisite of religious liberty. Where one particular group is given preferential treatment over others, religious intolerance and persecution will always result. We believe that all religious groups should be equal before law and that special privileges should be granted to none. The recent attempt on the part of President Truman to appoint a full ambassador to the Vatican is a violation of this principle.

Privilege of One's Private Convictions is another absolute essential in the preservation of religious freedom.

History books abound with horror stories about the Inquisition where people were brutally tortured and executed if they dared to disagree with Rome. We certainly want nothing like that in America.

Privilege of Changing One's Religious Affiliation Without Loss of Civil Rights is still another pointer.

In some countries where a state church abounds, those means are employed to keep the "faithful" faithful. Christianity works through persuasion and not coercion. No one should be penalized for changing his religious faith. Such change has, in many cases, proven beneficial.

The Privilege of Parents to Raise Their Children in Their Own Faith.

In the constitutions of some countries where a state church is established, parents are forced to raise their children in another faith. This is true in Argentina, Spain, Italy, and other South American countries. Religious instruction is a sacred duty of all parents and they should not be forced to raise their children in a disagreeable faith.

Privilege to Gain Converts is the final point we shall discuss.

In Spain, Protestants are not permitted to advertise their services in any way but must hold them in private.

We hope and pray that the day will never come in this country when one denomination can padlock the church doors of another group. When that happens, religious freedom has ceased to exist.

It is hoped that this article will stimulate some thought on this vital privilege that is so dear to our hearts. Religious faith is necessary to the well being of any society, but narrow sectarianism only thwarts progress and deterioates religion.

Let's keep American Christianity free and pure by adhereing to and practising the above principles, and above all, Christian love toward all and hatred toward none.

No Typhoid Fever In Chilton County During August

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Department of Health announced today that 20 Alabama typhoid fever cases were reported in August. That represented an increase of eight over the July total of 12. Sixteen cases were reported in August of last year.

The cases reported in August occurred in 11 counties. Eight were in Jefferson and two each in Madison and Pickens. Bibb, Cherokee Choctaw, Covington, Escambia, Mobile, Montgomery and St. Clair reported one each.

HANDLING COTTON

The way cotton is handled from boll to bale may be the difference between profit and loss.

Sanitary Laws To Be Rigidly Enforced

Effective immediately the County Health Department will embark on a program of strict enforcement of the sanitary laws on food handling sanitation, Dr. Taylor, County Health Officer, announced today. We are prepared to insist upon a high degree of cleanliness and to achieve it in one way or another Dr. Taylor said. An appeal has been made to the operators to voluntarily cooperate, and it is felt that with their cooperation a new peak in sanitation can be reached.

There are many mouth borne diseases that can be spread by the improper handling of food. These include diphtheria, tuberculosis, typhoid, trench mouth, colds, probably poliomyelitis, and others.

He stressed that the food establishment permit system gives the Health Department such powers of inspection and enforcement as are necessary to safeguard public health. We can enforce cleanliness by revoking licenses and making it unlawful to operate until their facilities and operating procedure have met requirements."

Although Chilton County has been fortunate, food poisoning remains an important health threat Dr. Taylor says. In 1950, there were 347 food poisoning outbreaks reported in this country, with 10,174 persons made ill and 5 dying. This does not include the diseases mentioned before as being mouth borne.

Most food establishment operators want to cooperate in maintaining a good record. However, the public must awaken to the dangers that lurk in the public eating place that disregards the rules of good sanitation. For his own protection the diner-out should insist on the highest possible standards.

Dr. Taylor urges all patrons of food establishments to look for the rating given the establishment by the Health Department. Also to report to the management and the Health Department any insanitary condition or practices they observe 'Safeguarding public health is an obligation of the citizen as well as City and County public health officials," he continued, "And the department needs the assistance of every citizen in its efforts."

Wetumpka Indians Scalp Chilton County Tigers 26-14

By HAROLD SMYER

The Wetumpka High Indians defeated the Chilton County Tigers in Wetumpka last Friday night by the score of 26 to 14. Following are the scores of the Tigers games thus far this season:

Clanton 27 — Maplesville 6.
Clanton 53 — Isabella 13.
Clanton 46 — Montevallo 6.
Clanton 14 — Wetumpka 26.
Total points — Clanton 140; opponents 51.

Earl Smith kicked off for Clanton, Charles Bass receiving and returning to his own 41. Barrett, Knight, Bass and Graham, in eight plays, picked up three first downs to the Tiger 24 yard line. Corky Oaks intercepted Blankenship's pass on his 18 and was downed on the 29. Runs by Nedford Williams and Don Askins failed to gain and on fourth down Joe Ellison booted to the Indians 31. Bass ppicked up two yards, two more plays gained only one yard for the Indians as the Tiger line held and forced a punt. Glennis Askins rushed through and blocked the punt and the Tigers took possession of the pigskin. Oaks drove for a first down to the 18, where two line plays and two passes failed and Clanton lost the ball via downs. Wetumpka gained yardage to their own 46, where the Tiger line did some good defensive work, forcing Wright of the Indians to punt. Wright's punt rolled to the Tiger 18 yard line, where the officials ruled that the pigskin touched Williams leg. An' Indian fell upon the ball and set up Wetumpka's first touch down. The Indians drove to the 8-yard line, from there Graham scored but the Indians were penalized 15 yards back to the 23. On the next play Blankenship passed to Bass the TD. Schroeder kicked off to the Tiger 31 where Askins returned two yards. Two plays later Williams fumbled and Wetumpka recovered on the Tiger 34. The Indians drove to the 18, then Bass passed to Avant for the second score. Graham scored the extra point by running. Score — Indians 13, Tigers 0.

Roy Mims received Bass's kickoff on the 20 and made a nice return to his own 36. With the aid of two passes from Mims to Smith and Baker, a 15 yard penalty against the Indians, the Tigers advanced the ball to the Indians 45 yard line where they lost the ball trough downs. The first half ended after the Indians had lost three yards in three plays.

Mims received the second half kickoff on his 18 and was tackled on the 25. Askins, Mims and Oaks, with the Tiger line opening holes, carried the pigskin to the Indian 48 yard line where the Indian line forced Clanton to kick. Ellison, in deep punt formation, received a bad snap from center and was forced to run, being tackled back on his own 45 yard line and thus losing possession of the ball because of it being fourth down. Littleton halted an Indian drive by intercepting Blankenship's pass on the Tiger 20. After a 15 yard penalty against the Indians, Askins gained two, Williams failed to gain, Mims pass to Littlejohn was incomplete and Ellison kicked from his own 37 to the Indians 15. Bass returned Ellison's kick 23 yards, Graham lost 1 yard, Barrett and Bass gained to their 45, Clanton was penalized 15 yards, Barrett failed to gain, Wetumpka was penalized 15 yards then Clanton five, and Bass was forced to punt from the mid-field stripe. The Tigers took over for their 20, gained only two yards and kicked to the Indians 47. The running and passing of Bass carried the ball to the Tiger 26 where the third period ended.

The fourth stanza began with Graham running left end for the 3rd Indian TD. Johnson bucked over for the extra point, making the score — Wetumpka 20, Clanton 0. Oaks returned the Indian kickoff 17 yards to his own 30. Littlejohn failed to gain on an end-around reverse, Williams's two passes were incomplete and Ellison punted 40 yards to the Indian 30. Four plays later Ellison intercepted Weldon's pass and raced to the Indians 20 yard line before being halted. Mims's passing and running did not do too well and Wetumpka took possession of the ball through downs on their own 17. Bass and Graham advanced the ball to mid-field where the Tiger line forced a punt. Mims returned the punt eleven yards to his own 39. The Clanton Tigers seemed to have gained their second wind and began to march—Mims passed to Littlejohn for eleven yards, two passes went incomplete, Oaks passed to Gifton Rush for 12 yards, Oaks later rolled to Smith who passed to Mims for 20 yards, Mims next passed to Earl Smith for 20 yards and Clanton's first score. Ellison kicked the extra point. Score—Indians 20, Tigers 7.

Barrett returned Smith's kickoff of 45 yards to the 35. Blankenship passed to Avant, who was finally brought down by Ellison on the ten yard line, the play covering 55 yards and being the longest of the game. Bass gained two and then received a pass from Blankenship good for the final Indian touchdown. Barrett failed to gain through the Tiger line for the extra point.

Schroeder kicked off, Mims received on the 14, ran to the 38 where he was bottled up and latterrolled to Oaks who went 21 yards to the Indian 41. Mims passed to Smith for six yards, then twenty-five yards. Two passes intended for Rush were incomplete and Askins drove eight yards to the Indian 3-yard line. Mims passed to Smith for the second Tiger touchdown, Wetumpka was off-sides on the play, but of course Clanton took the choice of the play instead of the penalty. Ellison again coverted for the extra point. The game ended four plays later with Wetumpka in possession of the ball in their own 44 yard line.

Sewing Machine Good Investment

Auburn, Ala.—Any reliable make of sewing machine will give good service if it is understood by the user and then given proper care.

Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, points out that a well cared for, smooth running sewing machine—no matter what its age, make, or whether it runs by foot or electric power—can be an asset to any family.

"Study directions that come with a machine," urges the specialist. "Learn the names of parts and how to buy machine needles and set them properly. Find out how to wind bobbin, thread machine, adjust tension and stitch, and make other minor adjustments."

She adds that a sewing machine should be cleaned at least twice a year with kerosene or a dry cleaning solution and then oiled properly.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT"

Russell Williams, Clanton, has been selected to play the role of Sir Francis Chesney in the Howard College production of "Charley's Aunt" November 11-14.

"Charley's Aunt" is one of the most popular theatrical smash hits of all times. It is an interesting costume play which will feature authentic 1900 costumes.

Following the campus production the cast will take the play on tour.

Requirements For Vets Benefits

Recently discharged veterans seeking unemployment benefits in Alabama State Employment Service offices were advised to bring three items with them by Joe L. Coleman, Director of the Department of Industrial Relations.

These were (1) social security card (2) discharge and (3) notice of separation from the armed forces. All three must be presented in filing a claim.

The unemployment benefit program for veterans will be administered according to the state law, Coleman stated. This means, he said, that the veteran must be out of work, able to work, and registered for work with his local Employment Service office.

No unemployment beneftis will be paid to veterans until his mustering-out pay period has expired, or for any week in which he is receiving any subsistence or education allowance from the Veterans Administration.

The program's unemployment benefits, Coleman pointed out, are intended for only those veterans who are unemployed because they can't find suitable jobs.

The veteran's claim will be subject to the same provisions as those under which State unemployment insurance is paid, except as to the weekly and maximum amount of his benefits. The weekly compensation for eligible veterans under Title IV is $26 for a full week of unemployment and the total amount he may draw is $676.

When he returns to the local employment office to file his claim for compensation, he should bring a list of employers for whom he worked during a period beginning 18 months prior to his entry into the service and up to the current date.

Any person who has served 90 continuous days in the armed forces on or after June 27, 1950, and who has been discharged or released from the service under conditions other than dishonorable, is covered by this new veterans legislation.

New Salem News

We are glad to report wonderful services at our church over the week end. Our pastor, Bro. Billy Canten, brought two inspiring messages, which were enjoyed by all.

We were appy to have most of the membership of Bell Lane Church with us for the evening service. We invite them to come again. We also invite any and all our neighboring churches to bring their Training Union Class to our church and put on their program any time they see fit. We appreciate this kind of cooperation and fellowship.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Bean had all their children and grandchildren with them over the week end, this being the last Sunday Curtis will be home. He takes his place as Chaplin in service after a short period of training in New York. This is one of our home boys and we regret to give im up. We read in the scriptures where it says, Follow Where He Leads. So we bid him God's speed and feel sure Curtis is being led by the spirit to go this way.

The Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Smith were Bro. Canten and family and several members of our church.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bean enjoyed all their children and others of the family Sunday, it being Mrs. Bean's birthday.

We wish to announce that next Sunday, October 12th, at 11 o'clock, Bro. C. T. Logan will be preaching at this place. This is one of our most loved neighbors ~~and~~ members. We invite everyone to come out and hear him. This church bids him God's speed.

We are sorry to report the illness of Mrs. Theodora Burnett We hope for her a speedy recovery.

We enjoyed having another one of our service boys with us Sunday, Byron, son of Mr. and Mrs J. L. Hayes.

Our prayer services have been changed to Wednesday nights so that our pastor and wife can be present. Everyone try to come and help. We need you, and you need the church. — Reporter.

Empty butter cartons are handy for molding cookie dough that is to be stored in a refrigerator and chilled. As the carton is already waxed it needs no greasing, and takes little space in the refrigerator. When the dough is sliced to make cookies, each one will be of uniform size and shape.

Our Trip To Town

Mrs. Moore's Fourth Grade of Clanton Elementary School went to town on our trip. We went over the overhead bridge. We stopped to look at a train. We went to the post office. Mr. Harris showed us how the letters were put into the box. Then he showed us how the letters were post-marked, and how they were put into the transport bags.

Mr. Smith took us down in the furnace room to see the heating system, the stoker. He explained how he built the fire, and he had to keep up with the amount of coal used and the ashes left. Next Mr. Smith let us see where the money orders that were unclaimed were kept until called for or burned.

We went to Mr. Boockholdt's office. We saw where he kept the school books. He showed us the supply room. He showed us a trick about Eisenhower's and Stevenson's picture. We saw a picture of 40 Wayne buses when they were new.

After we left Mr. Boockholdt's office we went to the First National Bank. Mr. Jones showed us thrugh the bank. He showed us where the bookkeepers work. He showed us a door to the vault that weighed 13 tons. Inside the vault was a safe. Its door weighed six tons. We saw the room where they meet for conferences. Then we went upstairs and saw the supply room.

Harvest Sericea Seed Before They Shatter Off

Auburn, Ala. — One of Alabama's most important seed crops—lespedeza sericea—is almost ready for harvest.

Ralph Jones, API Extension seed marketing specialist, says sericea is now being grown on more than 400,000 acres of land in the state. The total seed harvest usually runs from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 pounds.

Jones adds that sericea is still growing in popularity. In fact a strong demand for seed of this crop is expected next year. Also, last year's crop was small and the carry-over of seed is low, which should mean a good price for sericea seed next season.

Faced with this favorable situation, Jones urges farmers to harvest as many sericea seed as possible.

"Remember that seed should be combined when most of them are firm, nearly hard, and turning brown," continues Jones. "A light frost aids harvesting, but a heavy frost causes shattering if harvest is delayed more than one or two days."

Jones further points out that combined seed will heat if they are not spread out and dried before sacking. Scarifying should be delayed until the seed have thoroughly dried.

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA — Postal regulations are the cause of one Marine's troubles in Korea and he can't complain about them. Pfc. Ronald W. Clarke of Long Island, N. Y., wrote home for a pair of leather boots.

His father purchased the boots, wrapped them and took them to the Post Office for mailing.

The Marine's dad finally mailed the boots, one to a package. So far only one package has arrived. Clarke now has a new boot for his left foot, none for the other.

He can't complain at the mail tent as other leathernecks do, for his job is mail clerk, 1st Battalion, Fifth Marines.

Cut Hog Feed Costs With White Clover

Auburn, Ala. — Solid stands of perennial legumes make the best green grazing crops for hogs.

D. R. Harbor, API Extension agronomist, admits they are more expensive to establish than annual crops, but usually they remain on the land several years if properly managed. Furthermore, he adds good legume grazing greatly reduces the amount of protein supplement hogs need and reduces somewhat the amount of grain eaten.

Harbor says two of the best perennial legumes to use for green hog grazing are white clover and alfalfa. On adapted land these crops may furnish grazing for hogs almost the year around.

While it is too late to seed alfalfa, except in South Alabama on a fallowed seedbed, white clover can still be planted on a prepared seedbed in all sections of the state. A seedbed prepared by turning the land and disking and harrowing it several times is best.

'It is best to use Ladino, a large type of white clover, on fertile clay or loam soil with a clay subsoil," states the specialist. "Either soil used must hold moisture well, if Ladino is to succeed. The crop should not be planted on poor droughty soils."

Harbor says that if it is questionable whether the clover will live over the summer on a particular field, it is wise to use Louisiana type white clover, an intermediate type which produces good yields of seed and reseeds itself.

"For complete information on how to grow white clovers," says Harbor, "see your local county agent or ask him for a copy of Extension Circular 398, White Clovers in Alabama."

Jemison Panthers Clip Calera High Eagles 12-0

The Jemison High School Panthers hung up their third straight victory last Friday afternoon when they goose-egged the Calera High School Eagles 12 to 0.

Taking the ball on their own 37 yard stripe the Panthers plugged, plunged and plowed through the Calera line for four successive first downs. With the ball on the Eagles 9 yard line, Don Price, JHS's left-half, banged through for the first score of the game.

On a line play Jemison failed to carry over the extra point. Neither side scored the second quarter, but Calera placed the ball on Jemison's 1 yard line and with three tries they couldn't gain an inch; in fact they lost ground on each try.

J.H.S. then took over and moved down to Calera's 38. On a fumble, Calera removed and made a long pass which was beautifully intercepted by Johnny Ogburn who ran 65 yards to Calera's 21 yard line. Two successive losses and a 15 yard penalty nullified Jemison's chances of scoring before this quarter ended.

It was in the third quarter that Jemison bagged their second touchdown. Fine blocking on the part of Cleckler, Hilyer, Fortner, Martin and Jones made it possible for Price to go across the connected line. The kick for the extra point failed. The Calera Eagles were powerless to gain through the Panther line, gaining only 19 yards, but their passing efforts were more successful; by this air attack they gained a total yardage of 148. They made 17 passes completing 11 of them.

Jemison attempted only one pass and it was incomplete. They made their gains on end runs and line bucking.

The final quarter resolved itself into a rather meek and drab affair as neither side made any serious threats to score.

The Panthers suffered three more casualties as Marcus, Ellison and Jones were side-lined with injuries. These, with Conway out with a busted collar bone, and Guin out with a pulled shoulder ligament, greatly reduces Jemison's strength.

JEMISON HIGH MEETS AUTAUGAVILLE AT JEMISON

Tomorrow night (Friday), October 10th, at 7:30, the Jemison Panthers take on the scrappy little team from Autaugaville. With several of our regulars out on account of injuries we're going to see several of the 1953-54 prospects out there a slam-banging away at their adversaries. Let me suggest that you see this one, as it stacks up to be a real gully-buster.

Remember game time — 7:30 p.m. at Jemison field.

HIGHLAND

Attendance was good for both Sunday School and Training Union this week end. Our new superintendent has asked everyone to help him work during the new year and build our Sunday School so that at the en dof the year's work much improvement can be seen. We know by cooperating and working together we can enlist those of our community who do not attend Sunday School and church worship. Won't you come and help us to make this an outstanding year in our work for the Lord and our church.

Everyone remember prayer service Thursday night at 7 o'clock.

Special prayer was offered Sunday night for Mrs. Ira Smith, who is in the Jefferson-Hillman Hospital in Birmingham. Let's all remember her in our daily prayers that it is God's Will she might soon be able to return home.

Mrs. Clifton Parrish entertained the last year's Intermediate Class last Friday night with a hot dog supper. Those attending reported a nice time.

The third Sunday in October is our annual all-day singing. We give everybody an invitation and especially all singers. We invite all to come and help us make the singing a great success.

Don't forget next week end our pastor, Bro. Deason, will be with us for our regular preaching services. Sunday School at 10:00 a.m., and Training Union at 6:00 p.m. Preaching will follow both services.

We will be looking for you at church Sunday. — Reporter.

You can overcome the annoyance of having a spoon slip from the edge of a pan by the use of a short length of coil spring. The spring is slipped over the edge of the pan and then the handle of the spoon is inserted between the coils. This will keep the spoon or other cooking instrument, at a reasonable temperature.

An empty salt carton that has a pouring spout provides an excellent flour dispenser. Placed near the stove, it will save many steps, and a flip of the spout closes it.

Forest Fires In State Prove To Be Expensive

Montgomery, Ala. — Alabama Conservation director Earl M. McGowin said today that the state had almost five times as many fires in July as in August principally because of the powder-dry woods during July.

McGowin said 189 fires during August damaged 1,801 acres of the State's forest, compared with 78,402 acres damaged by 936 fires in July. This was 43 times as much forest burn acreage in July as in August.

He said the high total of fires in July spoiled the state's good record made during the first six months of this year. In those months a total of 319 fires burned 4,972 acres of forested land compared with 345 fires that burned 8,819 acres during the first half of 1951.

Foresters blamed the high number of woods fires in July on the drought.

The conservation director also said that Alabama had fewer than half as many forest fires during the month of August this year as were recorded during the same month of 1951.

He said that in spite of the high number of fires and the large acreage burned in the past July, the state's record during the first eight months of 1952 was considerably better than during those months of 1951.

From January through August this year, 7,428 fires burned 296,220 acres of forest compared with 337,216 acres destroyed by 8,677 fires during the same period last year. This meant that 1.64 per cent of the state's forested area was burned through August, 1952, compared with a percentage of 1.86 per cent during the same period of 1951.

Throughout the periods of comparison, the state conservation department supervised protection of 18,111,598 acres of forested land.

Fires reported to the department during August this year averaged 9.5 acres in size compared with 32.1 acres average size for those reported during August, 1951.

McGowin said the decrease in number of fires and the average size of fires during the past month could be attributed to more favorable weather conditions and better reporting methods plus additional fire-fighting equipment secured by the department during the past few months.

y join the church? This is question that every pastor is sooner or later, and those sk it are entitled to a definite er. This month I would like scuss that question fully with The first reason is: The h is Unique.

this we mean that the church a class by itself. It is mis- g to even compare the church human organizations such as political parties, unions, s, and other man-made organ- ns. These groups are worthy good, but they cannot claim e Origin. Christ founded the h as the agency of spreading Gospel.

admit that there are some h members who are not saved hat the organizational church from perfect. This is beside oint, however, since your sal- is a matter between you and The sins of other people have fect o nyou and God will not you accountable for their gressions; only your own. That erefore, not a valid reason efusing to join the church.

conclusion, we see that the h is not merely "another y organization, "but it is exclusive agency for the sal- of souls. The church gh its teachings, will save the ideas and theories of hu- organizations won't. — Rev m Morgan.

We are happy to report a very good day at the Baptist Church last Sunday. The attendance was good. The pastor spoke Sunday morning on the subject, "Our Heavenly Record." He pointed out in this message that God is keeping a record of the deeds of our lives and that we are going to have to face that record before God. He pointed out that this is a very solemn thought since our deeds even though men may not know about them, are open before the eyes of God and are recorded in His record books. He appealed to the people to strive, by the help of God, to make their record clean and acceptable before God.

At the evening service the pastor spoke on 'Sinning Against The Holy Spirit." In this message he stressed four points; the sin of lying to the Holy Spirit, the sin of grieving the Holy Spirit, the sin of quenching the Holy Spirit and the sin of resisting or rejecting the Holy Spirit. In this message he pointed out the seriousness of sinning against the Holy Spirit. He spoke of where God killed two people as recorded in Acts for lying to the Holy Spirit. He pointed out several ways in which the Christian might grieve the Holy Spirit. Some he mentioned were: Unbecoming, unholy conversation, evil speaking, attitudes of our hearts, the places we go, our attitude toward the church and by defiling the body which is the temple of the Holy Spirit. He stressed to the unsaved the great danger of resisting the call of God to salvation. Everyone rejoiced over the coming of Miss Anne Collins and Miss Doris Collins accepting Christ as their personal Saviour. Surely this was the greatest moment of their lives.

Next Sunday morning at the morning service Bro. Raymond Cobb will be ordained as a deacon. The papstor will preach the sermon speaking on the subject, "Likewise The Deacons." He will speak Sunday night on the subject: "The Sin of Neglect." You have a special invitation to hear both of these messages next Sunday.

Mrs. Grover Bice returned home Monday from the West End Baptist in Birmingham. She is just doing fine.

Ways To Remove Mildew From Leather

It's nice to know that mildewed leather can be brought back into service in short order.

"One way to do the job," reveals Alice Peavy, API Extension home management specialist, 'is to wipe leather with a cloth that has been wrung out of diluted alcohol." She says to use one cup denatured alcohol to one cup water. Then, if necessary, wash with thick suds of a mild, neutral soap or saddle soap; wipe with a damp cloth; and dry in an airy place. When dry, polish leather with a good wax dressing.

To kill molds that have grown into leather goods, use formaldehyde candles," recommends the specialist. Fumigation will kill any molds present at the time, but it will not protect against future attacks."

Time To Buy Your Hunting License

Montgomery, Ala. — Conservation director Earl M. McGowin notified Alabama sportsmen today that the 1951-52 hunting, fishing and trapping licenses have expired and the new state licenses should be purchased immediately.

Almost half a million hunting and fishing licenses were sold to Alabama's anglers and hunters during the fiscal year which ended September 30. These licenses produced revenue totaling almost $600,000.

Licenses can be bought from probate judges and special agents throughout the state.

The new licenses which have been on sale several days went into effect October 1. The state resident license fee remains the same, $1 for fishing licenses and $3 for hunting. Resident hunting licenses permitting hunting in only the issuing county are $1.

Resident trappers will pay $2.50 for a fur catchers license plus revenue stamps or tags required on furs and pelts sold.

Non-resident licenses cost sportsmen $5 for annual fishing permit; $2 for a seven-day trip fishing permit; $25 for an annual hunting license and $5 for a seven-day hunting trip license.

The state has no open and closed fishing seasons and no size limits on fish under present regulations published by the Conservation Department.

Licenses will permit hunting during the following fall and winter seasons;

Rabbit, Octo. 15-Feb. 20. The rabbit season had been previously announced incorrectly, but the correct dates are Oct. 15-Feb. 20.

The theme of the conference was, "If we live in the Spirit, let us walk in the Spirit." Mrs. J. L. McMurtrie of the Memorial Presbyterian Church presided as group chairman. Mrs. J. B. Fort of the local church conducted the worship service, followed by Bible Study led by Mrs. H. B. Stewart of the First Presbyterian Church of Montgomery. The subject of the study was "Making the Word of God live." Mrs. R. P. Kennedy of Eufaula presented "Other Vital Studies of our Church Program." The group adjourned at 12 for lunch which was served in the private dining room of the Dixie Cafe.

After lunch, the group reconvened and reports on "Stewardship in Action" were made by the presidents of the seven churches represented. This district is comprised of the Women of the Church of the First Church of Prattville, Memorial and First Church of Montgomery, Shorter, Millbrook, Wetumpka and Clanton.

Committee Chairmen of the East Alabama Presbyterial gave an outline of "What's Expected," as follows:

Spiritual Growth, Mrs. H. B. Stewart, Montgomery; World Missions, Mrs. John March, Prattville; Church Extension, Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Andalusia; Education, Mrs. Colvin Crum, Hayneville; Stewardship, Mrs. L. H. McIntosh; Assembly's Causes, Mrs. Winston Smith, Opelika; Presbyterian Home, Mrs. J. W. Barron, Montgomery.

The meeting was concluded with a study, "Walking in the Spirit," conducted by Mrs. I. F. Reed, Presbyterial President of Auburn.

The group adjourned to meet next fall at Memorial Presbyterian Church, Montgomery, with Mrs. Boyd Leyburn, of Millbrook, as chairman.

Any person who has been in work covered by social security continuously since January 1, 1951, and is now 65 years old or over, is now insured and eligible for benefit payments if he retires, M. C. Folmar, manager of the Birmingham social security office said today. He added that a person is considered to be retired if he does not earn more than $75 a month in a job covered by social security.

The 1950 changes in the social security law make it possible for many persons in the newly covered groups to qualify for retirement benefits for the first time, Mr. Folmar said. These groups include the self-employed, regular domestic workers, regular farm workers, and others.

To get payments based solely on work brought under the law as of January, 1951, these wage earners and self-employed persons must be covered by scoial security for at least six calendar quarters—about a year and a half—after 1950. The size of their monthly benefit payment will depend on the average monthly wage from employment or income from self-employment after 1950.

Benefit payments to a retired worker will range from $25 to $85 monthly. Monthly benefits to a retired worker and his wife would range from $37.50 to $127.50 monthly.

Mr. Folmar pointed out that self-employed persons who file now cannot receive the maximum of $85 but that they can file an application to recompute their benefits after the end of the year so that the maximum could then be paid. This applies to those persons who earned at least $3600 in 1951 and at least $3600 in 1952.

Mr. Folmar suggested that persons anticipating retirement talk their situation over with the social security representative who is at the employment office in Clanton every Thursday at 1:30 p.m. Their retirement date might be very important in deciding the amount of their future benefits. He also stated that informational pamphlets describing the new amendments are available in his office without charge. "It's important," he said, "that everyone who is covered by social security be familiar with their rights and privileges."

Text books used for the study were the Bible and Forward Understanding the Bible by Georgia Harkness. Everyone participated in various ways with Mrs. Baugh acting as leader.

Each and everyone agreed that the day had been very rich in Christian fellowship from the hardest study right through the delicious meal.

Attention—

Attention parents, teachers and friends of our High School! Do you like fun, entertainment and the thrashing out of school problems? Then come to the P.-T.A. monthly meetings at the Home Economics Building.

Home Demonstration News—

There should have been more Home Demonstration Club members out to hear the interesting demonstration on reading, "The Band Around the Can." The demonstrations for next year are planned around doing things with our bands. We hope more young mothers and wives will attend.

Devotional, 46th Psalm was read by Mrs. Frankie Seales. The classic of the month, "Hungarian Dance No. 2" by Brahms-Joachim; and hymn of the month, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," by Martin Luther, was given by Mrs. Evie Cochran.

Last week in my news I stated that Maplesville football team had never won over West Blocton, but I have been informed that they have won over them twice, and tied them once. That was away back yonder when our teams played ball. The P-TA meets the 4th Thursday night of each month.

Maplesville School has come a long way in the last 20 years. It was made an accredited high school with the first graduating class in May, 1932. Back in those days we didn't have football teams, lunch rooms, inside rest rooms, furnace heat, Beta and Glee Clubs and a number of other things. I can well remember those big old stoves, by the time you got warm it was time to go home. Eating cold lunches if you didn't live close enough to go home.

Alabama Farm Bureau Favors Amendment No. 1

Montgomery — The Alabama Farm Bureau Federation has gone on record favoring adoption of Amendment No. 1 to be voted on November 4, known as the "Road Fund Protection Amendment." The action was taken at the Federations 31st annual convention in Auburn September 15-17 by delegates representing the 72,00 members of 67 county Bureaus.

Urging county Farm Bureaus and farm people generally to "vigorously support and vote for" the amendment, the resolution explained that the action would assure "that the money in the road fund cannot be spent for purposes other than for those for which it was originally intended." Speakers pointed out that the few special taxes which some localities have levied on gasoline for education or other purposes would not be repealed.

The farm organization again insisted on increased emphasis on farm-to-market roads in county, state and federal highway programs, recommended the county-unit system of road administration, and urged that county Farm Bureaus continue to confer with their public officials to see that the road program adequately serves rural areas. The American Farm Bureau Federation was "highly commended" for its sponsorship of farm-to-market road legislation.

Recognizing the serious lack of adequate rural medical service, the delegates urged that county farm bureaus join with other interested groups in programs to bring additional doctors into communities until they have service equal to the minimum standards. They expressed 'unalterable opposition" to socialization of medicine, and urged county Farm Bureaus to participate actively in the [illegible] of hospitals under the Hill-Burton Act and state legislation.

SWEETPOTATO CARE

Many Alabama-grown sweetpotatoes never reach the table because they are damaged by careless handling. Bruises and scratches resulting from rough handling provide an opening in the potato skin for decay to develop.

When you are in need of the polish, and none is at hand, try a little paste floor wax; this has a neutral color and may be used on either dark or light shoes

Farm Bureau Urges Political Activity

Montgomery — Declaring that the responsibility for te preservation of our democratic form of government rests with the individual," the Alabama Farm Bureau Federahas called upon its members to participate actively in the affairs of the political parties of their choice.

At the 31st annual convention in Auburn, the Federation also advocated continuation of a national farm program, including soil improvement, water conservation (including rain and storm control research), commodity loans, price supports, surplus control, stimulation of exports," and other measures needed to place farm people on a parity with others."

Favoring mandatory variable price supports, with the support at 90 per cent of parity when the supply of a commodity is normal in order to make farm income average parity, the Bureau advocated adequate production and declared fundamental opposition to the payment of subsidies in lieu of fair prices in the market place."

The resolution on Constitutional government and citizenship said that citizenship begins in the home and community. It implies the thorough study of local, state, national and international issues and, as a result, the intelligent use of our cherished right to vote."

It commended educational, informational and promotional programs designed to develop leadership and stimulate greater civic responsibility on teh part of rural people.

In the dining room the tea table was spread with an exquisite imported linen cut-work cloth, edged with lace. The low center-piece was of the club flowers and colors, white carnations with greenery. Silver appointments completed the table decorations.

Mrs. J. H. Lawrence poured tea and assisting in the dining room were Mrs. Robert Powers, Mrs. W. C. Maddox, Mrs. Charles Patterson and Mrs. Charles Moore.

During the program most gracious greetings to the club members and guests were given by Mrs. J. A. Hester.

Vast Progress Made In Government Of County During Democratic Terms

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

The other day I was talking with a friend about the World War II record of Dave Tingle who is a candidate for the office of Probate Judge on the Democratic Ticket this November 4th. Just to satisfy my own curiosity I delved into the records and came up with a piece about Dave that was published in the Bessemer Advertiser several years ago but gives a pretty complete picture of what happened to Dave after that memorable night in February of 1944.

"We bailed out at twenty-three thousand feet after two motors of our plane were afire. It was pretty cold up there, about fifty-four degrees below zero."

Thus Staff Sergeant Maynard D. Tingle, United States Army Air Forces, began the story of his experiences during eleven months as a prisoner of the Germans; and in the quiet even tones of the young soldier's voice one felt the bitter, biting cold of that February night over Austria. Three minutes from the target the bail-out order came and it seemed only a matter of seconds after that Sergeant Tingle was hit in the right arm and leg by 20 mm. fire. There was, however, nothing of swiftness in the two hours of time he lay huddled in three feet of snow, waiting — for something, he knew not what—to happen. What did happen was his being discovered by a German soldier and a civilian and promptly carted off to a hospital. That was on February 24, 1944. That night the hospital shook crazily under the rain of bombs from RAF raiders swarming through the winter skies, but Maynard Tingle was being saved from death even then. Three days later he was in a prison camp. He was to stay in that camp, or others like it for nearly a year.

In the sound of the quiet voice reaching back into the past to bring it to the men grouped around him there was no bitterness, only remembering, and one sentence seemed to hang suspended for seconds in the air. It was simply uttered in a matter-of-fact way that carried more conviction than any emphasis could have given it.

"When a man gets hungry enough, he'll eat anything."

Treatment of the prisoners was good, said Tingle. The Germans gave them food to keep them alive. The Red Cross gave them food and clothes on which they learned to rely as their real source of whatever pleasure and encouragement was possible.

During the next few months Sergeant Tingle was operated on three times, twice by Italian surgeons and once by a German surgeon. After a while his leg began to heal and he could move around. The YMCA kept the camp supplied with recreational equipment, games, and books. Most of these men were sick or wounded, and there was time to do a lot of reading.

"I read about two hundred books," said Sgt. Tingle.

On October 14, 1944, a repatriation commission visited the camp. There were two Swiss and two German doctors. They came, examined the men, and went away again. On December 26, the day after Christmas, a French padre visited the camp and told Sgt. Tingle that he was to be repatriated. On January 5 twenty-five Americans left the camp and began a journey that was to take them three days and three nights across Germany to Constance, Switzerland, where the exchange was affected. As they continued their journey through France en route to the Port of Marseilles the Red Cross was always in evidence, with food, tobacco and small luxuries.

The homeward-bound Americans, some Canadians, and Latin-Americans sailed from Marseilles aboard the Gripsholm February 8 and arrived at New York February 22.

And so, Maynard Tingle is at home, with the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf cluster; the Purple Heart, and a Presidential Citation to bear evidence that here is a soldier who has done well the task he faced.

School Enrollment Figures Sought By Census Bureau

New national figures on school enrollment will be available from information obtained in the October Current Population Survey, according to District Supervisor Mary L. Griffin of the U.S. Census Bureau. Supervisor Griffin pointed out that the Current Population Survey would be conducted here and in 67 other areas throughout the country during the week of October 13.

Last year's survey showed that 30,500,000 persons 5 to 29 years old were enrolled in school or college at the beginning of the 1951-1952 school year, Supervisor Griffin said. The corresponding number enrolled in October 1950 was 30,100,000. The high enrollment was due primarily to the presence in the elementary grades of a large number of children born shortly before and during World War II. In October 1951, the number of children 7 to 13 years old attending school was nearly 18 million, an increase of about 725,000 over the previous year, and 3,[illegible],000 more than the comparable number in October 1945.

Supervisor Griffin stated that the questions on school enrollment will be asked in addition to the usual monthly questions on employment and unemployment.

STATE CATTLEMEN MARKET MORE BEEF

Auburn, Ala. — During the last several weeks farmers in Alabama and other states have brought an increasing amount of beef to market — a product consumers have wanted to see more of for a long time.

A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist, says that enough cattle and calves have been sold to reduce all along the line the prices paid for beef.

For the month ending in mid-August, 14 per cent more cattle and calves went through stockyards than during the same time last year. By mid-September prices paid cattlemen for good and choice grade slaughter calves was about 28 per cent less than they received a year earlier.

The specialist states that this increase in the beef supply is beginning to show up in lower prices for many beef cuts at meat counters. This is particularly true for young tender beef carrying a high percentage of lean.

CHOOSE RIGHT FABRIC FOR PLEASANT SEWING

Auburn, Ala. — To show individuality, details of a garment to be made at home can be varied from the original pattern.

"However," warns Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, "the amount of time you have and sewing experience should guide you in your choice of both the materials and pattern."

For instance, she explains, sewing short cuts can be used easier on firmly woven, medium weight fabrics than on sheer, slippery rayons. Solid or small all-over designs are simpler to handle, need less detailed trimming, finishing, and perfect workmanship.

"Also," adds the specialist, "buy the right amount of material, not from a personal estimate, but from the chart on the back of the pattern. The chart gives the yardage for the different widh fabrics, sizes and syles."

County Schools Enroll In News Oratorical Contest

A large number of schools are already enrolled in The Birmingham News oratorical contest for 1952-53, with additional enrollments being received daily

Indications are that there is greater interest in this contest than ever before.

The basic subject is "Abraham Lincoln." Contestants may use the basic subject, one of the suggested topics, or a topic of their own selection, provided it is sufficiently related to the basic subject.

Schools of this county already enrolled in The Birmingham News oratorical contest are as follows:

Senior High Schools:

Jemison High, junior and senior departments.

Verbena High, junior and senior departments.

Maplesville High, junior and senior departments.

Isabella High, Route 1, Maplesville, junior and senior departments.

Chilton County High, Clanton, junior and senior departments.

Two contests are being conducted, one for senior high schools, the other for junior high. Combined schools which have both senior and junior high departments may compete in both contests, provided they enroll in both. Grammar schools which have junior high work may compete in the junior high contest.

State finals for both senior and junior high contests will be held at Birmingham-Southern College. Birmingham-Southern will award tuition scholarships valued at $3,600 to State Finalists of the senior high contest. The News will award cash prizes in both contests and will pay railroad fare and hotel bill of each visiting state finalist and chaperon. There is no charge to schools or pupils for participation.

THE SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club met Friday, October 10, 1952. The vice-president, Jimmy Dennis, called the meeting to order. The subject of our meeting was about bees. We were delighted to have Mr. Luther Little who talked to us about them. It was very interesting.

Here are some of the topics: How he got interested in bees; how he made his boxes; how many bees a mother has, and many other things.

Refreshments were served. The hostesses were Ann Deason and Kathy Wade. — Reporter, Kathy Wade.

A GOOD RECORD

When a member of an official body can attend all meetings for a period of four years without a miss that is a record to be proud of. And that is the record of James M. Dunlap on the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County. Mr. Dunlap has attended every regular meeting and every special or call meeting since he has been elected to the office he now holds and is a candidate for in the General Election in November.

Faithfulness to a public trust is a thing that some of our elected officials take too lightly and it is with a deep sense of respect that we congratulate Mr. Dunlap on his record as a member of the governing body of our county.

URGE SERVICEMEN TO VOTE

Readers of Chilton County News who have friends or relatives in the armed services are urged to write them at once requesting that they take the advantage of voting by mail.

We understand the serviceman can go to his Voting Officer and get a "war ballot" postcard to mail for his absentee but whatever the method necessary for him to vote it is worthwhile and should be attended to NOW.

KOREAN ALTERNATIVES

Republicans continue unabated their efforts to make a political football out of the war in Korea.

General Eisenhower each day tries to make political capital of the American people's undeniable aversion to war and American casualties in foreign lands. But he offers no way to end the casualties short of turning Asia over to the Reds.

Against the General's thoughtless suggestion that we arm Koreans and withdraw American troops, and his charges that the Democrats caused the Korean War in the first place, Governor Adlai Stevenson presents the arguments of common sense. He offers no miracles, but takes his stand squarely, in these plain words:

"We have yielded neither to the hotheads who wanted to extend the war, nor to the weak-kneed who wanted to quit when the going was tough. Let no one tell you that there are any cheap and easy solutions to this problem. There is no substitute for the long, the complex, patient process of building strength and unity in the free world."

In its essence, the Korean situation offers three alternatives:

1. Pull out American troops and let the Communists overrun Korea, with the rest of Asia defenseless.

2. Attack Red China and the vast wastes of Manchuria, setting off World War III by aggression, in a vain move to stop a smaller conflict.

3. Continue the difficult truce negotiations which, seemingly endless, have nevertheless reduced casualties and represent an honest attempt to bring peace.

If the GOP has a fourth alternative, which would avoid American casualties, yet prevent the Communists from taking Asia, the American people, Democrats and Republicans alike, would be only too glad to hear it.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Maybe one of these days I'll learn not to ask the three-year-old questions, especially questions which, as the lawyers say, might tend to incriminate him.

The three-year-old isn't very fond of wearing clothes, and he particularly dislikes wearing shirts and shoes. Even on chilly mornings he would go out to play shirtless and shoeless if he had his way.

Well, he was fully clothed when he went out the other morning, but when he came in to ask for an apple a short time later he was minus both shirt and shoes. I should have known better, but I asked:

"Where is your shirt?" intending to inquire about the shoes as soon as we got the shirt situation settled.

He didn't hesitate a moment, just took a big bite out of his apple and said:

"Well, a great big wind came along and blew it off, and it went flying up toward heaven."

This answer took me so completely by surprise I didn't recover in time to ask about the shoes. But I'm pretty sure they must have followed the same route.

Accidents will happen, especially around our house. The other morning I was taking advantage of a temporary lull to write a few notes to friends, telling them about the new baby. The note writing was going fine until I turned over the bottle of ink and spilled it in a puddle on the floor.

My frantic efforts to wipe it up were of no avail, so, as often happens, I turned to the next door neighbor for help. As always, she knew exactly what to do to remove the stain.

First she dissolved an ounce of oxalic-acid granules (from her own supply) in a pint of hot water. When this had cooled, she brushed it on the stain and then left with instructions for me to repeat the brushing until the stain had disappeared. The treatment removed every trace of ink from the floor.

Our handyman neighbor down the street has been painting the woodwork in his house, a job his wife has been trying to get him to do for months.

When we stopped by late the other afternoon, he was painting the windows, and he wasn't even trying to keep the paint from getting on the glass.

"Let it splash," he said gainly when we inquired about the painted panes. "For years I tried to use a shield to keep the paint off the panes, but now I know better.. Instead of using up my time and patience, I don't bother about the paint on the glass; I let it dry and then scrape it off with a razor blade. Quick and so easy.

Our neighbor around the corner is laying in a supply of bubble gum for the "trick or treat" visitors on Hallowe'en night.

When the ghosts and goblins come calling at your house, maybe they'd like old-fashioned, sugar cookies made like this:

Cream 1 cup sugar with ½ cup lard. Add 1 beaten egg. Sift together 2 cups flour, ¼ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Add to creamed mixture alternately with ¾ cup sour milk. Add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Drop on greased cookie sheet, sprinkle with sugar and bake in moderate oven (400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes.

REPLACEMENT HEIFERS RAISED ON THE FARM

Most Alabama dairymen know the future of their herds depends on the supply of replacement heifers raised on their farms.

And J. R. Parrish, API Extension dairyman, urges those who are interested to get plans and details on portable calf pens from the local county agent. Use of these pens will solve many disease and parasite problems for the dairyman.

KEEP BEARINGS IN PROPER ADJUSTMENT

Auburn, Ala. — It is important to keep bearings in proper adjustment to retain a film of lubricant over all wearing surfaces, keep parts in proper alignment, and reduce excessive clearance which may cause destructive pounding.

J. T. Gaillard, API Extension farm mechanization specialist, says that at the end of each operating season, bearings that have been subjected to dirt, dust, and chaff should be carefully inspected. Wherever possible, bearings should be flushed with kerosene and lubricated.

Gaillard states that automotive-type bearings used in tractors and other heavy duty equipment generally require no special attention, other than regular lubrication, except in case of failure or when equipment is overhauled.

Short lengths of soda straw inserted through slits in a pie crust permit steam to escape and prevent juice from running over in the even.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

BLOOD VESSEL DISEASES

There are approximately one thousand miles of blood vessels in the average human body. These vessels vary in size, from about one and one-half to two inches in diameter to a size so small that they would transmit only one blood cell at a time.

The parts of the circulatory system which supply the extremities of the body are known as the peripheral blood vessels. Two of the most common diseases involving the peripheral blood vessels are Buerger's disease and arteriosclerosis In Buerger's disease there is an inflammation within the lining of the blood vessel wall which produces a thickening and a resultant narrowing of the luminal opening. In a diseased blood vessel, a deposit of a fatty substance, known as cholesterol, will be evident in the inner lining layer and the layer immediately beneath it. This is the abnormal deposition which occurs in the condition known as arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries.

Both conditions then produce not only a narrowing of the luminal opening but also a loss of elasticity of these blood vessel walls. Thus the blood flow is not even and smooth as it should be but more or less impeded and even obstructed. In addition to impairing the blood flow, the deposits and infections responsible for the narrowing of the blood vessels can produce such a pronounced narrowing that blood clots can be formed within the artery itself which ultimately may lead to the development of gangrene.

While Buerger's disease and arteriosclerosis produce changes throughout the body, these changes are much more extensive in the lower extremities. They result in muscle cramping on walking, coldness of the skin of the feet, as well as a change in color and consistency of the skin. The skin is thin and inelastic in the involved extremities and may be extremely pale or fiery red or dark blue in color.

There are several diagnostic tools to aid the physician in determining the extent of inadequate circulation. Once the exact diagnosis has been established, every effort is made to improve the blood flow Management is directed to the prevention of a recurrence of an acute episode and prevention of the development of a gangrenous condition.

ROOM FOR EXPANDING GRASSLAND FARMING

Grazing crops are the most important source of feed nutrients for beef and dairy cattle, according to S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist.

He points out that they also play an important role in producing other types of livestock. And on most farms there are areas of open land that are of such slope that row crops cannot be grown continuously without serious erosion damage.

Therefore, the specialist urges farmers to devote such land to sod crops. In Alabama where these crops may be grown the year around, grazing largely eliminates the added labor of harvesting, storing, and drying forage for winter months.

Mr. And Mrs. Will Reynolds Attend Aunt's 100th Birthday Party Oct. 4

Mr. and Mrs. Will Reynolds who recently celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary were guests at their aunt's one hundredth birthday party. On October 4th Mrs. Naomi Walker of Calera celebrated her one hundredth birthday. This unique occasion brought friends and relatives from over the State to show affectionate homage to this beloved woman who attributes her longevity to a close walk with God.

Mrs. Walker is the mother of eight children. Six are living and were at their mother's birthday party. The eldest, a son, is seventy-seven years old. Five generations were represented as the children and grand-children gathered to do honor to Mrs. Walker's venerable age.

Surrounded by beautiful flowers and gifts Mrs. Walker received her guests with a lively enthusiasm. A handsome birthday cake decorated with one hundred brightly burning birthday candles was the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds. One hundred special friends sent Mrs. Walker one hundred birthday cards, each containing a new dollar bill. Thus, a shower of one dollar bills, one for each year, gave Mrs. Walker a fine gift of $100. Another shower of cards came from the fourth grade of Milbrook chool. A great, great, great niece, ttle Jinny Burke, who is a grandaughter of Mrs. Myrtle Pitts is member of this class. A grandson Mrs. Walker's, a camera en[illegible] was [illegible] taking pictures Mrs. Walker and the assembled [illegible] and friends.

The women [illegible] the Church of hrist were [illegible] at the party. Mrs. Walk[illegible] most esteemed ember. Coffee and cake were rved by the women [illegible] the [illegible] to those who called on Mrs Walker. Among the visitors were three nieces, Mrs. Mattie Fox and Mrs. Emmy Eddings of Birmingham and Mrs. Will Reynolds of Clanton. To great nieces present were Mrs. John Tucker of Birmingham and Mrs. Myrtle Pitts of Clanton. Also present was Mr. Will Reynolds of Clanton, whom Mrs. Walker vows is her most favorite nephew.

The pastor of Mrs. Walker's church chose the One Hundredth Psalm as a text when he spoke on the inspiration and beauty of her life.

"Serve the Lord with gladness—
Be thankful unto him and bless his name—
For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting;
And his truth endureth to all generations."

The One Hundredht Psalm has provided the pattern for a noble life, that family and friends attest is a great benediction.

With a twinkle in her eye Mrs. Walker said, "I have not been to church in a year or so—I must be getting old."

VARIETY MEATS VERSUS COSTLY MUSCLE MEATS

Many homemakeks use variety meats to help stretch the meat-dollar because they are less expensive than muscle meats.

Explaining this statement, Mary Hulsey, API Extension nutritionist, says that when meat with bone is bought for roasts, broiling, or frying, a serving for each adult is usually one-half pound and four to six ounces for children, depending upon their ages.

"On the other hand," says the nutritionist, "abuot one-half of these quantities is sufficient when boned roasts, cutlets, hamburgers, Swiss or cube steaks, liver, tongue, heart, or kidneys are served."

PLEASANT GROVE METHODIST

(Too Late For Last Week)

Sunday was our regular preaching day. Rev. J. W. Gibson brought the 11:00 message to a large crowd. Fred Hosey delivered the evening message to a good crowd.

There was the largest crowd out for Sunday School Sunday than has been in several years. We set our goal for 50 attendance but had 62. The young people's room was filled and chairs had to be brought in for some to have a place to sit down. We are mighty proud of this record and want to keep it up. We know that we can for we all need to go to church.

Mrs. Lula Best took Sunday dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Evans Chesteen.

Mrs. James Hosey and Sue spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hosey.

Mrs. Cora Atkinson spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Dubbin.

Several from here attended the Chilton County Singing Convention at the courthouse Sunday.

Sgt. and Mrs. Arthur Henley and Linda, from Enterprise, Alabama, spent the week with relatives and friends. They also attended church Sunday. We were glad to see them back with us at church again.

Let us all remember to continue to come to church. Remember our pastor in your prayers.—Reporter.

The Men's Fellowship Club met last Monday night to continue their training in "Evangelism." The program was under the direction of the pastor, Rev. M. K. Vickers. There were 29 present to enjoy an evening of good fellowship and a good spaghetti supper.

We had a good representation from our church at the Sub-District Meeting at Prattville last Monday night when nine of our young people attended.

The date for the revival is drawing very near, October 19th through October 26th, when Dr. Allen Moore will bring us some very helpful and inspiring massages. The services will be held throughout the week at 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., except Saturday. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

The Circles of the W.S.C.S. met last Monday at the homes of the hostesses. This meeting each month is looked forward to by many of the members as a time for planning the work of each circle and to enjoy the pleasant social hour.

Pilot News—

On September 30, the Pilot Club of Clanton met in the private dining room of the Dixie Cafe for the regular program meeting and one of the clubs famous package sales, with Marguerite Perry, president, presiding.

The Club Collect was given by Helen Parrish.

Club members and visitors enjoyed the auction sale of packages, with Jean Lake as auctioneer. The purpose of these sales are to raise money for the community activities of the club. Each member brings a package or two which go to the highest bidder.

Following the sale, Ruth Waters, in behalf of the club, presented Mamie C. Smith with a beautifully decorated autumn basket filled with packages from members of the club. These lovely gifts were given with appreciation and love to this only active charter of the club. Mrs. Smith joined the club when organized in 1931 and has been a faithful member, helping with the rummage sales on Saturdays and contributing her time and energy to other projects of the club.

The autumn gift basket was decorated by Clara Ward and Ruth Waters.

Guests of the club were: Mrs. Louie Smith and Ann Thompson.

The meeting was closed with the group singing the Pilot song, "Sail On International."

The October business meeting was held at the Dixie on Tuesday evening of this week.

Coughs, Colds And Complications

Infections of the respiratory tract cause more loss of time from industry and from schools than all other diseases combined; and economically, the common cold alone costs the American public some two billion dollars a year.

Actually the respiratory tract involves the nose, the sinuses, the throat, the larynx, the trachea and the lungs. The entire nasal cavity is lined by mucous membrane; and it is the mucous membrane that is attacked by viruses, microorganisms or bacteria. The nose acts as a steam heating system supplying heat and moisture to the inhaled air. The coarse hairs in the nostrils trap and filter dust particles. However, finer particles pass these filtering stations and are deposited on some part of nasal mucous membrane.

On the surface of the membrane are delicate hairs called cilia which cannot be seen with the naked eye and which move back and forth approximately 250 times a minute. A thin blanket of mucus lies directly on top of the cilia, and this combined with the wavy movement of the hairs constitute an effective defense against attack by air-borne bacteria. It is when the defense is broken that these bacteria penetrate the outer covering of the mucus, getting into tissue proper and resulting in inflammation.

Complications following a common cold may be sinusitis, pharyngitis, tonsilitis, laryngitis, or bronchitis. In all these infections of the lower respiratory tract, coughing and expectoration of quantities of phlegm are common symptoms and cause great distress.

Unfortunately the exact cause of the common cold is not known. The so-called antihistaminics have proved of little value scientifically, since they do not act against the viruses or bacteria which are believed to cause infectious colds.

Until more is known about the common cold, bed rest and certain of the simpler drugs to relieve discomfort are to be recommended. While colds seem more frequent in the winter months, they are also common in all seasons of the year and, if neglected, can lead to many complications of the respiratory tract.

ORDER OF SERVICES—
Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
Morning Worship 11:00.
Baptist Training Union 6:00 p.m.
Evening Worship 7:00.
Prayer Meeting (Wed.) 7:00 p.m.
Choir practice (Thur.) 7:00 p.m.

The services at the Baptist Church last Sunday were well attended. At the morning service Mr. Raymond Cobb was ordained deacon. Rev. Daniel, the pastor, stressed the importance of the mid-week prayer and praise service. There were 34 present for that service last week. The pastor is urging the membership to try to see the importance of this service and make it one of the best attended services of the church.

The plans are now to have a baptismal service next Sunday evening at the beginning of the evening worship hour. Those awaiting baptism at the present are Anne and Doris Collins.

We are happy to announce a revival at the Thorsby Baptist Church beginning November 2nd. Rev. L. E. Daniel, the pastor, will do the preaching and Mr. R. O. Stone, Jr., from Chattanooga, Tenn., will lead the music. Mr. Stone is a young man, but already an outstanding music director. His wife is also a musician and will be with him. We ask the Christian people to join us in prayer for a great revival in Thorsby.

Mrs. John Childress underwent a second operation Saturday morning at the Selma Baptist Hospital in Selma. Mrs. Childress remains a very sick person, but we trust she will soon be better.

Mrs. A. I. Collins is in New Orleans Hospital for check-up. No news yet as to her condition.

Mrs. Leila Martin of Alabama City is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Marion Smith, this week.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00. Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome. We are continuing our discussion on the subject, "Why Join the Church?" We come today to our second reason. It is:

The Church is the Divinely appointed custodian of the Word and Sacraments.

When a penitent sinner is converted through the preaching of the Gospel, he is baptized and is authorized to participate in the Lord's Supper. The unchurched cannot receive either of these sacraments because it is feared that saving faith cannot exist where one refuses to affiliate himself with the church; and these sacrements are to be administered to believers only. The unchurched thus deprive themselves of the spiritual blessings that they would receive from participation in these spiritual ordinances of the church.

Do not delay, dear friend. Affiliate yourself with some branch of Christ's church and rest assured that your sins are forgiven.—Rev. William Morgan.

Congregational Church—

On this coming Sunday, October 19th, the Men's Fellowship will take complete charge of the morning service in observance of laymen's Sunday. Mr. C. M. At the evening service on this Sunday, the religious film, "More for Peace," will be shown. This film has an excellent religious message, and was prepared especially for showing in Congregational churches. Everyone is cordilaly invited to attend. The film will last 45 minutes. The service begins at 7:15.

The Men's Fellowship will hold its regular monthly meeting on October 16th, at 7:00 p.m., at the home of Mr. Lewis Johnson.

Chilton County Tigers Tame Columbiana Wildcats 18-6

By HAL SMYER

Chilton County High School defeated Shelby County High School last Friday night at Columbiana by the score of 18 to 6. This makes four wins for the Chilton Tigers in their five games this season.

Clanton won the toss of the coin and selected to receive the kickoff. Billy Holland kicked off to the Tiger 20 yard line and Roy Mims returned to the 24. Mims and Don Askins picked up two yards each, then Nedford Williams clipped off 13 yards for a first down on the 39. Askins lost one yard, then gained four. Mims passed to Ed Littlejohn who did a circus juggling act for five yards, then pulled in the pigskin for keeps and raced untouched to the end zone. The play was good for 58 yards and the Tigers first TD. Joe Ellison's place-kick for the extra point was wide. Earl Smith's kick-off covered 52 yards but was returned 27 yards by Earl Riley of the Wildcats. Riley, Deward Averett and Charles Blackerby marched for five consecutive first downs, with the aid of an eleven yard penalty against the Tigers, to the Tiger one yard line. Averett lost one yard, then Riley crossed the double stripe and scored Holland's place kick for the extra point was low of the cross-bar. Score, Tigers 6, Wildcats 6.

Corky Oaks received Holland's kickoff on his 15 and was downed on his 25. Oaks then gained 13, Williams two, then Oaks passed from the 40 yard line and was incomplete. Mims passed in the right flat to Smith, who ran to the 30 and fumbled as he was tackled, the Wildcats recovering the fumble. David Finn, on two end-around plays, picked up a first down on his 40. The Tiger line allowed only nine yards on the next three plays, forcing Holland to punt. Holland's kick of 46 yards went out of bounds on the Tiger five yard line. Oaks gained nine, Askins failed to gain, then Askins made it a first down on the 22. Oaks swept right end and lateraled to Mims, the lateral was wide and the Wildcats recovered the ball on the 16 yard line. Tiger line started knocking hard, and the Wildcats gained only to the ten yard line in four downs, losing possession to the Tigers. Smith gained four, Williams's pass was incomplete, Askins gained eleven, and a five yard penalty in favor of the Tigers, the ball was advanced to the 30. Littlejohn circled right end on an end-around play and sprinted 40 yards before being knocked down on the opponents 30. Williams's pass was incomplete, Oaks lateraled to Mims, who went for eight yards, Askins failed to gain, then Williams making a first down on the twenty by inches. The Wildcats took possession and gained only two yards in three plays before the horn was blown ending the first half, and the score deadlocked!

Coach Spicer must have given the Tigers a good pep-talk during the half-time period, for the Tigers came out fighting more than ever and allowed the Wildcats to penetrate into Tiger territory only once (to the 42) during the entire second half. The third two bits began with Brasher returning Smith's short kickoff twelve yards to his 40. Hatchett, Averett and Blackberby gained ground to the Tiger 42, then Riley was thrown for a five yard loss. Being fourth down, Holland attempted to punt and Rusty Shelton shot through the center of the line like a bullet and blocked the kick, proceeded to chase down the bouncing pigskin, gained possession on a good bounce, nearly stumbled twice and raced untouched 48 yards to pay dirt. Ellison's attempted place-kick for the extra point was not good. Smith kicked off to the 25, Brasher returned kick to the 40, where the Tiger line held fast three plays and Glennis Askins recovered Riley's fumble, giving the Tigers possession on the Wildcat 37 yard line. Mims gained eight, Askins four, then Littlejohn took off on another end-around jaunt for 22 yards, to the Wildcat three yard line. Littlejohn was called upon again on the end-around play and scored, but the play was called back and Clanton penalized five yards. Askins hit center for one, the Wildcats were off-side on the next play and the officials advanced the ball to the two yard line. Askins, Smith and Williams failed to cross the goal line and the Wildcats possession, via downs on the their own one yard line.

Holland's punt from the end zone was nearly blocked by Shelton and later downed on the Wildcat 45. Mims gained two, then spiraled a pass to Smith, who was tackled on the 25. Askins picked up two through the Wildcat line, Williams's long pass to Smith was incomplete, Mims gained one yard, then passed to Askins in the left flat, which was good for 12 yards. Askins gained three, then Mims went off right tackle, rocketed off two would-be tacklers and crossed the goal line standing up.

Ellison's attempted place-kick for the extra point was partially blocked and low of the cross bar. Score—Clanton 18, Columbiana 6.

Smith's kick-off covered 40 yards and was returned by Brasher to his 38. Bantons gained five yards, then Ray Williams racked up Blackerby with a hard tackle which made him lose two yards as the third quarter ended. Riley's pass went incomplete and Holland punted to the Tiger four yard line. Mims returned the punt two yards, then the Wildcats were penalized fifteen yards on the next play. Mims and Askins made short gains but not enough for a first down and Ellison punted from his 30 to the Wildcat 38. Riley returned the punt to his 44, threw an incomplete pass and on the next play the Wildcats fumbled, Shelton of the Tigers recovering on the midfield stripe. Mims threw an incomplete pass, gained six yards running and Askins gained two running, Ellison punted 37 yards and Ray Williams hustled down field and downed the ball on the Wildcat five yard line. Gantons gained two, but to no avail as the Wildcats were penalized five yards on the next play. Holland punted on next down, the kick covering 57 yards, Mims returning for two yards. Oaks gained seven, Askins one, then Askins bulldozed twelve, then 18 yards, to the Wildcat 20. Oaks picked up 8, Askins 1, Williams four yards and enough for first down on the eight yard line. Oaks gained one and Williams lost five yards attempting to pass as the game ended. Score—Tigers 18, Wildcats 6. W-A-R E-A-G-L-E, Eat 'em up, Tigers!

Littlejohn netted 120 yards for the Tigers; Askins 86; Oaks 48; Smith 48; Shelton 48; and Mims 32. Hatchett was leading ground gainer for the Wildcats, accounting for 30 yards. Tiger scoring thus far this season is as follows: Littlejohn 42 points, Williams 30, Smith 18, Ellison 13, Askins 12, Mims 12, Caton 12, Hardy 6, Harris 6, Shelton 6, and Oaks 1.

MR. J. W. PRICE of Sardis Community takes time out from pasture preparation to get a drink of water that his wife has thoughtfully brought to the field. Mr. and Mrs. Price are developing a dairy program as fast as possible and they feel that a sound pasture program should be the foundation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Price of Sardis Community have been selling milk for a year. They are convinced that good dairy cows will bring in as much or more regular cash income than any farm crop.

Last November Mr. and Mrs. Price started selling milk to Carnation Company from five cows. After looking back over the year's operation they find that an average of 1½ cans of 4.9% milk has been sold per day. In checking on the average cash income it was found that each cow earned $200 for the milking period or a total of $1,000.

The prices have increased their herd to 15 cows and all of them will be milking within three months. If production is normal, four cans of milk per day should be sold. At the present price of milk the monthly check will amount to better than $300. To save time and labor, Mr. and Mrs. Price plan to put in a milking machine very soon.

Since home-grown feed is so essential to their dairy program, Mr. and Mrs. Price are developing pasture just as fast as possible. For summer pasture 10 acres of Sericea is being used and 15 acres of Coastal Bermuda will be planted just as quick as possible. Winter grazing consist of 15 acres of oats and 10 acres of crimson clover and rye grass.

Mr. and Mrs. Price have two children—Barbara Jean and Julius Randall. For a 4-H project Mr. Price plans to buy a purebred heifer for each child just as soon as sufficient pasture is developed. Both children will start their own dairy project and will have a personal interest in the farming operation.

School Enrollment Figures Sought By Census Bureau

New national figures on school enrollment will be available from information obtained in the October Current Population Survey, according to District Supervisor Mary L. Griffin of the U.S. Census Bureau. Supervisor Griffin pointed out that the Current Population Survey would be conducted here and in 67 other areas throughout the country during the week of October 13.

Last year's survey showed that 30,500,000 persons 5 to 29 years old were enrolled in school or college at the beginning of the 1951-1952 school year, Supervisor Griffin said. The corresponding number enrolled in October 1950 was 30,100,000. The high enrollment was due primarily to the presence in the elementary grades of a large number of children born shortly before and during World War II. In October 1951, the number of children 7 to 13 years old attending school was nearly 18 million, an increase of about 725,000 over the previous year, and 3,200,000 more than the comparable number in October 1945.

Supervisor Griffin stated that the questions on school enrollment will be asked in addition to the usual monthly questions on employment and unemployment.

POPLAR SPRINGS

(Too Late For Last Week)

Our Sunday School and Training Union was very well attended Sunday and Sunday night, but there are others in our community we would like to have attend our church.

Mr. Jesse Thornton has returned home from the Central Alabama Hospital, but still isn't able to be up. Please remember he and all other sick people in prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Jones and children, Mrs. Dave Jones and Miss Jeanette Wilson visited Oak Park Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Armstrong and James, Mrs. John Cox visited Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cox in Centreville Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Wilson, Billy and Elaine, visited Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hand in Selma Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson and Larry of Wetumpka spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Traywick.

Everyone remember our W.M.U. meeting will be Wednesday night, October 15th. Also G.A., R.A. and Sunbeams meeting. So every mother come and bring the children. Every other Wednesday night is prayer meeting. So be sure to come.

The time for our night services to begin is six-thirty.

STATE CATTLEMEN MARKET MORE BEEF

Auburn, Ala. — During the last several weeks farmers in Alabama and other states have brought an increasing amount of beef to market — a product consumers have wanted to see more of for a long time.

A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist, says that enough cattle and calves have been sold to reduce all along the line the prices paid for beef.

For the month ending in mid-August, 14 per cent more cattle and calves went through stockyards than during the same time last year. By mid-September prices paid cattlemen for good and choice grade slaughter calves was about 28 per cent less than they received a year earlier.

The specialist states that this increase in the beef supply is beginning to show up in lower prices for many beef cuts at meat counters. This is particularly true for young tender beef carrying a high percentage of lean.

HOOSE RICGHT FABRIC FOR PLEASANT SEWING

Auburn, Ala. — To show individuality, details of a garment to be made at home can be varied from the original pattern.

"However," warns Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, "the amount of time you have and sewing experience should guide you in your choice of both the materials and pattern."

For instance, she explains, sewing short cuts can be used easier on firmly woven, medium weight fabrics than on sheer, slippery rayons. Solid or small all-over designs are simpler to handle, need less detailed trimming, finishing, and perfect workmanship.

"Also," adds the specialist, "buy the right amount of material, not from a personal estimate, but from the chart on the back of the pattern. The chart gives the yardage for the different widh fabrics, sizes and syles."

A Message From Your V.F.W. Commander, George Gillespie—

October is the time of year when we conduct our annual roll call. This month each year we undertake the huge annual job of calling the roll of those who are ready and willing to re-dedicate themselves to the aims and purposes of the VFW in 1953.

If you will analyze the true significance of your VFW membership card I know you will do your bit to help strengthen our organization in a way that will give us a chance to help make America stronger spiritually, morally and physically

Remember that your 1953 membership card is not just a receipt for dues that have been paid. It is a citation that every overseas veteran in America should be proud to possess. One that tells the world he is a loyal stockholder in the biggest organization in America composed exclusively of overseas veterans who never forget their obligations as good citizens.

"Thousands could, if they would;

The Farm Bureau will soon have its yearly drive on. Chilton County is far behind in this all important group. So let's get Beat 7 over the top this year.

This is the only voice the farmer has in Congress. We all know if the farmer prospers so will all other people.

Someone will be knocking on your door for you to join. The dues are $3.00 a year. You will receive a weekly paper and a news letter from Washington telling you what is happening that effects the farmer. You will also be entitled to take out any of the Farm Bureau sponsored insurance. The insurance is far cheaper than other companies.

The following are leaders whom you may contact: Mrs. Harry Higginbotham, Mrs. Houston Lenoir, Mrs. R. E. Clark, Mrs. Willard Hicks, Mrs. Hymon Atcheson, Mrs. Daisy Littlejohn, Mr. Noah Latham, Mrs. J. E. Daniels, Mr. Chelsa Brewer and Dr. Nix.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Me — A "Walking Blood Bank"

Feeling pretty important now my name has been added to young Doc Harper's "Walking Blood Bank." (I take Whitey Fisher's place. He's away at Agricultural College.)

Young Doc started this idea after he took over old Doc Emerson's practice. Claimed that in a farm community like ours, most accidents requiring transfusions happen so far from hospitals you often can't get plasma fast enough to do any good.

So he starts keeping a notebook list of about 30 people, who between them cover all blood types. Volunteers promise to bring blood—"on the hoof" and fast—whenever and wherever it's needed.

From where I sit, "volunteering" is good citizenship and good sense—because you're protecting yourself, too. Like the way beer retailers belong to that Self-Regulation Program the Brewing Industry sponsors. By volunteering to keep their places always clean and orderly they benefit themselves . . . and can "bank" on extra "dividends" from public goodwill.

I have been wonderfully blessed in being restored to active life after being crippled in nearly every joint in my body and with muscular soreness from head to foot. I had Rheumatoid Arthritis and other forms of Rheumatism, hands deformed and my ankles were set.

Limited space prohibits telling you more here but if you will write me I will reply at once and tell you how I received this wonderful relief.

Dodge Announces The All New 1953 Automobile

The most dramatic changes in the 38-history of the Dodge passenger car will be unveiled here Thursday, October 23, when Dodge Division of Chrysler Corporation introduces its sensational 1953 "action car."

The new, completely restyled Dodge with a powerful 140-horsepower Red Ram V-Eight engine goes on display in the showroom of Polk Brothers Motor Co.

Sweeping changes in both styling and chassis features plus the unprecedented efficiency of the new engine were announced by Mr. W. M. Polk, of the Polk Brothers Motor Co.

New beauty and a smooth flowing effect were achieved, Mr. Polk revealed, by flavoring the lower, softer lines and increased glass area with a touch of continental design. These attractive styling changes are being offered in the entire 1953 Dodge line which consists of 10 different models, Mr. Polk said.

The 140-horsepower Red Ram V-Eight engine is featured in the Coronet series, while the popular and dependable six-cylinder engine is retained in the Meadowbrook and Meadowbrook Special series. The Wayfarer is not included in the 1953 Dodge lineup.

The highly-touted new Dodge Red Ram V-Eight engine is compact in size and light in weight. It produces more horsepower per cubic inch of displacement than any other automobile engine in volume production today.

Dodge's efficient new power plant is based on design principles used in high-output aircraft engines. Its horsepower is 140 at 4,400 r.p.m. Displacement is 241.1 cubic inches. It develops this high power output on regular grades of fuel despite its high-compression ratio of 7.1 to 1.

Outstanding features of the Red Ram V-Eight engine are its highly efficient hemispherical combustion chamber with centrally-located spark plug, an ingenious lateral valve arrangement, and a "square" design with exceptionally short stroke and large bore.

More than a dozen other major changes were listed by Mr. Polk.

Body beautification and the Red Ram engine are definitely highlights of the all-new 1953 Dodge," Mr. Polk declared. But there are many other significant features such as the wide choice of transmissions. And there is a new steering ease and maneuverability achieved by a more compact chassis design, a new suspension system and an improved steering mechanism."

Mr. Polk stated four different types of drive were being offered. They are the new Gyro-Torque drive, which is teamed with the Red Ram V-Eight engine to provide lightning response without shifting; Gyro-Matic drive, which offers smooth and easy no-shift driving; automatic overdrive, which provides a fourth "cruising" gear for greater gasoline economy; and standard drive, for those preferring to do their own shifting.

"For greater ease in handling, especially to meet increased traffic and parking problems, the cha[illegible] been redesigned with a [illegible] compactness and still manages to increase further the amount of passenger headroom and hiproom," Mr. Polk pointed out. "The 1953 Dodge also is improved in riding and handling qualities due to innovations in suspension and steering," he stated.

An improved control-arm arrangement on the front suspension system causes the 1953 Dodge to resist tilting on turns. And new, softer two-inch-wide rear springs with fewer leaves contribute to a more comfortable ride. A modified frame design is responsible for increasing the resistance of the car to twisting strains of the road. Also leveling the riding qualities are the time-tested Oriflow shock absorbers.

On Coronet models, another innovation is center-balance steering, resulting in less wheel effort, greater steering accuracy and greater absorption of road shock. Center-balance steering is achieved by equal-length tie rods and a symmetrical idler arm which centers the linkage between front wheels.

Mr. Polk pointed to the "action appearance" and beauty of the 1953 Dodge which is marked by lower, longer and more smoothly flowing lines than any previous model. The long, low fender line is continuous from front to rear and is accented by a softly-blended "kick-up" on the rear fender.

Driver and passenger visibility is considered improved by the use of a one-piece curved windshield and a larger wrap-around rear window that achieves an effect of "watch-tower" visibility. The 1953 Dodge windshield has a more uniform curvature, eliminating much of the distortion normally associated with curved windshields. Total glass area has been increased by 7.7 per cent to 23.7 square feet.

Ornamentation on the 1953 Dodge has been completely changed. The hood is one-piece without a center-stripe. In order to retain some continuity of Dodge identification, the grille styling, while entirely different from 1952, still incorporate a touch of the previous model. To promote greater engine efficiency on V-Eight models, the hood hedallion combines identification with the functional feature of an air scoop to supply cooler air for the carburetor.

The rear-end styling of the 1953 Dodge has a low, sleek continental appearance. Unusual features include a stern-side gasoline filler pipe cap, mounted directly below the left-hand corner of the trunk lid. Counter-balanced trunk lid hinges are further apart to avoid squeezing baggage. For ease of operation and greater convenience, a push-button lock is part of the deck lid. The lid can be closed without locking.

In keeping with the trend toward sports cars, Dodge will offer wire wheels and a continental-type rear tire mounting on the Diplomat hardtop at extra cost.

New easy-to-operate pull-type door handles retain rotor-type latches. On the inside there is a re-designed instrument panel with new style control knobs. Interior styling on all models is highlighted by new fabrics with smart stylist patterns for seat cushions. Door panel trim has a new, modern touch. Both hiproom and headroom have been further increased. Vent-wing latches are redesigned for easier operation.

A wide range of bright, new colors and two-tone combinations are available to compliment the beauty of the 1953 Dodge.

Sen. Faulkner To Speak To Chilton Teachers Tuesday

To The Citizens Of Chilton County

JAMES M. DUNLAP

Since serving as a member of the governing body of Chilton County, Alabama, for approximately four years, I am enjoying the work to the best degree and have nothing to be ashamed of, but many things to be proud of. There has been full cooperation among the Board of Revenue and Control and all concerned. I have always welcomed constructive criticism, along with any praise of work I may deserve.

We are still progressing nicely under our cooperation and management and we have a progressive program outlined for the future which will benefit all the citizens of Chilton County.

Dunlap for Associate Member of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, District No. 4.

Yours very truly,

CHURCH NEWS

The Junior League met last Thursday night for an evening of lots of fun and a good supper. Mrs. Ott Miller, Counselor, assisted by Mr. Miller, Mrs. M. K. Vickers and Mrs. H. S, Crosland, served hamburgers, hot dogs and drinks to a large crowd of boys and girls.

It is quite a privilege to have such an outstanding evangelist as Dr. Allen Moore with us this week. His messages have been wonderful and we feel sure will prove to be an inspiration to all who hear him.

Thursday night has been set aside as "Youth Night" during the revival. A fine program has been planned by Dr. Moore. The evening will begin with a banquet at the church and will include evening services at 7:30. We are expecting a large crowd as all members of the Sub-district Young people are invited as well as our regular members.

The evening service has been changed Friday night from 7:30 to 7:00 o'clock to enable us to attend our church service and then have time to go to the football game. Prof. Eddie Waters has graciously consented to set the game up for 8 o'clock so that we may attend both the service and the game.

Worker's Counsel will meet Monday night at 7 o'clock for a covered dish supper. Each member is urged to be present.

The Men's Fellowship Club will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at 7 o'clock.

Week of Prayer will be held at the church Tuesday from 10:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. A covered dish luncheon will be served and it is hoped every one can be present. Our business women are asked to be with us for lunch, if it is impossible for them to stay longer.

Marriages On Decline In State Of Alabama

Montgomery, Ala. — A substantial decline in Alabama marriages was announced today by the State Department of Health.

The Department said only 21,384 marriages were reported last year. That represented a drop of 1,439 from the 1950 total of 22,823.

Last year's total consisted of 13,925 marriages of white couples and 7,446 marriages involving Negroes.

The announcement was based upon provisional reports prepared by the Department's Bureau of Vital Statistics. These may differ slightly from the final reports not yet available.

Attendance at our regular services Sunday and Sunday night was fair

The Rev. E. C. Hand was our guest speaker Sunday morning. He delivered an inspiring sermon which everyone enjoyed. We were very glad to have Rev. and Mrs. Hand with us and invite them back at any time.

Rev. Elba Deason, our pastor, delivered a soul-stirring sermon Sunday night.

On the first Sunday afternoon in November—the 2nd, there will be a singing here. We wish to invite all singers and lovers of gospel music to attend. Because if this afternoon singing is a success, we will have to have the cooperation of all adjoining churches.

Everyone remember Sunday School next Sunday at 10 o'clock. Come and bring someone with you —Mary Ella Bailey, Reporter.

"Bird imitations... that's all you can do?"

Oddly enough, some people take extraordinary things for granted.

Like radio, for instance.

Today radio entertains, informs and sells more people in more places at lower cost than any other medium in the entire history of advertising.

Today there are 105,300,000 radio sets in the U. S. A. Virtually every home is a radio home—and over half of them have two or more sets.

The average American now spends more time with radio than with magazines, TV and newspapers combined.

No wonder advertisers invested even more money in radio last year than ever before!

Laura Ann Is One—
On Thursday afternoon of last week, October 16th, Mrs. Charles Klinner honored her daughter, Laura Ann, on her first birthday with a party at the home on Lay Dam Road.

The little guests enjoyed games on the lawn, which was led by Caroline Dickinson.

Later they were invited into the dining room where the party table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with the large white birthday cake, beautifully embossed in pink and green, holding one brightly burning candle. The birthday motif was repeated in the party plates and napkins. Dainty packages of candy, tied with pink ribbon placed on a large crystal tray and green candles in crystal holders completed the table appointments.

Daisy chrysansthemums and other fall flowers were used in the receiving rooms.

Each little guest received a party hat and a horn as favors from the little honoree.

Assisting Mrs. Klinner were the grandmothers, Mrs. O. P. Klinner and Mrs. G. B. Taylor, Mrs. C. C. Carlton and Mrs. M. C. Hamilton.

The guests list included the following children with their mothers: Jackie Roper, Roy Roper, Mike Roper, Linda Cagle, Maynard Cagle, Bennie Joe Williams, Donna Moatts, Dianne Moatts, Rickel Edward, Leigh Waldrup, Ann Dailey, Joe Burkhalter, Caroline Dickinson and Emily Klinner.

Larry Celebrates Birthday—
Tuesday, October 14th, was a red letter day for Larry, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bodden, when his mother honored him at a children's party on the lawn of the home, celebrating his fourth birthday.

It was a happy time as Larry and his little friends played "going fishing," "pinning the tail on the donkey," and other games, with each child receiving prizes and surprise favors.

There was a pretty birthday cake, bearing the inscription, "Happy Birthday." This was served with delicious ice cream to the honoree and following guests: Tommy Powers, Elizabeth Maddox, Charlie Patterson, Josephine Moore, Jack Moore, John Rockett, Mike McKee, Bo Eiland, Laura Carlisle and Jimmy Miller.

Mrs. Bodden was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Hugh Parrish, Mrs. Clint Carlisle and Mrs. Guy McKee.

Class Holds Monthly Meeting—
Mrs. Flem Higgins, Mrs. A. K. Corbett, Mrs. W. C. Dickinson and Mrs. Horace Jones were co-hostesses to the Homemakers Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church, Clanton, on Friday night, October 17th.

Arrangements of yellow pom-pon dahlias and other seasonal flowers were used to make the Higgins home more attractive.

The meeting was called to order by the class president, Mrs. Vern Bean, after which the group sang the class hymn. Prayer was offered by Mrs. J. H. Boockkholdt. Mrs. J. L. Teel brought a most interesting devotional message, using as her Scripture reading a portion of the eighth chapter of Luke.

During the fun period, Mrs. Russel Sutley directed a unique spelling game, with Mrs. Boockkholdt and Mrs. Nan Taylor as captains.

The president presided over the business when old and new items were taken care of.

The Hallowe'en season was emphasized in the delicious refreshments served to twenty-one class members and two visitors.

The Mizpah benediction was used.

Mrs. Wade Entertains—
Mrs. James Wade charmingly entertained at a buffet luncheon with four tables of bridge on Thursday, October 16th, at her home on Third Avenue.

In the dining room the yellow and white color scheme was used. The buffet table featured an imported linen cloth, and was centered with a silver and crystal epergne' holding yellow roses.

Attractive floral arrangements in autumn shades were used in the reception rooms.

THE SAME LIKES

RICHARD HILL WILKINSON

IT WAS a grand idea. Mr. Emmott, who had charge of the Philadelphia office for the circulation department of Sperrys Weekly, thought it up all by himself.

"We'll advertise for girls, see? We'll state in the ad that they won't have to do any soliciting. That'll dispel any doubts, see? Then when the girls get here we'll send 'em out with you regular salesmen, see? All they have to do is introduce you to their friends, and then you regulars put across the sale, see?"

Jeff Eliot didn't see. He thought it was a rotten idea. But he didn't say so. He couldn't afford to lose his job. Selling magazine subscriptions had been paying him an average of $10 a week for the past six months.

Two days later when he reported at the office there was a girl there. A red-headed girl with a straight little nose and wide blue eyes. Mr. Emmott introduced her as Miss Patsy Jordan.

"Jeff's one of our best men," he told Patsy. "All you have to do is introduce him to your friends and he'll do the selling, see? Then you split the commissions, see?"

"I see," said the girl.

They took a trolley out to Evanston. They got off and walked up Maple avenue and turned up Harris. "I've loads of friends living here," Patsy said. "Do you feel lucky?"

"I never felt more lucky in my life," Jeff said, looking at her.

They called on a motherly sort of woman named Pierce. Mrs. Pierce seemed delighted to see Patsy.

She invited them in and before they left Jeff had sold two subscriptions. At the next apartment he sold one. Before noon he had sold five more. He stared at Patsy admiringly across a table in a tiny restaurant.

"Say, what's your formula for being popular? Those sales were pushovers. Maybe Emmott wasn't so cockeyed with his idea after all."

Patsy regarded him over a glass of milk. She was, Jeff thought, about the prettiest girl ever.

"Are you always going to be a magazine salesman?" she asked him. "I am not!" he told her emphatically. "I'm studying now for my law degree. Nights. I've only one more term. Then, when I pass the bar and save up a thousand dollars I'm going to some little town up in the hills."

"I like little towns in the hills," Patsy said.

That afternoon they called on four more of Patsy's friends and Jeff made 100 per cent sales. He was delighted. He was delighted with Patsy. Tomorrow he was going to ask her to have dinner with him before his law class began.

The next morning they visited another district. Patsy introduced him to a woman in a dilapidated looking apartment house. He sold her a subscription. Then they mounted the stairs and knocked on another door. There was a long wait. Finally the door opened a crack and a man's face peered out at them.

"Is Flora in?" Patsy asked.

"Who wants her?"

"I do. I'm Patsy Jordan."

The man stared at her. "What d'yuh want her for?" he asked.

Patsy glanced at Jeff appealingly. Jeff didn't like the man's looks or tone. He said: "She wants to introduce her to me. I'm a magazine salesman. Patsy—Miss Jordan is working with me. If you'll please tell—"

"Don't want none," the man said. The door closed.

That night Jeff took Patsy to dinner. She wore a satin gown that gave her skin a milky-white look. He almost lost his head and asked her to marry him then and there. The next morning when he came to the office Patsy wasn't there. He waited an hour and she didn't come.

At noon he went out and ate a sandwich. He felt glum, low-spirited. He went back to the office, but Patsy hadn't reported. At 2 o'clock Mr. Emmott told him he was wasting time hanging around.

Jeff didn't sell a single subscription that afternoon. The next day he got to the office early, but Patsy didn't show up. He cut his law class that night and went to her address. It was an apartment house. The janitor told him that the apartment where Patsy said she lived hadn't been occupied for three months.

He went back to his own room. He didn't know what to make of it. He was a little angry.

At 9 o'clock there was a knock on his door. It was Patsy. She came in and handed him an envelope. He opened the envelope and gaped at its contents. It was a check made out to him for $1000.

Patsy enjoyed his bewilderment. She said, before explaining: "Now, all you have to do is pass your bar exams." Then: "It's your share of the reward."

"What reward?"

"For the capture of Flora Darrell. The police suspected where she was hiding. They didn't dare investigate for fear of scaring her off. They needed an outsider. They saw the advertisement for girls. My brother is a police inspector. He asked me to help out. We planted all those subscriptions, so you wouldn't get suspicious, so you'd act like a real salesman when finally we called at where we thought Flora lived. It worked. Last night they made the capture . . . No, please don't say it. Of course it was a mean trick, but Flora was Public Enemy No. 1. Besides, you don't like selling magazines and I don't like selling magazines and we both like small towns in the hills—And doesn't that mean anything to you?"

Jeff swallowed. He cleared his throat. He scratched his head. He decided to say nothing that he thought he ought to say. Instead he merely said "Yes." And took her into his arms.

Instead of discarding worn socks, save them until you have several pairs. They will provide the material for a good dry mop.

Edward Reunion Was Held Here October 6th

The children of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Edwards gathered for the first time in twelve years for a reunion at the home of Mrs. Arrie B. Fraser in South Clanton on Sunday, October 6th. Those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Van Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Evans L. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Edwards of LaGrange, Illinois; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Edwards, of Anderson, Ind., together with many of the children and grandchildren of the families. A delicious dinner was served at the noon hour. Every one had a most enjoyable day together.

J. DEWEY ROCKETT WRITES VOTERS

On November 4th you people, the citizens of Chilton County, who have made this county what it is, who live here, who pay your taxes here, who are raising your children here, and who I believe have the best interest of your county at heart will go to the polls and vote for a man to be your Probate Judge for the next six years.

As you all know the man you elect to this office, which in my estimation is the most important office in the county, who will handle several million dollars of tax money which after all is your money should be a man that you know and have known for a long time and you know by past experience has the up-building of the county at heart, who you already know is qualified to handle your business, who has already proven by his own business operations that he is qualified to look after your money and affairs in Chilton County.

Now as for my qualifications in asking you to vote for me for this job, I will tell you I was born near Cooper in Chilton County about 54 years ago and have lived in Chilton County all my life. In other words, I am a home-grown product. I went to school and received my education at Cooper, Thorsby Institute, and graduated at Chilton County High School, later attended the University of Alabama.

I married a Chilton County girl the daughter of D. S. Robinson, and we have two children and four grandchildren, all living in Chilton County.

As for my business ability, I have been in some kind of business practically all my life. At the present time I am in the hardware and building supply business here in Clanton and have been for about 25 years. During my business life I believe I have received enough experience to justify me in asking you for your support and vote November 4th.

I am sincere and conscientious when I tell you I want to see Chilton County improve in every way possible. I want to see more industries in Chilton County. I want to see our roads improved, in fact, there is no limit to what can be done if we elect men, who we know are capable, and who can and will look after our county business as we do our individual business.

It is just a few days more until you are going to hire this man. And when I say, hire, that is just what you are going to do, for, after all, it is just a business proposition and you should hire the man you think is qualified to fill the job you have for him to do.

I will appreciate it if you and your family will talk it over and give it serious consideration, for after all, ths is your county. Then vote for the man you think can do the best job for you, your children and the best of Chilton County.

I thank you,
J. DEWEY ROCKETT.

RALPH MIMS APPEALS TO VOTERS OF THE COUNTY

In making my appeal to the voters through the papers, I will say that I would appreciate the opportunity of serving as your Board of Revenue Member from the Fourth District. I believe I am qualified to fill the place with satisfaction to the citizens of the county. I have had four years experience in road work on Federal and State jobs; I understand working with men on such jobs, and believe in getting a dollar's value for every dollar spent.

I feel that most people of the county know me or have heard of me, but will say I am a son of Johnnie Mims of Mt. Pleasant Community, my grandfather being the late Little George Mims of Mulberry Community. I live on Clanton Route 4, near the home of my father; was married to Eunice Bullard of Verbena twelve years ago and we have one girl and two boys.

Any good word that you can say in my behalf will be appreciated, even to the extent of voting for me, regardless of how you have been voting in the past.

Sincerely,
RALPH MIMS.

Lutheran Church News—

The service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome.

Today we come to the third reason in our discussion of the question, "Why Join The Church?" It is:

You can never be a real part of the church unless you are a member.

You may attend the church of your choice faithfully and regularly but unless you are a member, you cannot have a voice in its' affairs or be elected to a responsible position. Even though you may attend church for years your status will never be anything other than "visitor" unless you become a member.

Do not hesitate, my friend, to identify yourself with God's church.

Contact the pastor of the church of your choice and make your desire known to him and, if possible, come into fellowship with God's in His church this Sunday. — Rev. William R. Morgan.

The children of the church were entertained last Friday evening with a weiner roast at the home of Miss Alma Lefstead. A good time was had by all who attended.

Thorsby Baptist Church—

L. E. Daniel, pastor.
Order of Services:
Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
Morning Worship 11:00 a.m.
Training Union 6:00 p.m.
Evening Worship 7:00 p.m.
Prayer Meeting (Wednesday) 7:00 p.m.
Choir Practice (Thursday) 7:00 p.m.

The services at the Baptist Church last Sunday were well attended. The pastor spoke Sunday morning on "The Cost of True Dicipleship," and Sunday evening on, "What The Bible Teaches About The New Birth." There were nine additions to the church Sunday all of them coming by letter from other churches. They were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Russell Scott from Jemison Baptist Church, Mrs. Elizabeth Thornbro from Jemison Baptist Church, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Mathew from Temple Baptist Church in Amarillo, Texas, Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Daniel and two daughters, Betty Ruth and Louise Daniel, from the First Baptist Church in Bowling Green, Florida.

Anne and Doris Collins, who recently came on profession of faith in Christ as Saviour were baptized at the evening service.

The prayer meeting attendance is growing. There were 52 present last Wednesday evening. We are looking for an even larger number this week.

The Training Union will hold its monthly counsel meeting at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. All Training Union Officers are urged to be present.

The revival at the Baptist Church will begin Sunday, November 2nd. The pastor, Rev. L. E. Daniel, will do the preaching and Mr. John F. Mitchell, Director of music for the Westside Baptist Church in Lake Wales, Florida, will lead the music. We extend to all a cordial invitation to attend all these services.

Thorsby Institute News—

Be sure to attend the Literary Society Program presented by the boys of Thorsby Institute, "A Fat Chance To Get Thin," October 25, 7:30 p.m. The admission will be 25c and 10c, bring all the family and enjoy a very good program.

The first term examinations ended Friday, October 17, and the boarding students went to their respective homes for the week end.

The Ladies Guild will meet next Thursday afternoon, October 23, at 2:30 at the home of Mrs. A. N. Laurell. Everyone is invited. Mr. Ralph B. Conway, a student of Thorsby Institute in 1918, and his wife of Whiting, Indiana, came by for a visit last week. It is always a pleasure to see our former students.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth O'Barr, Mrs. Fred Howard of Birmingham, also Mrs. Fred Howard's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Saeger of Kaukauna, Wis., visited here last week with old friends and relatives and also attended to business pertaining to the Fred Howard home.

It is most interesting to note how old friends and former residents of Thorsby, drift back after many years. Last week Mr. and Mrs. Justin Helland of LaMasa, California, visited here. The Helland family lived here some forty-five years ago and Rev. Helland was then pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran Church, now known as the United Protestant Church (Congregational). Justin was just a young boy then and said he used to play in the Thorsby Band. He found some of his boyhood friends still here who are, Carl Turnquist, Charles Howard, Ernie Hanson, Nels Petersen and others. They also enjoyed seeing Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Foss who were here at the time. All had a jolly time talking old times and were gathered together at the home of Mrs. Reagan on Wednesday evening. Thursday evening they were entertained at the home of the Chas. Howards.

Other visitors this week were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carlson of Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Carlson is the former Judith Andelin who lived here with her family back in 1905. She, too, found some old friends and marveled at the way the little town had improved.

Mrs. Nels Petersen and Miss Naemi Turnquist attended the annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Georgia-Alabama Synod of the United Lutheran Church on last Tuesday and Wednesday. Mrs. Petersen and Miss Turnquist were sent as delegates from the Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church here.

Thorsby P.-T.A. News—

We wish to say, "Thank You" to Mrs. Claudia Mims and Miss Ruth Primm for working with their pupils in preparing such a lovely program for our P.-T.A. meeting Tuesday evening, October 6th. The children performed well and showed a great deal of talent and originality in presenting both the pantomime, "Crusing Down the River," and the Negro minstrel.

Children given a chance to perform always surprise us with their different abilities; and in this program, they certainly outdid themselves in the various songs, movements, jokes and actions used.

You who missed this program, really missed a treat, but remember, there will be more meetings of similar nature, so don't let your child or school and P.-T.A. down by failing to attend the meetings of your P.-T.A.—Mrs. David Vines, Reporter.

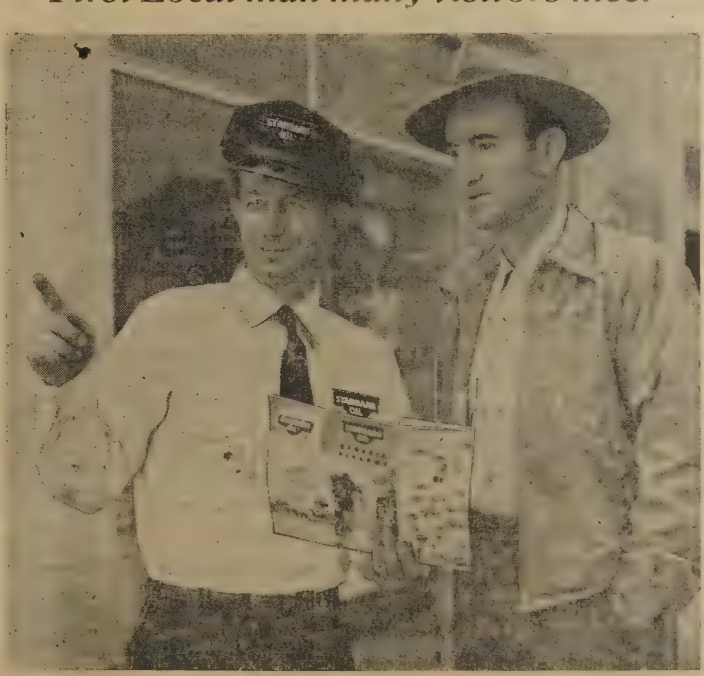
First Local man many visitors meet



Visiting motorists often form their first impressions of our town from this man . . . and because of his desire to be of service, it is usually a good one.

He's done as much to boost his community as almost anyone you can mention. His judgment of and directions to local stores, hotels, and places of interest is constantly sought, and his recommendations send a stream of customers to local businesses.

At the service of motorists during fair weather or foul, he's the man who changed a word in our vocabulary. A man who by his eagerness to serve, taught the motorists of the South that he operates not a "filling station"—but a Standard Oil service station.

COOKING HINTS

HAVING a party? Dress up your food with simple, decorative touches to make eating fun as well as to stimulate compliments.

Cut oranges in half, remove sections and flute the rind at the top with scissors. Fill with mint jelly, cranberry sauce or sherbet and use as a meat garnish.

Dogwood flowers make edible garnishes for meat or green vegetable platters. Cut thin slices from a large white turnip. Cut slices in quarters but leave connected in center. Round off and notch the outer edge of the petals. Touch up notches with green food coloring.

Here's a good seasonal punch to serve when you want a nice beverage: For four to six servings, combine 1¼ cups canned cranberry juice, 1 cup canned grapefruit juice and ⅓ cup sugar. Pour over ice in pitcher and add one quart of gingerale.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
Banana Chiffon Pie
(Makes 1 9-inch pie)

1 9-inch baked pie shell
1 envelope plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
3 eggs, separated
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
Juice of ½ lemon
3 bananas, mashed

Sprinkle cold water over gelatin and let stand to soften. Beat egg yolks slightly, add 1 tablespoon of the sugar, salt, lemon juice and bananas. Heat gently until just slightly thickened, then add to gelatin and stir to dissolve. Cool. Beat egg whites until they stand in peaks. Gradually beat in remaining sugar. Fold in banana mixture and pour into cooled, baked pie shell. Chill until firm. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

If your guests want to nibble at a party, make these bread strips: Melt one tablespoon of butter and mix with a beaten egg. Dip bread strips in the mixture and roll in sharp grated cheese. Brown lightly under broiler.

RESISTANCE

During weather changes our resistance plays a big role in how well we fight off colds, infections, and various disorders.

When resistance is low you feel sluggish—no pep and energy, shortness of breath, body toxins (poisons) and fast heart beat.

These being the first symptoms before developing a chronic disease.

The early stage is the best time to overcome these symptoms.

In a matter of minutes your potential energy, metabolism, oxygenation, acid-alkalin balance, heart action, circulation, blood pressure and thyroid action can be determined along with a spinal examination to see why the resistance is low.

If you have a health problem, check with your family chiropractor.

TO THE VOTERS OF CHILTON COUNTY

As we all know, time is approaching for another important election. Including County and National elections. We have a fine group of men the good people have chosen as nominees for the different offices. We also have some amendments that we should all read, study and think over.

It was inspiring to read the good reports this week of the vast progress made in government of the county during the Democratic terms. We as citizens and good neighbors wish to congratulate all of you for having records you can point to with pride. It denotes that you have performed with efficiency all duties aloted to you.

It links with the old adage, the world moves, so does good men.

In reading the papers and contacting the people along in the different states I've been in recently, they all say, let's keep it Democratic.

So let's all work together and vote to promote good will, peace, harmony, and hold up democracy in our county, state and nation.

Respectfully,
J. SHELTON COOK

Smith made a nice catch of the pass and raced down field across the goal line to score for Clanton, the play covered 52 yards. Ellison's attempt for the extra point was not good. The first half of the game ended with Prattville in possession of the ball on the Tiger three yard line, after a 15 yard penalty against Clanton and a fumble recovered on the seven yard line by the Lions.

The third period developed into a punting duel between Ellison of the Tigers and Hines of the Lions. 348 Liquor Stills Destroyed In September

Montgomery, Ala. — State ABC Board Enforcement Chief Joseph T. Burton says 348 illicit liquor stills could have produced 74,236 gallons of moonshine whisky a month, valued on the current market at $371,180. He valued the destroyed stills and equipment at $63,427.

Jefferson county, with 64, led the list. Tuscaloosa had 55 stills, and other counties in which 10 or more stills were destroyed include: Cleburne 15; Fayette, 14; Madison, 18; Marshall, 13; Shelby, 23; and Walker, 18.

Rabbit Season Is Now Open

Montgomery, Ala. — The official season for taking of rabbits throughout the state and squirrels north of U. S. Highway 80 opened today and the first half of the split dove season for 1952 will open Friday at 12 noon.

Conservation Director Earl M. McGowin urged hunters to use care in their shooting and in handling of fire in the woods of the state. With the arrival of the hunting seasons each year the number of accidental forest fires jumps rapidly.

Also, hunting accidents and accidental shootings associated with hunting trips annually take the lives of several persons in the state.

The director said the danger of having large areas of our forest destroyed is great during the hunting season because the fall usually is one of the dryest periods of the year.

McGowin asked hunters to be careful of their cigarettes and camp or warming fires and not to use fires to smoke out game.

STATE OWNED LITTLE WHITE HOUSE INVITES GROUPS TO VISIT SHRINE

INCREASED NUMBERS of groups from this and other nearby states have been visiting The Little White House (above) at Warm Springs, Ga., this summer and many more are expected. These groups include 4-H clubs, FFA, Home Demonstration clubs, Junior Safety Patrols, Scouts and church and Sunday School groups. The Little White House, where President Franklin D. Roosevelt lived part time and where he died, has become a national shrine with visitors from all over the world. Here may be seen the famous "Unfinished Portrait," which was being painted when he was stricken and which is now owned by the state of Georgia, as is The Little White House property. The painting is valued at $50,000. The management invites groups to visit the grounds and cottage and makes a special admission rate to them.

Calves Turn Up Heels At Diet Of Vegetable Fats

Butterfat cannot be replaced by vegetable fat in diets fed calves, according to Dr. T. W. Gullickson of the National Dairy Council.

He used 100 calves in his experiment, and all of them fed vegetable oil died by the time they were three months old. Calves whose diets were switched to butterfat before they were three months old lived.

J. R. Parrish, API Extension dairyman, believes that new products sold to replace butterfat may be cheaper, but they may not be healthful too. Taste alone is not a test for food products, he adds.

Homicide Caused 374 Deaths In The State During 1951

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Department of Health says that homicide caused 374 deaths in Alabama last year, slightly more than one a day, and only six diseases took more lives in Alabama.

The illnesses that killed more persons were heart disease, brain hemorrhage, cancer, pneumonia, tuberculosis and nephritis. Premature births and accidents also were responsible for more deaths than homicides.

Fall Vegetables Need Fertilizer

Auburn, Ala. — Farmers are reminded by John Bagby, API Extension horticulturist, that vegetables in the fall garden need fertilizer.

He explains that as the days become shorter and the weather cooler, the natural fertility of the soil is not as readily available to plants as in the long warm days of summer.

The specialist says that a good application of a complete fertilizer at planting time is necessary to supply needed plant nutrients throughout the growing season. Side-dressing with some form of nitrogen at the rate of 200 pounds of nitrate of soda or its equivalent will give turnips, cabbage, and other crops a little extra push to get them on the market early.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Well, What Do You Know?

Do you believe in a bunch of old tales about lightning—about how it's attracted by cats or the warmth of cattle . . . how it never strikes in the same place twice . . . or how it's liable to turn milk sour? Lots of people often do—but they're wrong.

Dad Hawkins inspired this column today. He's really studied up on lightning since his own cow barn was struck that time.

"Trouble is, most of us don't know half enough about the subject," Dad says. "And about half of what we do know is false!"

From where I sit, Dad's statement applies to a lot of things besides lightning. Too many people think they know their neighbor's wrong when he votes for his candidate instead of theirs. Some people even resent our right to enjoy a friendly glass of beer if and when we choose. Opinions based on misinformation and prejudice, instead of being "grounded" on true facts can cause more damage than lightning ever did.

Plentiful Supply School Savings Stamps At P. O.

The Clanton post office now has a plentiful supply of Schools Savings Stamps and albums ready for the new school season Postmaster R. W. Lowe announced today. "We have received shipments of both stamps and albums during the summer recess and are fully prepared to continue serving all of our schools," he added.

R. W. Lowe also stated: There is every reason to anticipate a far heavier demand for Savings Stamps this year than at any time during the peacetime years. The School Savings campaign last fall, which proved such an outstanding success, created keen interest in the program on the part of teachers and students. The drive, which added 5,815 new school savings programs throughout the country, will be continued during the first semester of this school year. It is expected that nearly 5 million students will be in Stamp Day Schools by the end of this calendar year.

It is hard to visualize the great benefit this one program will have for our country with 5 million children saving nickels and dimes and building the habit of thrift. School savings have been on the uptrend the past three years," he continued. "Stamp sales in the nation's schools increased from $10 million, 800 thousand in 1950 to $14 million in the 1951-52 school year."

Postmaster R. W. Lowe also announced that the new improved Series E Bonds are now available. In describing the new bond he said: "It is now better than ever. Your return on this bond is 3 per cent, compounded semi-annually, if held to maturity. It also provides higher cash values in the earlier years. Proof of its popularity is evidenced by the fact that the cash value of E Bonds now outstanding has mounted to $34.9 billion, the highest ever attained."

Artificial Breeding Of Cows Increasing

Auburn, Ala. — Artificial breeding of dairy cattle in Alabama has taken on a new look since last January. And Pete Turnham, API Extension dairy specialist, believes dairy herd improvement association records indicate that this new look will get brighter as the heavy breeding season approaches.

He reports that through August 31 more than 3,400 cows were bred artificially in the state. Also, the number of cows settled on first service totaled well above 60 per cent. The best month was May, when 68 cows out of every 100 bred conceived on first service.

Turnham adds that Limestone County now leads the state in the number of cows bred monthly. Calhoun ranks second, and Mobile is third.

Steady Drop Shown In Claims For Unemployment Pay

Montgomery, Ala. — State Industrial Relations Director Joe L. Coleman says that for the third straight month the number of persons making claims for un-employment compensation in Alabama has dropped.

Coleman said that the number of initial claims made during September totaled 6,301. This is the lowest number of any month since September, 1950, he said. It is about one-third less than the number in August.

Almost half of the total decrease of 3,000 initial claims was concentrated in Jefferson County.

Total amount of unemployed insurance payments made during September was $943,180, issued to an estimated 16,500 jobless workers. The average weekly payment was $18.26 cents, which is 30 cents less than the average weekly payment for August.

Tips On Buying An Electric Iron

There are some mighty important things to keep in mind when buying an electric hand iron.

Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist, states that about 1,000 watts is desirable for fast heating. A dial to control heat is needed. It should be located where it is easy to read and move when ironing. Also, select an iron with a handle made of heat resistant material, such as plastic or wood, shaped to fit the hand comfortably, she says.

Great Interest In Feed And Grazing

Grazing and feed crops become more important each year to Alabama farmers who market livestock and livestock products.

A. W. Jones, API Extension marketing specialist, points out that abnormal weather conditions, such as last summer's drouth, make it necessary for livestock producers to get back into heavy production as quickly as possible. And feed and grazing crops will help do the job.

Jones adds that the need for greater effort in growing grazing, hay, and forage is pointed up by the fact that in the 15-year period from 1935 to 1950, per-acre yields of hay increased only five per cent while corn yields increased 56 per cent.

EGGS CONSUMERS WANT

More grade A quality eggs may be produced by keeping floor litter and nesting material clean and dry, gathering eggs in a wire basket at least twice a day, cooling eggs before packing, and then keeping them cool.

How To Put Buttons On Clothing To Stay

Auburn, Ala. — To save clothing, mending, time, and temper, put buttons on clothing to stay.

"If put on right in the first place," says Kathleen Thompson, API Extension clothing specialist, "neither ordinary wear nor washing and ironing should loosen buttons."

Pointing out how to put on buttons so they won't budge, she says to use thread strong enough for the weight of the button; use tape or other reinforcement underneath, and perhaps most important, arrange for a shank of thread which gives room for the buttonhole to slide under the button without pull on the fabric.

"When sewing on a button," says the specialist, "lay a pin or darning needle over the top and sew over it. Then withdraw the pin and wind thread around the shank underneath. Fasten the thread on the wrong side of the garment, first with a buttonhole stitch, then with a couple of over-and-over stitches."

Three Clanton Girls Join Huntingdon Glee Club

Montgomery, Ala. — Three girls from Clanton have been selected for membership in the Glee Club of Huntingdon College. The Glee Club is the leading musical organization on the Huntingdon campus and membership is on the basis of a series of try-outs conducted by the director, Erle Danley.

Those selected are Lenore Oglesby,, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Oglesby; Betty Lisenby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon L. Robertson; and Ruby Crew, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Crew.

The Gless Club is in rehearsal now for a December performance of Handel's "Messiah." A spring tour and a concert in the Huntingdon chapel as well as appearances before civic clubs and other Montgomery organizations are on the club's calendar each year.

The first settlement of Mobile was made in 1702 at what is now called Twenty-Seven Mile Bluff, some twenty miles north of present day Mobile. A monument was erected at the original site commemorating the first founding.

Coliseum At Montgomery Is Near Completion

Montgomery, Ala. — Three out-of-state firms were low bidders on construction work needed to complete work at the Alabama Agricultural Center Coliseum near Montgomery.

The Accoustic Engineering Co., Atlanta, got the contract for acoustical work with a bid of $68,982.

The two-part contract for enclosing the coliseum went to Sea-Procel Metels, Inc., of Lang Island City, on a $52,650 bid, and Ludman Corp., of Miami, on a bid of $126,232.

Recently $1,200,000 of bonds were sold to complete the work. Some $1,500,000 already has been spent on the structure.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all of Clanton, Chilton County, and the many friends throughout the state of Alabama for their kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of my husband, the late Earl C. Parrish.

I especially thank Dr. and Mrs. J. Gilbert Hutchinson for their kind words of comfort, the doctors, the Clanton Lions, the Hicks Sunday School Class, the Fidelis Sunday School Class, Martin and Sons, and the many, many others too numerous to mention.

Their kind expression of sympathy will always live in our hearts.

This I say for his daughter, Mrs. Benton Morgan of Birmingham, the former Julia Nell Parrish of Clanton, and the entire Parrish families.

May God's richest blessings be on each of you. — Mrs. Earl C. Parrish.

On February 4, 1860, delegates from seceding states met in Montgomery for a convention. Four days later a new nation, the Confederate States of America had been organized. Thus Montgomery became the "Cradle of the Confederacy." Jefferson Davis, of Mississippi, was chosen President. Davis took oath of office at the Alabama State Capital on February 18. A bronze star was placed on the capitol porch commemorating this event.

WHITE SUPREMACY
FOR THE RIGHT

IF YOU DO OR IF YOU DON'T

Down through the ages we suppose man has gripped about one thing or another. We do know man has gripped since the founding of our country about taxes.

Now, fact is, we don't enjoy paying our taxes any better than the next man, but if we are to have the conveniences of modern life we have sense enough to know that we must have high taxes. If you dance you must pay the fiddler.

America is riding through the centuries first class; and it takes a lot of money to go first class. We dare say there aren't many who would trade our tax load and present day living for the inconveniences and drudgery of even a short half century ago.

Come on now, we all like our way of life, but too, we like to gripe. So let's break down and confess we wouldn't swap our lot in America for that of any nation on the face of the globe.

A BILL OF GOODS

General Eisenhower certainly was right when he told a San Diego audience recently that he was trying to sell the American people "a bill of goods." The General quickly said he meant to say "a bill of indictment." But just a glance at some of the General's campaign statements shows he was right the first time.

The General is offering the nation a bill of goods when he tells the people that the Social Security Act was a bi-partisan measure. The General may have forgotten—but the people still remember—that the Republican Party tried to win the 1936 election by scaring Americans into thinking social security would mean dog tags around their collars.

The General is trying to sell farmers a bill of goods when he says to them that the Republican Party always has supported the farm programs that have meant so much to American agriculture during the past 20 years. Farmers remember that Republican Members of the House voted against the original Agricultural Adjustment Act by nearly two to one.

And "bill of goods" is the only way to describe the General's empty promise to stop inflation. [illegible] Americans know that since the end of World War II the Republican Party has resisted all of President Truman's courageous efforts to halt the inflationary spiral.

As Senator Humphrey said in commenting on the General's revealing slip of tongue, "the best that can be said is that he either has a bad memory or just doesn't know the record of his own party."

HOW ABOUT IT, GENERAL?

Reactionary Republicans who cheer General Eisenhower's attacks on U. S. foreign policy have short memories.

Silent today, these same adversaries of foreign aid to halt Communism's march were not so unobtrusive before the General's nomination as the G.O.P. Presidential candidate.

Witness the remarks of Representative Thomas H. Werdel, a California Republican, in the House of Representatives last January:

"They (the American people) are wondering," he declared on January 10, "how General Eisenhower can attack the past foreign policy of our government when he has been a willing and active party to it.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

It certainly wouldn't find its way into print on the society page of any newspaper, but if the three-year-old could only write, his account of the first wedding he ever attended would be unusual enough to make entertaining reading.

The wedding was an elaborate late afternoon event complete with much greenery for decorations, candles, bridesmaids in billowing dresses, traditional music, handsome ushers and a very beautiful bride wearing white satn. Here's what the three-year-old reported when he came home:

"A lady was hiding up in some big weeds, and she sang. It was petty. A young man was in the weeds too, and he sang too. The ushers walked real slow. They had hands and they put their hands on their stomachs and they held on to the ladies like they were taking them to jail."

What he didn't report was that when the minister instructed the bridal pair to "Repeat after me," the three-year-old said the vows right along with them. And when the ceremony was over, only quick action prevented his giving the performance loud applause.

The little boy down the street has been complaining that he can't keep his marbles because his mother finds so many uses for them. "She doesn't actually cook the marbles, but she does put them in the bottom of her double boiler so they'll bounce around and warn her when the water in it is about to boil away.

She uses the marbles, too, in vases to help keep her flower arrangements in place. And she says nothing is handier than a marble when you're mending a worn spot in the finger of a glove. She even uses marbles as weights in the hem of her drpaeries: No wonder her little boy has trouble keeping a supply of marbies!

The three-year-old and the five-year-old have been all over the neighborhood collecting old automobile license tags. It seems they couldn't get enough tags from the neighbors to serve their purpose, whatever it might be, so they made a trip to the filling station and came back with their arms full.

The five-year-old says she's going to put one on the baby's buggy. The rest of them will be rattling and clattering around our house for weeks.

The spring in one of the shades in our bedroom had gotten so loose it wouldn't cooperate the least bit in raising or lowering the shade. Why is it that you'll put up with little annoyances like that for weeks when correcting them isn't really so hard?

Of course it was the next door neighbor who finally fixed the shade for me. She rewound the spring by inserting the end between the tines of a fork and turning the fork until the spring was tightened exactly right.

Casserole weather is here again, and here's a good one made of dried beef and corn:

Chop a small onion and brown it in a tablespoon of fat. Cut up ¼ pound dried beef, add to onion and cook until beef frizzles around the edges. Add ½ cup sliced mushrooms. Stir into the beef mixture 2 cups medium white sauce, 2 beaten egg yolks, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Add 1 can (drained) whole kernel corn. Pour into greased casserole, sprinkle top with grated cheese and bake about 20 minutes in a hot oven.

In the Pioneer Days of early Alabama, very little coffee or tea was available. Pioneers made a kind of tea by soaking sassafras roots or spice bush branches in hot water. They believed sassafras was good as a medicine as well as a drink. Sugar was also scarce. Wild honey was found in small quantities and there were a few sugar maple trees in the forest which could be "tapped" and would then produce a sweet liquid.

One Out Of Five Killed In Alabama Is School-Age Child

Montgomery, Ala. — The State Highway Patrol has disclosed that one out of every five victims killed by automobiles in Alabama last year was a school-age child.

Altogether, 108 boys and girls of school age died in traffic accidents during 1951. Thirty-two were pedestrains, one riding a bicycle and the rest were killed in auto wrecks. That's 18 per cent of the total number killed on the highways and streets in Alabama during the year.

The injury ratio ran about the same: Twenty per cent of those hurt in accidents during the year were school-agers.

CERTIFIED COTTONSEED

A release by the Alabama Crop Improvement Association indicates that farmers of the state will have available a good supply of certified cottonseed next spring.

YOUR Health

"Your Health" is presented by your physician as a health service of The Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

IMMUNIZATION

Are your children immunized? That is, are they protected against the development of certain diseases such as whooping cough, smallpox, diphtheria, or typhoid fever? Today, these conditions can be prevented; yet many parents deny this protection to their youngsters by neglecting to have them vaccinated.

What is immunization? Actually, there are many types of immunization which are somewhat complex. Simply, immunization is a state whereby a person, through vaccination or injection, sets up within his own body a storehouse of substances to ward off the causative germs.

In most diseases, the body mechanism for producing immune bodies deteriorates in time. In influenza, for example, it is active for only a few weeks. For whooping cough and diphtheria, it lasts one to three years. In other diseases such as scarlet fever, the active immunity may continue for a life time. But in diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough, and typhoid fever, active immunity may be quickly re-established with periodic booster shots.

It is a well-known fact that a community with eighty per cent of its population immunized will not develop an epidemic, since the remaining twenty per cent of susceptible inhabitants cannot furnish sufficient living space for the germ. However, the disease can recur in such a community if it is brought in from the outside.

Since immunization provides an insurance toward good health of the individual and the community the parent who gives this foothold of good health to the child early is wise. The time for beginning these injections varies with the condition. For this reason the parent should consult with his physician.

For example, babies are susceptible to whooping cough from birth, and from forty to seventy per cent of those under six months who contract the disease die. Thus basic immunization against whooping cough should be started early, certainly by three months of age

Don't postpone the protective im munization until your child goes school. Protect him now. He ma be fortunate through his growing only to contract a condition th may take his life as an adult. Hel prevent disease by protecting you child with immunization.

GOODNESS IN ACTION

"One soweth and another reapeth." — John 4:37.

Generosity evidences a nobl heart. It asks for no reward. is the expression of sincere desir to help a worthy cause. It reflec a willingness to give regardless the cost to the giver. Its fruit measured, not by the magnitude the gift, but by the motive of th giver. By that standard a peasan may outrank a prince. A class example is found in our Lord's commendation of the poor widow wh dropped two mites into the chest over against the ostentatious offerings of the rich.

"Another reapeth." The generou person is often unaware of the result of his cheering ministry. F example, when David Livingston went as a pioneer missionary Africa, a Scotch woman who ha saved up thirty pounds, gave it him with the words, "You are going out to an unknown land f God and his cause. Please ta this and pay some African nati to go with you and share sacrifices and dangers."

With that money Livingston hired his brave and faithful serva Sebantino. In the heart of Afri a lion attacked him, and crush the bones of his left arm. B Sebantino saved the life of th consecrated missionary at the ri of his own. What if that povert ridden Scotch woman's generosi had not provided Livingstone wi a deliverer in that desperate emergency? "One soweth, and anoth reapeth."

Let it be kept in mind that th Bible idea of generosity is not limited to the financial support of th cause or that. It is too often th case that even good Christian people imagine that money can made a substitute for life. Su people should be quite embarrasse when called upon to offer a reasonable answer to the old Gospel song

"I gave my life for thee—
—What hast thou given for me

Not only is the reaper blesse but the sower as well. The g enriches the giver. Generosity the key to contentment.

Fine starts ve been made. But, the job ahead as tremendous as it is important. calls for reliable information to used on all the lands of the ate.

To discover this information, get in the hands of landowners and erators and assist them in apply- g it, requires the help of agen- es, of local, state and federal vernments, school people, busi- ss and professional groups and hers. The job ahead also calls r cooperation between all these ople, who share the responsibility r finding and encouraging better nd-use practices. In short, the b ahead demands team-work with any members on the team, work- g together toward a common goal better living, which cannot be hieved without good land use and il conservation.

Soil Conservation districts were eated as devices for dealing first- nd, effectively, democratically, d right down at the grass roots, with the matter of taking care of the land resources. The primary function of the districts is to encourage and develop teamwork of people aimed at making the wisest use and management of our soil and water resources.

The North Central Soil Conservation District was organized in 1941, and embraces Chilton, Shelby, Bibb, Jefferson, Blount, and Cullman counties.

The Soil Conservation District Supervisors are: R. O. Williams, Chilton; F. E. Williams, Shelby; John Ragland, Bibb; J. R. Howard, Jefferson; L. D. Bentley, Blount; and Tom O. Waldrup, Cullman.

Groups cooperating with the District are: Extension Service, S. C. S., P.M.A., Farmers Home Administration, Local Banks, Civic Clubs, Department of Education, Forest Service, Federal Land Bank, Federal Reserve Bank, and Veterans Administration.

The purpose of Soil Conservation Districts' Week, November 2-9, is to develop further public interest, understanding and support of soil conservation districts for the development of a sound agriculture based upon the conservation and wise use of soil and water resources.

E. A. O'Neal Urges Big Vote For Road Fund Protection

Edward A. O'Neal of Florence, Alabama, chairman of the Road Fund Protection Committee, today urged members of the Alabama Petroleum Industries Comittee to cast their ballot on November 4th for Amendment No. 1, which would earmark gasoline taxes and motor vehicle registration fees for road improvement.

Speaking at the Whitley Hotel, Montgomery, Alabama, Mr. O'Neal former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, explained the purpose of this proposed amendment to the state constitution. He said constitutional earmarking of road user tax revenue for roads would establish "a firm financial foundation" on which to build future road progress.

He described the groups supporting the Road Fund Protection Amendment as a representative cross section" of the state. They have taken a stand in favor of the amendment, he explained, because they believe in fairness to the taxpayers" and "they want good roads."

Mr. O'Neal emphasized that tne Road Fund Protection Amendment would not harm any individual or group, but would help all citizens. He said adoption of the amendment will not mean a loss of revenue to state, county or local governments and will not cost the taxpayers "an extra penny."

Similar constitutional amendments have already been ratified by the people of 21 other states, he said, and this year such amendments will be on the ballots in Arizona and Georgia, besides Alabama. So if all three states ratify the proposed amendments, one-half the states will have constitutional protection for their highway funds, he added.

After describing the importance of highway transportation to all groups in the population, Mr. O'Neal said: "As long as there is a single unpaved farm road in the state or an inadequate bridge, a highway that is too narrow for the traffic it handles or a dangerous curve or steep grade on our road system, we cannot afford to use our road money for anything except roads."

He concluded by calling on his audience to protect their road system by helping to get out the vote for the Road Fund Protection Amendment on November 4th.

Permits Now Available For Special Coosa Hunting Area

Montgomery, Ala. — Conservation Director Earl M. McGowin announced today that permits are available to sportsmen wishing to hunt a new 25,900 acre public hunting area opened in Coosa County by an agreement between the state and three Alabama companies.

McGowin said permits for hunting small game for a period of one week or turkeys for two-day periods may be had on request from the Conservation Department.

The new hunting area, called the Coosa Management Area, has been placed under supervision of conservation officials by the Coosa River Newsprint Co., the Kaul Lumber Co., and the Alabama Power Co.

Its boundaries have been posted to prohibit hunting without a permit. Hunters allowed permits are asked to report the game taken from the area, the amount of game seen and other information which will aid game management. Future permits will have to be denied, McGowin said, if hunters do not cooperate and help collect the information needed.

Season dates open on the area in accordance with normal state regulations, and permits are available at the Conservation Department in Montgomery on request.

Game experts from the Conservation Department's Game and Fish Division have begun planting of food strips on the Coosa area. An attempt will be made to provide year around cover and food crops in the area, so that game stocks can increase or replenish themselves.

The three companies who donated game rights on the land agreed to have the area managed by the state, with the stipulation that hunting should be free to the public.

Inmates At Kilby Prison Give 144 Pints Of Blood

Montgomery, Ala. — Inmates at Kilby State Prison, volunteering through the institution's Chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous, gave 144 pints of badly-needed blood this week when visited by the Red Cross bloodmobile.

One youthful life-termer explained it: "I served overseas before I came here and I know what it means to have blood waiting for you when you come off the battlefield wounded. I hope mine will help another soldier."

Late Poll Tax Payers Can't Vote

Montgomery, Ala. — State Attorney General Si Garrett has ruled that voters who paid poll tax since February 1 can't vote in the November 4th general election.

Garrett's rule came despite a judicial opinion to the contrary by Probate Judge Walter F. Gaillard of Mobile. Several days ago Judge Gaillard had held that those paying the poll tax after October 1 could cast contested ballots.

He had based his opinion on a section of the state constitution that says the tax is due October 1 each year and becomes delinquent the following October 1.

Garrett held, however, that the section didn't have any bearing on the issue. In the informal opinion contained in a letter to tax collectors and probate judges throughout the state, the attorney general referred to section 178 of the State Constitution.

That section says:

"To entitle a person to vote at any election by the people, he. . . shall have paid on or before the first day of February next proceeding the date of the election at which he offers to vote on all poll taxes due him for the year 1901 and for each subsequent year."

Garrett's letter cited four previous attorney general rulings backing up his opinion.

Bids To Be Let For New State Office Building

Montgomery, Ala. — State Finance Director D. W. Hodo said revised plans for the new $3,250,000 state office building here are nearly complete and bids may be invited later this month.

Hodo said, however, that no attempt will be made to sell bonds to pay for the building until bids are in.

The 1951 Alabama legislature set up a corporation to handle the bonds and arrange to pay construction costs of the office building.

Hodo said H. H. Houk, technical director of the state building commission, had said that the plans should be complete in about another week.

FARM BUREAU Speaks For FARMERS

Only Farmers Can Speak For Farmers

They do this through the Farm Bureau. It is a voluntary membership organization of 1,500,000 farm families in 47 states and Puerto Rico.

Farm Bureau is financed by dues paid by farm families who are united for the purpose of analyzing their problems and formulating programs to achieve economic equality, educational opportunity, and social advancement for farm people, and thereby promote the national security.

The Farm Bureau presents the views of farm people to the Legislature in Montgomery and the Congress in Washington. Fortune Magazine stated: "The farmer has learned that to be strong in Washington he needs more than a good cause. He also needs a good lobby. The American Farm Bureau Federation is the best lobby he ever had and probably the best lobby in the business."

Farm people are now only about 16 per cent of the population of the United States. Farm Bureau needs a strong, militant, well informed membership to keep price supports, maintain an effective farm program, stabilize agriculture by preventing the ups and downs it sufferred for so long, and preserve freedom. More members in the Farm Bureau make it strong as—

The Voice of Agriculture

CHILTON COUNTY NEWS

ONE OF ALABAMA'S LEADING WEEKLIES

VOLUME XXX CLANTON, ALABAMA THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1952 NUMBER 44

FOLKS AND THINGS ABOUT TOWN

—By Ben

UN Day in Chilton County was a big success and the county received a lot of good publicity for presenting such a good show. Miss Helen Parrish got the idea on Tuesday and made some contacts with the local clubs and with their full co-operation made a big success of the affair. Miss Parrish, and all those who worked so hard to make the preparations before Thursday—UN Day—are due a lot of credit.

Special thanks is due Mrs. C. Delle D. Cobb, Register in Chancery, by the Republicans as well as the Democrats for her faithfulness to duty during the recent campaign. She has worked nights and Sundays for both parties to see that all who were entitled to vote got that chance. For some it was impossible to get to Clanton any day but on a Sunday, so Mrs. Cobb gave of her time and effort to serve these voters. She is due a vote herself—one of appreciation.

Enjoyed a visit last week from Mr. R. L. Bishop, of Pensacola, Fla. Mr. Bishop was spending the week end with his brother and other relatives here and came by to talk with us a while. He was raised in Chilton County and still knows many of our citizens.

Tingle Bells, Tingle Bells,
It's Tingle all the way.
Go to the polls on Tuesdey next—
Let's make it Tingle's Day.

We can't go along with those who want to pussyfoot when it comes to saying whether we are a Democrat. Yep, that's right, we're a Democrat. On next Tuesday morning when we go to the polls to vote we are going to make a cross under the Democratic Rooster. Here's why: We believe that the hope and the future of our country and our state and our county lies in the Democratic Party. We cannot go back to the horse and buggy days of the Republican Old Guard. And you know as well as we do, that the Old Guard is running General Eisenhower's show. A lot of folks don't like President Truman. Well, there's a lot of things we do admire about him and there's a lot of things we don't like about him. But we would not undermine the Democratic Party and all the fine principles it stands for, because of one man. If you had a house and the roof leaked you wouldn't burn down the house just because of one hole in the roof would you Well, that's what you would be doing if you wanted to destroy the Democratic Party just because you don't like Truman. In our national and local tickets we have men of high purpose and high principles. We believe it is for the best interest of all to support them. Vote the Democratic Ticket next Tuesday to protect your own future.

The most gracious of all the gracious ladies that have been published in The Birmingham News was published Tuesday afternoon. She was Clanton's own Mrs. Mamie C. Smith. We congratulate her and know that she has friends by the thousands who feel as we do. She is certainly all that the words "gracious lady" implies.

And speaking of ladies. Did you see the beautiful Clanton ladies on T-V the other Saturday night. Doris (Mrs. Hal) Smyer and Mrs. Bing Lecroy were the models in a hair style show at the Thomas Jefferson Hotel at Birmingham. Never saw so many fancy hair-dos in all our days. Mrs. Cilla Adkins designed Mrs. Smyer's hair, or whatever you do to hair, and Mrs. Avoline Lecroy designed the hairdo for Mrs. "Bing."

Court Postponed

The Chilton County Law and Equity Court will not be held on November 3rd, but has been postponed until December 1st, it was announced today by Court Clerk J. C. Pattillo.

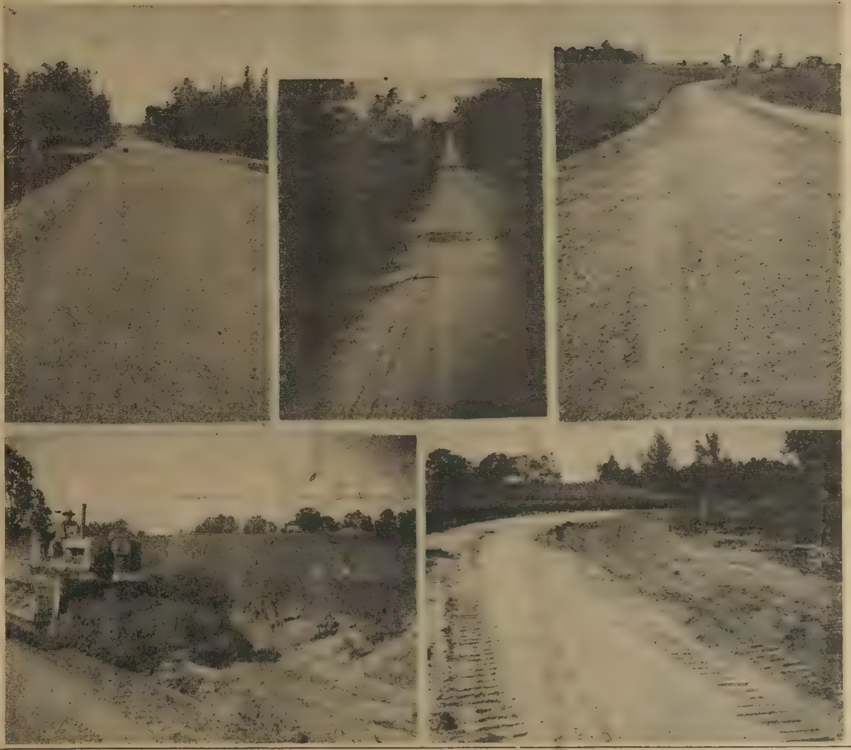
Highland Singing

There will be an all-day singing at Highland Church on November 2nd. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. — Ed Langston, Chm.

Chilton County Making Great Progress In Road Building

ENTERPRISE ROAD COMPLETED; MIMS CROSSING ROAD BEING IMPROVED

(By The Editor)



J. D. Bullington, County Engineer, and the Editor made a short tour of the south end of District Four the past week and for the benefit of those of you who haven't been over these roads recently we have published some pictures to give you an idea of the great improvement being made in our county road system. The same work pictured here in the Fourth District is also under way in District One, Two and Three.

At top left is a scene on the new Enterprise Road looking south. The new black-top runs for seven miles to Boockholdt's Store.

Center top is a stretch on the Mims Crossing Road before the County Engineer's road crew started widening and straightening out the "s" curves.

Top right is a feeder road running into the Enterprise Road and shows the splendid work of grading and draining done. Before this feeder road was completed it was practically grown up with weeds and grasses.

Lower left shows Walter Giles, Bulldozer operator, widening the Mims Crossing Road. This road will be widened for a distance of seven miles.

Lower right is another scene on the Mims Crossing Road showing a curve being taken out of the road giving a driver clear vision for several hundred feet.

The landholders on the Mims Crossing Road have moved their fences back and allowed for a wide modern thoroughfare through that section and when completed the road will be widened, drainage ditches put in, graveled, and the bad blind curves taken out.

J. D. Bullington stated that each District has the same sort of road improvement program going on at this time and the road pictured above will be completed within the next six weeks.

Give Blood On November 12th

The Red Cross Blood Mobile will pay its next visit to Chilton County on November 12th. It will be stationed at the First Methodist Church of Clanton and donations will be accepted from 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

The new Blood Chairman for the Clanton area is Marvin Prude, owner of the Standard Oil Station. Mr. Prude is vitally interested in the local and national Blood Program, and he urges cooperation of all Chilton County citizens. The need for blood in Army and civilian hospitals is greater than ever before. Blood which is accepted through the Red Cross Mobile Unit is never sold, and any citizen of Chilton County can request blood at any hospital in Birmingham, Montgomery and Selma. As long as Chilton County participates in the Blood Program, the only charge for blood will be the slight hospital expense for administering it. As long as you specify to the doctor that Chilton County is in the blood program, and as long as you ask for blood from the Red Cross Blood Bank, you do not have to pay for the blood itself!

Blood is free, but it has to be on hand when it's needed. Your blood chairman, Marvin Prude, urges you to fill out a pledge card and keep your appointment to give blood. The Blood Mobile will be in Clanton again on November 12th. People in your community will contact you with a pledge card. Give generously and help Chilton County to meet her quota. We need 165 pints of blood!

MAPLESVILLE 4-H CLUB MET TUESDAY

The Maplesville 4-H Club met Tuesday, October 14th, and discussed the projects for the coming year. The program was given by Miss Wright. Subject: "What Is 4-H."

Check the Record

I wish to congratulate the Union Banner for the editorial in last week's issue. They stated, "both Democrats and Republicans are pleased with the improvements in the county affairs." They stated that the last fiscal year just closed showed a credit balance of $150,398.10. They state that the Democrats have not mentioned the State Examiners report prior to 1949.

For your information, the State Examiners report shows, as of January 19, 1947, there was in the county treasury $248,918.19. The records show that on January 31, 1935, when the Republicans were in office, there was in the county treasury $44,958.32.

This editorial also states that in the last 18 years there was 59.01 miles of roads paved by the county. If they will check the record, they will find that they have left out approximately 48 miles of paved roads Chilton County participated in with the State, which cost the county over $100,000.00.

You will note that they failed to tell you how much money was in the county treasury when the Republicans went out of office. AND NOT ONE MILE OF PAVED ROAD BY THE COUNTY during the last 18 years of the Republican administration.

They also state that they do not want to go back, and the best way not to is for Chilton County to work and line up with the other Democratic counties and the State of Alabama.

WHITE SUPREMACY
FOR THE RIGHT

Well, just a few more days until election. Now watch the thinking voters stampede to Stevenson and Sparkman.

Is this the kind of weather you had in mind when you were griping about the hot weather last summer?

The revival recently held at the Methodist drew large crowds which proves, regardless of what you read about the world going to the devil, there are still a mighty lot of good folks.

LET'S NOT BE FOOLED BY REPUBLICAN STANDARD BEARER

HERE'S WHAT THE GENERAL SAID:

"We must do more than just keep our social security program. . .I know there are millions of our people who ought to be covered by it, who are not covered at all."

HERE'S WHAT THE REPUBLICANS DID:

The Republican controlled 80th Congress denied the benefits of social security to half a million persons. Seventy-nine percent of the Republican Congressmen tried to stop the Democratic Party from giving social security benefits to ten million more workers in 1949.

HERE'S WHAT THE GENERAL SAID:

"America needs better housing for those now compelled to live in slums."

HERE'S WHAT THE REPUBLICANS DID:

Seventy-six percent of the Republican Senators voted against slum clearance provisions in 1948 housing bill.

HERE'S WHAT THE GENERAL SAID:

". . .(We must) see to it that adequate medical care is made accessible and brought within the means of all our people."

HERE'S WHAT THE REPUBLICANS DID:

Seventy-one percent of the Republican Senators voted against a $27,500,000 expansion of grants to states for more local public health units in 1951.

HERE'S WHAT THE GENERAL SAID:

"We are not meeting the fact that school classrooms are seriously overcrowded. . .In this critical problem we must now undertake to help needy states build schools. . ."

HERE'S WHAT THE REPUBLICANS DID:

Eighty-six percent of the Republican Senators Voted against increasing funds for school construction in overcrowded areas by $50 million in 1951.

HERE'S WHAT THE GENERAL SAID:

"I say to you that I stand behind—and the Republican Party stands behind—the farm price support laws now on the books."

HERE'S WHAT THE REPUBLICANS DID:

Just this past June 30th fifty-three percent of the Republican Congressmen voted against the present parity law requiring 90 percent price support through 1954.

HERE'S WHAT THE GENERAL SAID:

"The Republican Party favors a sound program of rural electrification and rural telephone service. We regard REA as an investment in agriculture's future."

HERE'S WHAT THE REPUBLICANS DID:

In 1951 eighty-six percent of the Republican Members of Congress tried to turn over control of publicly-developed power to private power companies rather than to rural electrification cooperatives.

UNPLEASANT ODORS

Of all conditions that give displeasure to others, unpleasant body odors are the chief offenders. The sweat glands of the body, working normally produce perspiration, which is from ninety-eight to ninety-nine per cent water. In hot weather or during excessive exercise, more perspiration is excreted by the sweat glands through the skin. This is important in regulating the heat of the body. Unpleasant body odor is caused by the accumulation of excretions of the skin which undergo chemical changes.

Because the skin and clothing retain the odor, daily bathing, frequent laundering and change in linen are essential. Particular attention must be given to the underarm areas, the groin, and the feet. Keeping the body clean is a must in good grooming. Washing the hair frequently, particularly in hot weather, is another must. Clothes need not be expensive, but there is no excuse for not keeping them clean.

There are conditions that cause excessive perspiration which stem from underlying factors such as nervous and emotional states. These of course, are a medical problem.

Another unpleasant odor emitted from the body is bad breath. This condition stems from many causes, each of which should be investigated and corrected. Constipation may be a factor. Improper mouth hygiene, defective teeth, infection of the throat, tonsils and sinuses are all involved. Again unpleasant breath may be attributed to the diet of a person, since the eating of certain foods may be responsible.

In any event, unpleasant body odors can be prevented. If you are adhering to the principles of good hygiene, bathing frequently, changing clothing often, and generally paying attention to the concepts of cleanliness, you can safely ward off the offenders. On the other hand, if the unpleasantness persists after attention to all these details, let a medical or dental examination lead you to the correction that may be necessary.

You will never be bothered by having ribbons on your dresses and hats fray if you apply fingernail polish to the ends. Just run the polish applicator along the edge of the ribbon, using colorless polish or a shade to match the ribbon.

Indians were skilled in making pottery and other objects from clay and stone. The women were excellent weavers of baskets and similar objects. Dyes were made from bark and berries. These dyes were used for decorating skins and for painting designs on clothing and materials used in the house.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

We've had some hectic days—and nights—around our house recently. Whew!

The five-year-old has had a siege of tonsillitis with all its accompanying ills. The Head of the House has had a very bad cold. And the baby, for no apparent reason, has decided that she must go in training for a job as nightwatchman. Only the three-year-old has remained his full-of-energy, busy-every-minute self.

Prompt dosage with a new drug worked magic with the five-year-old's throat, but her fever went quite high. It was while her fever made her especially thirsty that she said,

"Mother, please bring me a glass of cold ice water. This glass of water has been here so long it tastes real dry."

Keeping a sick child entertained isn't easy, but there are ways of keeping them busy long enough for mother to attend to essential household tasks.

Nearly every little girl likes to primp. Give powder, powder puff, rouge lipstick and a mirror to admire the results, a little girl will be happy for an amazingly long time. And given a generous supply of cleansing cream and facial tissues, she'll be almost as entertained taking her make-up off as she was putting it all on.

And ladies, no matter what their age, delight in trying on hats. With a big mirror placed where she can see herself in it, and a little girl who feels weel enough to sit up in bed can have a wonderful time trying on all her mother's old hats.

The only trouble with these make-up and hat-trying-on types of entertainment is that few mothers can resist joining in the fun. They become so engrossed in trying on old hats and making plans for their renovation that they use up all the time they had planned to devote to household chores.

Food for a sick child must be prepared in tempting novel ways. At least that's what the experts say. Well, we tried it once around our house.

Not being at all artistic, it took a lot of hard work to make the "rakish relish scarecrow" and the "jolly little clown" just the way the food experts said they should be made. Finally though we managed to stick carrot legs, celery arms and a radish head (complete with carefully carved face) into a mound of cabbage slaw so that the result was reasonably like a scarecrow. Turning the orange into a clown wasn't a bit easier. And you know what happened when we presented them proudly to the young convalescent?

"They're too pretty to eat," she declared. "Put them in the refrigerator for me and save them. Then bring me something plain to eat."

All that work for nothing!

Here's a recipe for the well members of the family, a main dish shortcake:

Roll out biscuit dough as usual and cut into three-inch squares. After the squares are baked, top them with a can of salmon, a cup of cooked English peas and a bit of miced onion all mixed into a can of cream of mushroom soup and heated thoroughly.

The Indian played and worked, but the greatest aim of his life was to be known as a brave and successful warrior. He had to take scalps to prove what a great fighter he was.

Urges All Young Democrats To Back Local Demo Ticket

E. A. (Red) FULMER

E. A. (Red) Fulmer urged all Young Democrats to back the Stevenson-Sparkman ticket and to "vote under the rooster," when they go to the polls to vote next Tuesday.

Fulmer, who is State Commander of the Disabled American Veterans, is also President of the Chilton County League of Young Democrats. He is also co-chairman of the local Democratic Campaign Committee. His duty with the Disabled Veterans takes him into all parts of the State and one of his duties is to aid disabled veterans and their families whenever his services are needed. His work is also closely identified with the state governmet and veteran legislation.

Fulmer operates Red Fulmer Motors here and the Clanton Wrecking Company. "Only with each citizen going to the polls next Tuesday and casting his vote as is his duty and his privilege can we have a clear mandate of the people," Fulmer stated.

To The Voters From Horsley White

HORSLEY WHITE

I take this means of writing you to thank you for your support during my campaign for Circuit Clerk. If you can see fit to continue your support and vote for me on November 4th, next Tuesday, it will be greatly appreciated.

I have not been able to see all of you because my work has not permitted me to do so, but I have worked out in the county at every possible opportunity.

I will appreciate anything you can do to help me in my campaign and want you to know that I will do my very best to make you a good Circuit Clerk.

Yours truly,
HORSLEY WHITE.

(Pd. pol. adv. by Horsley White, Clanton, Ala.)

B. E. Reeves Writes Voters

B. E. REEVES

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

I want to publicly thank each and every one of you for your wonderful encouragement and good wishes. I have been received in each section of the County very graciously.

I have been in most sections of the County and have talked to many people, but you realize that it is impossible to see each one, and that does not mean that I am not interested in you. I am most grateful to those who are doing so much for me in their respective communities, you are most kind. I earnestly solicit the vote and influence of each of you, and I pledge to you that I will conduct myself and the affairs of the County which come under my jurisdiction, in such manner that you can say with pride, "I am certainly glad to have voted for him."

Realizing that we, as Americans, do not all see things in the same light, and that I will not get all the votes, I want to say to every voter of Chilton County, if it is at all possible for you to go to the polls on November 4th, by all means go and cast your ballot according to your own conscience. By so doing, the government will be by all the people and not a selected few. Remember, each one of you owns a share and each of you certainly should have your say in who shall fill the various offices, and I am firmly convinced that when you do, Chilton County will remain in the hands of the Democratic people of the County and that the improvements which have been made during the past four years will continue and be even more during the next administration.

Again let me thank you for your kindness.

B. E. REEVES,
Candidate for Re-election County Treasurer.

(Pd. pol. adv. by B. E. Reeves, Clanton, Ala.)

All prominent Democratic officers in Chilton County have endorsed the Democratic Candidates in the Nov. 4th election it was stated today by Frances Speaks, County Campaign Chairman.

Speaks stated that each office holder not only had authorized his signature to go on this page but had urged every man and woman in Chilton County who had his, or her, interest in the future at heart to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote the Democratic Ticket.

Even though the Republicans will spend thousands of dollars the last few days of the campaign to buy victory the fact cannot be denied that the farmer and small businessman have enjoyed the richest blessings in comfortable living that this country has ever known under Democratic office holders.

"We don't have the funds to match the huge Republican outlay," Speaks said, "and we will not resort to smearing, but we are calling on all citizens of the county to go to the polls on Nov. 4th, and cast their vote for a brighter future by voting the Democratic Ticket."

The undersigned County Officials endorse the entire Democratic Ticket and urge the voters to keep Chilton County along with Alabama in the Democratic column.

WHAT IS THE FARM BUREAU?

The Farm Bureau is a Confederation of local groups designed to do the jobs for farmers that they cannot do individually.

Each Chilton County Farm Bureau member is not only a member of his or her local and county farm Bureau, but is also a member of Alabama Farm Bureau and a member of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Alabama Farm Bureau consists of over 72,000 family memberships and nearly 1,500,000 family members make up the American Farm Bureau Confederation.

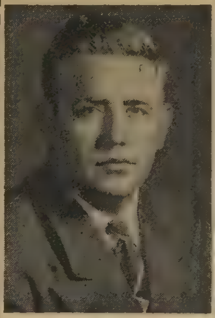
Local groups of members meet and discuss their problems and needs. County groups send delegates to State Conventions and pass on the ideas, needs, and desires of the various County Organizations to the State level. Resolutions are prepared on the State level. These resolutions (stemming from the thinking of farm people frmo every corner of the State) becomes the work program for the State officials. Alabama like all other States, send delegates to the American Farm Bureau Federation. The State delegates to American Farm Bureau formulate the National policies. Thus the policies of Farm Bureau stem from the "grass roots" to our national leaders thru Democratic procedure.

It is imperative that this type of organization be kept active and strong as the Voice of Agriculture. Should farmers become lax in maintaining and operating their own organizations and speaking for themselves, governmental leaders and others are only too willing to formulate farm programs and shove them down to farmers from the national level.

Farm Bureau is in reality "The Voice of Agriculture," and has become a vital cog in the National, State and Local farm policy-making procedure. A community Farm Bureau can build a community house, a better 4-H or Home Demonstration Club, or can improve the farming practices of every farmer in the community. A community Farm Bureau can through channels get State Agricultural Colleges to conduct a needed piece of research work or can affect the national farm policies.

Every farm community can and should maintain an active Farm Bureau unit.

Dave Tingle Makes Appeal To Voters



DAVE TINGLE

Dear Friend:

There are only a few days left before the General Election November 4th, and the people of Chilton County will again go to the polls and choose their county officials.

On March 1st I qualified to run for Probate Judge and on May 6th and June 3rd the Democratic elections were held.

I am grateful to you the people for giving me the opportunity to be the Democratic nominee for the high office of Probate Judge.

I have spent 8 months campaigning for this office and have made many friends throughout the county.

For several years I have been employed by the Chilton Board of Education as Head Veteran Agriculture Teacher in this county. During this time I have been doing all in my power to improve farming in our county, and I have always had the interest of the farmers at heart. Our Veteran Program is rated as one of the top three in Alabama. Many veterans have purchased farms while on our program and over 75% of those on our program are farm owners. Through our program we have stressed the importance of sound farming practices and much progress has been made.

I have always tried to cooperate with all farm agencies in our county including the Farm Bureau, County Agent, Soil Conservation, Forestry Department, Farmer's Home Administration, P.M.A., Chilton County Fruit and Truck Growers Association, and everyone interested in the welfare of our county.

I am interested in church and civic affairs, being a member of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church and having worked with the Red Cross, March of Dimes, Chilton County Christmas Chest, Chilton County Fair and Livestock shows.

I have worked with people all over the county and know the conditions which exist in every area of our county. If I am elected as your next Probate Judge, I will endeavor to carry out the duties of this office to the best of my ability.

I wish to thank the Democratic Chairman and Committee, and everyone that had a part in this campaign, and urge each and every voter to go to the polls on November 4th and vote his convictions.

DAVE TINGLE.

Sherman Motley Asks Support

SHERMAN MOTLEY

Having come to the end of my third political race this year, I feel that I have made many new friends in the county and renewed many old acquaintances. This I have enjoyed. Since this is the last time I will get to write to you before election day, I wish to ask your continued support in my campaign for the office of Board of Revenue and Control from the Third District.

I want to thank all my friends who have so faithfully stood beside me during these three campaigns and want you to know that from the bottom of my heart I appreciate your friendship and loyalty.

Again let me say that I will do my best to serve all the people if I am elected next Tuesday and will endeavor to make a public official that will be an asset to the county government.

Above all, go to the polls next Tuesday and vote. It is your duty as a citizen and a taxpayer.

Sincerely your friend,
SHERMAN MOTLEY.

Vote "No" On Amendment Number One

The Herald noted with genuine interest an editorial appearing in Monday's issue of The Tuscaloosa News calling upon the voters of that section to go to the polls on November 4 and vote against proposed Amendment No. 1 — the amendment to further restrict the budget powers of Alabama counties and municipalities.

One of the dangers in the proposal brought to light by The News was the effect—the very unfavorable effect—its passage would have on essential county government services. It pointed out one service in particular that would suffer by passage of the amendment—the farm extension service. Other county services to rural people would likewise suffer—that is, all county services supported out of the county general fund. The same would be true of municipal services supported by the general fund.

The Herald agrees with the editorial expression of The News on this vital question. But, what impressed us most about the Tuscaloosa paper's view was this comment:

"... We doubt seriously the wisdom of continuing to place constitutional restrictions on the spending of public funds. The trend is dangerous. For if we wish to make a change in the plan later we would find ourselves faced with the necessity of passing another constitutional amendment. . ."

The News brought out another point—that the amendment on first study sounded good. It concluded its editorial with this reference to what appeared on first reading that the amendment should be adopted: "Although our preliminary conclusion was that Amendment No. 1 was a sound proposal, our study of the matter has convinced us that it should not be approved and we hope it will be defeated at the polls November 4."

The Herald sincerely hopes that the people of Union Springs and Bullock County will "snow the amendment under." We elect good, honest public officials to administer the affairs of our city and county governments. Then should we turn around and say to them by the adoption of this amendment that we cannot trust them to wisely handle the spending of taxes paid by automobile owners?

A "no" vote on this proposal will be a wise vote!

To The Citizens Of Chilton County

JAMES M. DUNLAP

"When a member of an official body can attend all meetings for a period of four years without a miss that is a record to be proud of. And that is the record of James M. Dunlap on the Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County. Mr. Dunlap has attended every regular meeting and every special or call meeting since he has been elected to the office he now holds and is a candidat for in the General Election in November

"Faithfuless to a public trust is a thing that some of our elected officials take too lightly and it is with a deep sense of respect that we congratulate Mr. Dunlap on his record as a member of the governing body of our county." (Reprint from Chilton County News).

Since serving as a member of the governing body of Chilton County, Alabama, for approximately four years, I am enjoying the work to the best degree and have nothing to be ashamed of, but many things to be proud of. There has been full cooperation among the Board of Revenue and Control and all concerned. I have always welcomed constructive criticism, along with any praise of work I may deserve.

We are still progressing nicely under our cooperation and management and we have a progressive program outlined for the future which will benefit all the citizens of Chilton County.

I feel that with the experience I have that I am better qualified to do a better job in the future for all the people of Chilton County. Thus, because of my qualifications, I earnestly solicit your vote and influence in the General Election of November 4th for honest, economical, efficient, sound county government by casting your vote for James M. Dunlap for Associate Member of The Board of Revenue and Control of Chilton County, Alabama, District No. 4.

Yours very truly,
JAMES M. DUNLAP:

(Pd. pol. adv. by James M. Dunlap)

HIGHLAND

Services here were well attended this week end. Bro. Deason delivered very inspiring messages both morning and night. We were glad to see some of our church members out, who have not been attending regular.

This church an dcommunity were saddened last week by the sudden death of Mr. Jim Lockhart. We extend our heart-felt sympathy to the family and our prayers are that the Lord will comfort them in their sorrow. The church has lost a devoted and faithful member in his passing, but we can say our loss is Heaven's gain.

Our annual singing which was postponed will be held next Sunday. Everyone has a special invitation to come and be with us.

The work on our church will soon be completed and the building committee has called a meeting for Thursday night (tonight) at 7:00 o'clock for some important business. Each member is asked to make a special effort to attend. Also everyone attend our singing next Sunday and Training Union Sunday night at 6 o'clock. — Reporter.

The Parable of the PRODIGAL VOTER

Shall The Thriving South Now Waste Its Substance By "Bedding Down" WITH THE REPUBLICAN PARTY?

Over the years, Alabama and the South have given unbroken support to the Democratic Party. The great progressive programs of the Democratic Party have, in return, changed the face of Alabama to a land of prosperous farms, successful businesses, and thriving industrial plants.

Remember the Bible story of the prodigal son? He deserted the house of his father.

> "And there arose a mighty famine . . . and he would fain have filled his belly with the husks that the swine did eat."

Can you desert the house of your fathers?

Who do you think will serve you and Alabama best?

As vice-president and presiding officer of the Senate:
Sparkman of Alabama or Nixon of California.

As speaker of the House:
Rayburn of Texas or Martin of Massachusetts.

As Chairman of the Agriculture Committee:
Ellender of Louisiana or Aiken of Vermont.

As Chairman of the Armed Services Committee:
Russell of Georgia or Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

As Chairman of Expenditures Committee:
McClellan of Arkansas or McCarthy of Wisconsin.

As Chairman of Finance Committee:
George of Georgia or Milliken of Colorado.

As Chairman of Banking and Currency Committee:
Maybank of So. Carolina or Capehart of Indiana.

Chairman of Ways and Means Committee:
Cooper of Tennessee or Reed of New York.

A majority of the chairmen of the committees of the House and Senate of the United States now are Southerners. If the Republicans sweep this election not a single chairman of a single committee of the House or Senate will be from south of the Mason & Dixon line.

DIASTOLIC (Low)—2-3 of normal systolic, which is the relaxation of the heart beat.

"Country Fair" At Church—

About sixty-five young people enjoyed the "Country Fair" which took place in the basement of the First Baptist Church on Tuesday evening of last week.

The "Country Fair" party was given by the Young People's Department of the Sunday School, honoring the group of girls and boys who were promoted from the Intermediate Department the first of October.

There was fun for everyone as they entered the booths which consisted of a shooting gallery, a "live baboon," the seven wonders of the world and other interesting things. Everyone entered the contests and games with jest and merriment. A fair is not complete without the hot-dog stand, and this stand furnished plenty of delicious hot-dogs for refreshments.

The usual fair decorations completed this realistic scene.

Each class of the department was responsible for a booth at the fair.

The new officers and teachers of the department are as follows: Mrs. J. G. Hutchinson, superintendent; associate, Mrs. Reedie Taylor; secretary, Mr. Leo Thompson; pianist, Miss Carolyn Reeves; choirster, Miss Maxine Westerman; associate teacher, Mrs. Ralph Morrison; teachers, Mr. J. Right down to the smallest model

Only GMC builds 'em "Big-Truck" rugged!

GMC is the only manufacturer to engineer its lightest-weight models with all five of the "heavy-duty" features most other manufacturers reserve for "big trucks only."

Even in the lightest GMC pickup truck, you'll find a sturdy truck-built engine protected by many of the same extra-value features that go into the big 200-horsepower GMC's: Tocco-Hardened crankshaft, airplane-type main and rod bearings, full-floating piston pins, rifle-drilled connecting rods and full-pressure lubrication all the way to the piston pins.

There's the same "extra" engineering that means extra years of trouble-free service in the chassis, too—a deep, rigid frame riding on long "pillow-action springs," and real "truck-size" brakes that respond to a nudge of the pedal.

Why not come in and drive one? Even the steering mechanism—which operates in a bed of recirculating ball bearings—is the best in the business. Whatever size truck you need, you can't beat a GMC!

Check The Record And Vote For B. E. Reeves, For Treasurer

B. E. Reeves has a record of experience and ability to perform the duties of the office for which he is seeking re-election. He has proved in the past four years in the office of County Treasurer that he is faithful to your trust. The duties have been performed honestly and efficiently. Even the opposition Party agrees that he has as good record as any candidate that has ever run for public office. All citizens in the County (whether Democrat or Republican, or white or colored) who know B. E. Reeves personally, will tell you that he is the type of man who will do everything in his power or influence to assist all County officials or employees, in keeping the affairs on the way to further progress and improvement. There has been much said by certain candidates that they were born and reared in Chilton County; but, friends, does the fact that one is born or reared in any certain place have any more to do with the qualifications to do a job or hold public office than the clothes he wears or the color of his eyes? No, my friends, we need a man to handle the many thousands of dollars of our County, who has long experience in this field and with long accounting experience, and who has a proved record of honesty and integrity.

B. E. Reeves is a man who possesses such qualifications, and is always fair and impartial to all people regardless of race, color or creed, yes, even Party affiliation. He has a great love for his fellowman, and is deserving of the support and influence of all citizens of Chilton County; and I am certain that you, the voters, will so reward him for his faithful efforts and his good record, by going to the polls on November 4th and re-electing him by an overwhelming majority.

Home Demonstration Club Leadership School

Wednesday afternoon, October 15th, Miss Lavada Curtis, Specialist in Food Preservation for the Extension Service, from Auburn, conducted a Leadership School on "Candied Fruits" in the kitchen of the Surburban Gas Company. Home Demonstration Club members who were present learned how to candy fruits to be used in fruit cakes.

Fruits used in the demonstration were pineapple, grapefruit peels and cherries. About eight to ten days are required to complete the candied process of each fruit. There are five steps in the process of preparing candied fruits. In each step the fruit is boiled in a syrup for a certain number of minutes and then set aside for twenty-four or forty-eight hours so that the fruit can absorb some of the syrup. Boiling the fruit for a few minutes and then allowing it to stand in the syrup enables it to candie to a desirable product. If all of the boiling were done at one time a preserved fruit would be the result instead of a candied fruit. The first three steps in preparing fruit are different but the other three are similar. Candying the cherries was started two days before and the grapefruit one day before the Leadership School. The specialist used pineapple for step one, grapefruit peels for step two and cherries for step three so that the ladies could see how each of these steps was done. Methods for all candied fruits are similar so in this way the specialist could do the first three steps and then explain the last three steps.

Presidents and Food Preservation Leaders from each Club were invited to the Leadership School. They will be responsible for making preparations so that they may give the first three steps as a demonstration in their local Club. Ladies present for the Leadership School were: Mrs. Turner Eiland and Mrs. Leslie Thornton, Cedar Grove; Mrs. R. R. Sutley, Friendship; Mrs. John D. Mitchell and Mrs. H. M. Kelley, Thomas Jr.; Mrs. J. C. Boockholdt, Bethsalem; Mrs. E. S. Chasteen, Fairview; Mrs. H. G. Daniel, Verbena; Mrs. Aubrey Smith and Mrs. Esther Lou Childers, Poplar Springs; Mrs. C. C. Parrish, Mrs. J. E. Wright and Mrs. Durwood Mims, Baker; and Mrs. S. A. Jones, Alabama Mills.

Arthur W. Headley Encourages Strong Support Of Annual Farm Bureau Drive

Strong support for the annual Farm Bureau membership drive in Chilton County was urged this week by Arthur W. Headley, chairman of the campaign, who outlined numerous reasons for participating in the program, which, he said promoted advancement of the agricultural sections and thereby strengthened national security.

"Since farm people now comprise only about 16 percent of the population of the United States," said Mr. Headley, "it is imperative that we have a strong, militant, well informed membership. That is especially true in Alabama, where the farm population is still relatively large, but which must be united to compete with labor and industrial organizations of other sections."

He pointed out that much of the Farm Bureau-supported State legislation enacted in 1951 already was bringing in benefits to farmers, including laws protecting and advancing the livestock industry, exemption of cottonseed meal from the State sales tax when seed are exchanged for meal at the gin, boosting of truck crop inspection and numerous others.

Sales tax exemptions on feedstuff, insecticides, and fungicides have been approved to become effective after June 30, 1953. The Farm Bureau also sponsored additional pay for teachers and other educational expansions.

Prevention of livestock slaughter quotas, elimination of excess oil peanuts and more favorable quotas; prevention of price ceiling rollbacks on livestock, cotton and other farm products were named among successful congressional campaigns. Constant watch is kept to protect farm price supports at an equitable level.

The Farm Bureau service companies paid patronage dividends to members in amounts exceeding the total of all $3.00 memberships paid into the State organization.

Rural Mail Carrier Writes To Patrons

Friday of this week, October 31st, 1952, will bring to a close my service as a Rural Mail Carrier on Route 1, out of Mt. Creek, Ala., post office, having served the Route 36 years and seven months.

The route was 26.5 miles long when I started on April 1st, 1916, and increased from time to time as the roads and cars progressed with the times until I had 48.6 miles. Then Route 2 was vacated by retirement later on July 1st, 1938. One and Two were consolidated then I inherited both Routes, or most of them. The mileage increased to 66.3 miles. Then from time to time increased to 75.1 miles; recently decreased to 74.9, the present mileage.

I began in the horse and buggy days and what an experience was mine in the good old "horse and buggy days," for several years?

In 1918 I bought my first Ford Model T, and think I have used every model since, buying 35 or more Fords, one Dodge and one Star.

I have enjoyed every day of the service, every day being a new one, and the best one, because God had let me live to see it, and doing my best to improve the service with and to you patrons.

Yes, I have bucked the winds, the heat, the cold, the sleet, the snow, and rains galore, but the mail had to go, so I took it on the chin with a grin and have ever tried with an humble heart to give you "Service with a Smile," the Rural Carriers motto.

During these years of service as a Mail Carrier on this Route it was at all times my sincere desire to render the best service possible to my patrons, and have counted each of you among my friends.

You have made the years rest lighter upon my shoulders, through your kindness and loyal cooperation, and I have grown to cherish your friendship and love through these years.

Yes, I have made mistakes, for all of which I am sorry, and ask your forgiveness.

I forgive you for all your mistakes and shortcomings, for "To err is human, but to be like Christ is Grace Divine." I pray His richest blessings ever to abide with you, 'till we meet in that beautiful City, "The Home of the Soul."

The work has been pleasant indeed and I hope you will give my successor the hearty cooperation you have given me.

I am sincerely your friend,

Raymond L. Duffey.

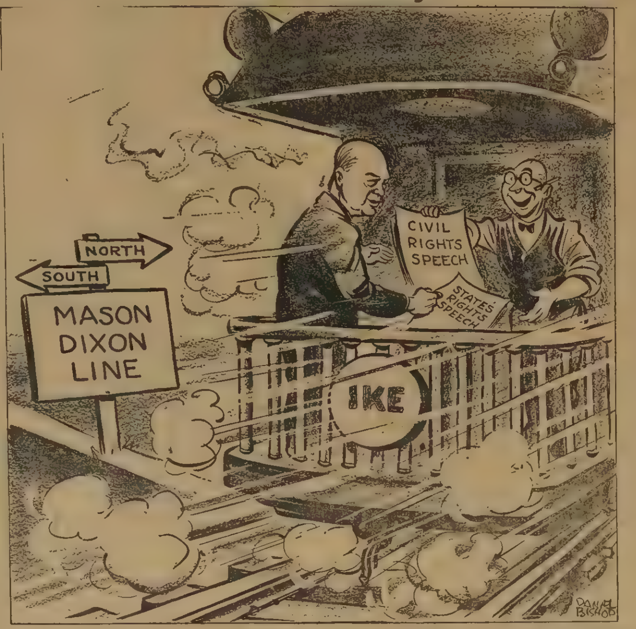
'It's Time For A Change'



ATTENDS DISTRICT MEETING OF CHRYSLER CORPORATION

L. A. Lambert, owner of Lambert Motor Co., recently returned from Atlanta where he attended one of a series of twenty-five nation-wide meetings being held by Chrysler Division of Chrysler Corporation to preview the 1953 Chrysler.

"The new cars are the 'Most Beautiful Chryslers Ever Designed,' Lambert reports. "They feature entirely new and beautiful body styling with long, low lines emphasizing the length and width of the cars."

Lambert said that many new and outstanding features are incorporated in the 1953 Chrysler in addition to the proven mechanical features such as the revolutionary 180-horsepower V-8 Chrysler Fire Power engine, full-time power steering, Fluid Torque Drive, power brakes and Oriflow.

"These cars, I am sure, will set the new highway fashion for 1953," Lambert said. "They are the most luxurious cars Chrysler has ever produced and incorporate improvements which assure that they will be 'America's First Family of Fine Cars.' "

During the month of October, Chrysler's 3,500 dealers from coast to coast, will have attended similar meetings and pre-viewed the new 1953 Chrysler.

He would have been 21 this Tuesday

... just old enough to vote. Call him Bill or Ed or Tony—he was just one of the neighborhood boys. Perhaps you heard about him on the news broadcast or read about him in the paper ...

"Advance forces of United Nations troops in Korea have recaptured Hill 704 in the face of stiff enemy resistance. American casualties were ..."

He would have been 21 years old this Tuesday, November 4th ... just old enough to vote. Now—nobody can presume to speak for this young man. Nobody can say for sure that he would have voted for this candidate or that—for one party or another. But this we do know

... with his life he has cast his vote against a monstrous opponent—one that seeks to control the minds and souls of all mankind ... that opponent who says: "The state is everything—the individual, nothing."

That young man might have been standing in the line next to any one of us next Tuesday—waiting to cast his first vote.

But—he will not be there.

Will you be sure to cast your vote this coming Tuesday? Go to the polls and vote according to your conscience and convictions ... but, above all

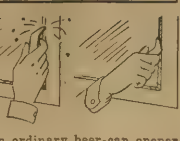
Handy Hints



An ordinary beer-can opener makes about the best putty knife you can find. Use the sharp point (left) to scrape away the old putty and any other foreign matter. Then turn the opener over (right) to shape and smooth the new putty. First, roll the putty into a slender roll . . . about the size of a lead pencil. Press it in position . . . and shape it with the back of your opener.

We wish to take this means of expressing our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends for their expressions of love and sympathy during the recent illness and death of our sister, Miss Annie L. Culp. — The Culp Family.

Said agreement being in words and figures as follows:

F.A.S. FUNDS WITH STATE-AID ACCRUALS
SACP NO. 3103-A
AGREEMENT

This agreement made and entered into this the 13 day of October, One Thousand Nine Hundred and 52, by and between the STATE OF ALABAMA HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT, party of the first part (hereinafter called the State) and Chilton County, by and throught its Commissioners Court or Board of Revenue, party of the second part, (hereinafter called the County).

WHEREAS, Section 13 of the Alabama Farm to Market Road Act of 1943, as amended by House Bill 64, approved June 1, 1954, allotted to each county an amount equal to 1|67 of $2,500,000 of Federal funds from the 1946-1953 Federal-Aid Secondary Program with such Federal-aid to be matched by the State and County—share-and-share alike—from the State-County funds provided in the Act.

WHEREAS, the above sum for the County is to cover construction costs and engineering and inspection charges in connection therewith.

NOW THEREFORE, in consideration of these premises, the mutual covenants herein contained, and the sum of $1.00 by each of the parties to the other in hand paid, receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, the parties hereto agree as follows:

That the State will enter into an greement with the Bureau of Public Roads covering the improvement of the road and|or bridge from Jemison to Mars' Hill, known as Project No. S-336(2).

That the County hereby authorizes the State to transfer sufficient unobligated funds accrued to the credit of the County and held in the funds of the State to cover one-fourth of the cost of said project and the County agrees to pay to the State on or before the award of the contract a like amount of the unobligated funds accrued in the Treasury of the County to match such funds. Should the funds as provided in Section 13 namely, Federal funds in the amount of $17,506.18, plus the unobligated funds accrued to the credit of the County in the State Treasury plus the unobligated funds in the County Treasury for matching same, fail to be sufficient to cover the amount of the contract, the County will, on or before the award of the contract, pay to the State the difference in such amounts.

Upon completion of the project, a final settlement will be made between the State and County, adjusting overruns and underruns on such a basis whereby the State and County will share equally in the cost thereof over and above the FAS funds allotted to the County for the project.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the State of Alabama Highway Department has caused these presents to be executed by the State Highway Director and Chilton County, by proper resolution of its Commissioners Court or Board of Revenue, has caused these presents to be executed this day and year above written.

School News—

The Senior II Class held a meeting on October 16th to select a play for the year. Four plays were put before the class; the class voted on the "Haunted Chair" as the one they wanted. They think this will be a fine play with laughter for everyone. The date has not been set yet. When the play is staged they will be looking for everyone to attend.

The Senior III Class is sponsoring a play, "Hillbilly Wedding." It is reported to be an extremely funny play, and they know that you will enjoy this play if you will only come to see it.

The F.H.A. Girls initiated the Senior I girls last Thursday and Friday. The formal initiation was held the following Tuesday morning in the school auditorium.

The students of the school are deeply grateful for the new books which have been placed in the library. There has been a general rush for book and the teachers note that discipline is much improved.

The County Board of Education recently gave the school some new tables which add much to the comfort.

Six students, Doris Merchant, Alice Norma Dial, Wilma Jean Lucas, Isla Lou Lovelady, Elizabeth Dennis and Eugene Smitherman assist Mrs. Georgia Billingsley as librarian.

They have hopes of adding many new books and making the library the most attractive room in the school before the year is over.

We welcome all contributions of both books and magazines that are suitable for school use. There can never be too many.

Friday night, October 17th, was a night long to be remembered by the students of Maplesville High School. Their band made its first public appearance. The director, Mr. De Roberts from Birmingham, has worked faithfully in trying to develop a good band. Most of the musicians are very young, therefore the director deserves a great deal of credit.

The band uniforms were very snappy, being red and white, the school colors. The band is made up of the following: Majorettes, Peggy Seales, Jean Broadhead, Carolyn Hathcock, Lynne Kelley, Jo Ann Wright, Linda Hambric and Bobby Gay; the band, Ed Clapp, Donnie Folsom, Frank Daniel, Nancy Daniel, Howard Graham, Tommy Watson, Johnny Thomas, Wayne Atcheson, Butch and Eddie Higginbotham, Ray McGee, Dale Greene, Ollie Jean Littlejohn, Martha Jo Adams, Henry Ed Perry, Jean Dennis, June Hicks, Joe Hicks, Dewey Lenoir, Billy Joe Lenoir, Douglas Hall and Gerald Atcheson.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00.
Sunday School 10:00.
Everybody welcome.

Today we conclude our discussion on the topic, "Why Join The Church." I would like to review today the reasons set forth in some previous articles.

First of all, the church alone has divine authority to preach and teach religion, to organize missions and religious societies, and evangelize the unsaved. Christ committed that task to the church, not to any human organization.

Secondly, only through the church can the sacraments be administered and to believers only. While a Christian layman may perform an emergency Baptism, the Lord's Supper may be administered only by an ordained minister of the Gospel. The unchurched thus deprive themselves of these grace bestowing ordinances of the church.

Finally, you are never considered a part of the church unless you are a member. No matter hwo regularly you may attend church and even contribute to it, you are still a "visitor" until you join.

Give the church a fair hearing and pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in this all important matter that could mean either everlasting life or eternal disaster. I stand ready, along with other pastors, to render what assistance I can in helping you reach a decision for Christ. — Rev. William R. Morgan.

Last Sunday the congregation held its annual elections and Nels Peterson and Jimmy Nelson were re-elected to the church council. Also an amendment to the constitution of the congregation was approved.

A Hallowe'en party was given to the children of the Lutheran Sunday School by Naemi Turnquist at her home yesterday evening. It was a very enjoyable evening for all who attended.

You may eat normally until four hours before donation of blood!

You should avoid eating fatty foods during four hours before donating because: Fat remains in the blood 3 to 4 hours after fatty foods are eaten. Fatty whole blood cannot be transfused because the patient receiving blood may be sensitive to fat—many people are. An ill person often can't tolerate fat. Fat solids interfere with transfusion flow. Plasma made from fatty blood cannot be dried and preserved successfully.

We are asking each and every one of you to pledge a pint of blood to help save a life both in Civilian Hospitals and for Defense. For further information please call Miss Helen Parrish, our Publicity Chairman, at WKLF, 448, Clanton.

When first setting up the government of the territory acquired from French territory east of the Missis- Years' War, England divided the present State of Alabama. The division ran across the State along he parallel 32 degree and 28 minutes, which is just south of the present cities of Wetumpka and Demopolis. Country north of this land was declared Indian country, not to be settled by whites. The region lying south of the line and between the Apalachicola and Pearl rivers was given the name of West Florida, with Pensacola as its capitol.

CLIFF MIMS KILLED IN ROAD MISHAP

M. C. (Cliff) Mims, of Hattiesburg, Miss., was killed last Friday late when his car overturned on a curve. He was en route home to visit his father who was ill.

That accident occurred near Selma. Mr. Mims was alone in the car it was reported. Funeral notice elsewhere in this issue.

RALPH MIMS THANKS HIS SUPPORTERS

I wish to thank the good people of Chilton County for the very complimentary vote that I received in the election Tuesday. I also want to express my congratulations to Mr. Sherman Motley the victor.

I have made many friends throughout the county during the short campaign that I made and certainly feel that the race was worth while even though I lost.

I hold no ill will for any one and will continue to strive for the better things for our county.—RALPH MIMS.

The French were far more successful in trading with the Indians than were the British in the area which is now Alabama. From Mobile, French traders moved inland by water routes. In 1717, they built Fort Toulouse at the point where the Coosa and the Tallapoosa rivers join. The site of the fort was the location of the old Indian town of Tuskegee, and was near the present city of Wetumpka.

The fact that England and France were enemies in Europe increased the bitterness of their rivalry in America. In 1756, the Seven Year's War began in Europe. Two years earlier, the French and English had started fighting in the upper Ohio Valley in North America. This war in America is known as the French and Indian War because so many Indians took part in the fighting on the side of the French.

Although the settlers of French Mobile did not take part in the French and Indian War, which involved the French and English ships did sail into the Gulf of Mexico and cut off Mobile's trade with the outside world.

When the Seven Years' War came to an end in 1763, the peace treaty which followed ceded all French territory east of the Mississippi River except New Orleans to England. New Orleans and all French territory west of the Mississippi River went to Spain.

4,852 Voters Turn Out For Election

The Democrats won the greatest victory in the history of the Party Tuesday in County Politics when they won all offices by nearly a thousand vote margin.

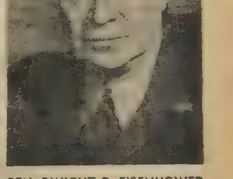
Horsley White, candidate for Circuit Clerk led the ticket with 955 votes more than his opponent Judson Messer of Verbena.

Probate Judge candidate Dave Tingle defeated Dewey Rockett by an even 900 votes. The closest margin was between Jim Dunlap and Ralph Mims which was a little less than seven hundred votes. A vote by Beats is given elsewhere on this page.

Old timers report no cleaner election has ever been held than was held Tuesday. The Democrats, with practically no campaign fund, won their places by hard work and the desire to take the issue to the people and to let them make the decision. They decided heavily in favor of the Democrats.

More voters trekked to the polls than ever before in the County's history. A total of 4852 voters took advantage of a beautiful day to have their say. The largest vote was cast in the race for Probate Judge.

On the Amendment Election No. 1 won by a count of 2620 for and 1018 against; No. 2 lost by a count of 799 for to 2396 against; No. 3 was 825 for and 1092 against; and No. 4 was 781 for and 1038 against.



GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

On the national scene the Republicans had what was practically a landslide in electorial votes with Stevenson winning only 89 of the 266 necessary for election. The popular vote was twenty-six million plus for Eisenhower and twenty-one million plus for Stevenson.

AUF WIEDERSEHEN

Auf Wiedersehen to the Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Stuckey who have served in Chilton County for so many years. It is with deep regret that we see them go, but as Rev. Stuckey says he is going into a mission field where there is much work to do and where he feels he can be of much service.

In a letter from Rev. and Mrs. Stuckey received this week they say:

Mr. Editor: Please allow us to say a final word to our many friends in Chilton County.

Our services with the Concord Baptist Church will terminate on the 19th of November. If we had continued our services with this good Church until the first of December, we would have been their pastor eight years. These years have been pleasant to Mrs. Stuckey and myself. Concord has been cooperative, considerate and sympathetic toward us. They have followed our leadership in a gracious way and their willingness to follow our leadership is the thing that has made the progress of the Church so rapid. They have sacrificed and so have we and that accounts for the everlasting love that is between us.

We are moving to Inverness, Alabama, about the 22nd of November. I will be pastor of two half-time Churches with afternoon appointments at other Churches. This indeed is a mission field. There are only two resident pastors in this whole Association. I will make the third. A group of Baptist Churches dying for the want of leadership. It, truly, is a Macedonian call to me. For two months God has walked before me and closed doors that I wanted to enter, always pointing to this door that has remained open. I finally came to my Troas as Paul did and heard the call: "Come over into Macedonia and help us. The rest is up to God and I am going to give the best service of my life."

We appreciate our friends in Chilton County and ask that your prayers follow us. We plan to come back some day, but God still leads us and we shall follow that leadership.

Sincerely,

Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Stuckey.

Our very best wishes go with the Stuckies in their new work. They will be missed in Chilton County.

A DEDICATION

It is not often that we publish poetry in Chilton County News because the average run of poetry just isn't poetry to anyone but the fellow who writes it. We are taking this exception this week because of the nature of the "poetry." It was dedicated to Mr. R. L. Duffey, mail carrier at Mt. Creek for many years and who is retiring this year.

RURAL MAIL CARRIER

Our mail carrier on Route One
Uncle Sam says his work is done.

He has brought our mail rain and snow,
For that is one thing that must go.

Some news is bad, some is good,
Mr. Duffey did the best he could.

He was always kind and true.
Yes, a real true friend to me and you.

We will miss him this I know,
But Uncle Sam says he must go.

Every day he did his best,
Now at last he can have some rest.

No more blame he will have to take,
For all those mistakes he did not make.

Oh yes, he made some — that is true,
But just the same we made some too.

So, Mr. Duffey, may God bless and keep you is our prayer, 'til we meet in that Home over there. Where there will be no more rain or snow. No more mail that has to go. No more blame you have to take for all our own mistakes. God will say to you, "Well Done." A Crown in Heaven you have won. Written by your friend, Mrs. H. T. Booth.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Children know instinctively what is important, know how to get right down to essential matters. When they have news or a story to tell, they don't spoil its telling by cluttering it up with unessential details, and they have the ability to reduce all their problems to their simplest forms.

When our three-year-old says his prayers at night, he deals only with the important things. This was particularly true the other night when he prayed:

"Take care of Mother and take care of daddy and take care of my big sister and take care of the baby and take care of me. And take real good care of Yourself?

What could possibly be more important?

Five young mothers in our neighborhood go to a nearby city together about once a month to spend the day shopping, seeing a show and having lunch at their favorite restaurant.

Our neighbor down the street was whirling around getting ready to leave on the regular shopping spree when we dropped by, to see her the other morning.

"I'm all ready to go now," she said, tucking her gloves into her purse, "if I could only find the crayons."

"Crayons?" I asked. I somehow hadn't thought that the talkative matrons spent their time coloring pictures on their way to and from the city.

'Yes, crayons," she laughed. "You see, we use the crayons to mark our packages so we'll be sure to get the right ones when we get back home. We used to get our packages all mixed up before we each chose a color and marked our purchases plainly with it."

The magazines are all filled with Christmas advertising. Makes me feel uncomfortable and terribly unprepared, knowing as I do that come December 24th I'll be trying frantically to finish my shopping.

The five-year-old and the three-year-old have done some of their shopping already. They invested in a cigar box full of small toys to send to Korean war orphans. What a difficult time they had deciding what to send, and how hard it was for them to part with some of their purchases.

In case you'd like to have a part in the Christmas party the 335th Ordnance Battalion is giving for the Korean children, it's not too late to send a package (the youngsters have asked for soap and a towel) to: Battalion Chaplain, 335 Ordnance Battalion, APO 973, in care Postmaster, San Francisco, California.

Thank goodness the presidential campaign is finally over! I keep wondering what the radio news commentators will find to talk about after they finish their analysis of the results.

Some night when company drops in unexpectedly and accepts your invitation to stay for supper, try special muffins the way the neighbor around the corner makeks them. Make muffin batter according to the usual recipe. Then add to the batter a cup of chopped apples, a teaspoon of cinnamon and ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Put batter in muffin rings and sprinkle the tops with sugar before you slip them into the oven.

Wage Limits Raised For Beneficiaries

Persons receiving old-age and survivors insurance benefits can now earn as much a $75 a month without losing their benefits, according to M. C. Folmar, manager of the Birmingham office of the Social Security Administration.

The amount of wages a person getting benefits is permitted to earn in a month without losing his payment has been raised from $50 to $75, beginning with the month of September. In case a beneficiary is self-employed, he can accept his benefit checks if his net earnings from self-employment do not average more than $75 a month, that is, more than $900 for his taxable year. Beneficiaries who work in employment not covered by the Social Security Act, and those who have reached the age of 75, may cash their checks regardless of how much they earn.

Mr. Folmar pointed out that this "work clause" applies not only to the retired worker, but also to a wife, widow, child, or parent who is receiving benefits based on the social security account of a retired or deceased worker. Any beneficiary who is working for wages should notify the Social Security Administration promptly if he earns over $75 in one month. A self-employed beneficiary should notify the Administration as soon as he sees that his net earnings are likely to average more than $75 a month for the taxable year.

With the coming of the war between England and the U. S., in 1812, American settlers who had moved into that part of Spanish West Florida around Baton Rouge, revolted against Spanish control, and asked that the region be annexed to the U.S. This was done in 1812.

Pedestrains Should Keep This In Mind

Accident reports show that the great majority of pedestrains injured at any one time were violating a definite regulation designed to save their lives, reveals Stella Mitchell, API Extension home management specialist.

In one instance, she stated that 55 per cent of the pedestrains killed in cities were using the roadway between intersections. Also, approximately three-fourths of the pedestrains killed in accidents between five and eight o'clock are killed during the season when darkness comes during these hours.

"On the basis of weight and strength," warned the specialist, "the pedestrain is so outclassed by any car that strikes him that his chance of avoiding death is slim, and his chances of avoiding injury are practically non-existent."

UNDER THE STUDY LAMP

(By William Crowe)

"Not forsaking the assembling of yourselves together, as the manner of some is." — Hebrews 10:25.

United action among creatures of like kind is born of a sense of mutual dependence, and is written into the very nature of things. It corresponds to the universal law of gravitation. In the animal kingdom it is the herd instinct, so the zoologist will tell you. Birds of a feather flock together.

Christian fellowship is in accord with that law and, elevated and purified, is used of God for the healthy spiritual growth of individual character and for the advancement of the Christian cause in an unbelieving world. Therefore corporate worship is, and always has been, and indispensable requisite to the life of the Church. Consequently anyone guilty of wilful neglect of this essential practice is forfeiting the opportunity for development into the type of manhood that God graciously offered him when he united with the church. Such a deliquent is also contributing to the failure of the Church as a promoting agency in the spread of the Kingdom of God, by becoming a stumblingblock to earnest inquirers about the value of the Christian religion. In short, such a person is making an empty pew a symbol of an empty life. He is identifying himself with the nine cleansed lepers who were unappreciative of what had been for them, instead of with the one Samaritan who exercised the grace of gratitude.

Worship is something in a believer's life for which there is no substitute. It is more than enjoyment of a program of music; more even than attention to a sermon. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like oil (the symbol of power) upon the head." The sanctuary when filled with fervent worshipers is indeed a powerhouse. Had it not been for the taberncale in the wilderness, the people would never have reached the Promised Land. Had the crowd of believers not been assembled together in the upper room, Pentecost would never have become the most amazing incident in the history of Christianity.

No, there is not substitute for worship in the house of God. A professing person who is able to go, and does not, is simply a deserter. That is all. Neither the highway, nor Sabbath recreation, nor business, nor anything else that the negligent may use for an excuse will rate with Him who 'loved the Church and gave himself for it."

Not all Alabama's new settlers were Americans. In 1817, a group of Frenchmen came up the Mobile and Tombigbee Rivers and settled at White Bluff. The following years these French who had left their native land after the defeat of Napoleon, marked off the town of Demopolis. They came as members of an "Association of French Emigrants for the Cultivation of the Vine and Olive. They were seeking a section where the land and climate were favorable for the growing of grapes and olives.

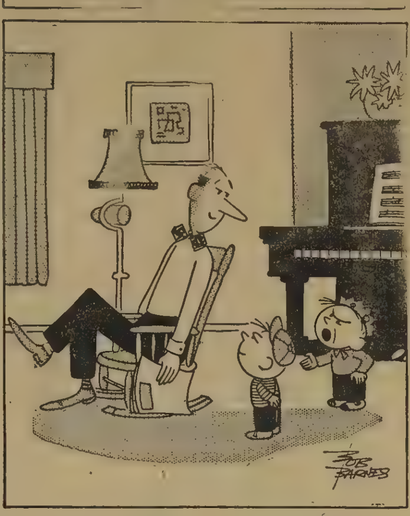
LAFF [illegible] WEEK



"Uncle Egbert—Freddie here, doesn't believe you can play chopsticks with your nose!"

Cooking Tips

TRY A SPICED CREAM for your next pudding for a flavorsome treat: Sweeten the cream with powdered sugar after whipping, and then add a dash of cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves. Flavor with vanilla.

Cooked broccoli is elegant as a salad, especially when you serve it with highly seasoned Thousand Island dressing.

Baking powder biscuits go to the head of the class when you sprinkle some crumbled bacon into the dough, and top the biscuits with some grated cheese just before baking.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Cheese Onion
(Serves 5)

- 1 16-ounce can whole onions
- 2 tablespoons butter or substitute
- 2 tablespoons chipped parsley
- 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon celery salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup grated sharp cheese
- ¼ cup chopped walnuts

Drain onions and place in buttered baking dish. Melt butter, add parsley, worcestershire sauce, celery salt and pepper; pour over onions. Mix cheese and nuts together and sprinkle over top of onions. Bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 15 minutes or until cheese is melted.

Stuffed dates will do nice things for any fruit salad when you want them especially delectable. Mix together some cream cheese and add a bit of crumbled blue cheese, and fill the pitted dates.

When you sit and snack, make this dandy sandwich: Spread buttered rye bread with Thousand Island dressing and top with a slice of Swiss cheese. Top with a slice of ham and another piece of buttered bread.

For a vegetable or supper dish, you'll like green peppers stuffed with chopped fresh tomato, minced onion and mushrooms, a sprinkling of buttered cracker crumbs, then Parmesan cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until peppers are tender.

Although Mobile remained in Spanish hands during the early part of the war of 1812, the British were permitted to use Mobile as a center from which to operate while trying to stir up Indian hostility toward the U. S. This gave President James Madison a legitimate excuse to take action and he ordered Gen. James Wilkinson, at New Orleans, to move against Mobile and capture it. American troops attacked and the town surrendered in April, 1813.

In 1805 John Hunt, from Tennessee, built his cabin beside the Big Spring in what is today Huntsville and news of the beautiful and fertile valley spread and other settlers moved in, with the results that in 1808, the Huntsville region was organized into Madison County, Mississippi Territory, with a population of about 5,000.

The period immediately following the Creek War was the period of Alabama's most rapid growth. Some settlers floated down the Mississippi River to Natchez, then made their way overland to the Tombigbee Valley. Others from East Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia used the Tennesse River as a route into north Alabama. Some of those who came into north Alabama settled near Huntsville, while others moved deeper down into the interior.

Clanton Tigers Beat Jemison Panthers

(HAROLD SMYER)

The Chilton County High School Tigers defeated the Jemison High School Panthers here at Clanton last Friday night, 27 to 6, in the Tigers' annual homecoming football game. The Tigers have won five games this season, while losing three. Following are the scores of the Tigers' games this season:

Clanton 27, Maplesville 6.
Clanton 53, Isabella 13.
Clanton 46, Montevallo 6.
Clanton 14, Wetumpka 26.
Clanton 18, Columbiana 6.
Clanton 6, Prattville 13.
Clanton 13, Talladega 26.
Clanton 27, Jemison 6.
Clanton ? — Sylacauga ?
Clanton ? — Verbena ?

Total points, Clanton 204; Opponents 102.

In the Clanton-Jemison game the Tigers kicked off to the Panthers and the Panthers marched 90 yards in twelve plays to score, Guin scoring on a line buck from the one-yard line. Guin's attempted place kick for the extra point was not good. The Panthers kicked off and the Tigers roared right back to score in nine plays, Littlejohn scoring from the 15-yard line. Ellison's attemped conversion kick was blocked. Clanton kicked off and forced Jemison to punt from their own 20-yard line. Clanton drove 63 yards in 12 plays to score their second TD, and it was Littlejohn's second TD also. Joe's toe was true for the extra point.

After kicking off, the Tigers gained possession of the pigskin on their own forty-yard line when Oaks intercepted Guin's pass. Three plays later the Tigers fumbled, the Panthers recovering on their 42-yard line. Guin's passing did not gain a first down and Guin punted to the Tiger 10. The Tigers with the aid of a 32-yard jaunt by Askins, advanced the ball to the Panther 33-yard line in four plays as the first half ended. Score, Tigers 13, Panthers 6.

During half-time intermission, Miss Nell Williams, "Miss Homecoming Queen" for the Tigers was crowned Miss Homecoming by Captain Bill Smith. Miss Williams was escorted by Bobby Tucker; her maids of Honor being Misses Janice Young and Barbara Davidson, being escorted by Phillip Lawrence and Joe Duglas Grooms, respectively. Approximately one hundred Clanton High coeds formed a large "C" on the gridiron and in a candlelight ceremony sang their Alma Mater, accompanied by the Tiger Band.

Clanton received the second half kick-off and steam rolled for a touchdown in five plays, Mims scoring on a 28-yard run. Ellison's kick for the extra point was good. The Tigers last score came in the fourth period when Littlejohn circled right end for 34 yards to cross the goal line. Ellison made it 3 out of 4 as he kicked the extra point.

Leading ground gainers for the Tigers were Askins with 172-yards; Mims 152; Littlepohn 82 and Oaks 39.

Tiger scoring thus far this season is as follows: Littlejohn 60 points; Williams 30; Smith 24; Askins 18; Ellison 17; Caton 12; Oaks 7; Hardy 6; Harris 6 and Shelton 6.

BEST SOILS FORMED UNDER GRASS SODS

Alabama's best soils were formed under grass sods, and depleted soils are most rapidly rebuilt and most effectively conserved where good sods are maintained.

And S. R. Doughty, API Extension soil conservationist, reminds farmers that good pastures hold the soil in place and add humus and plant food which boost yields of crops that follow.

Cutting sweet corn off the cob for canning is made much easier by using a shoehorn instead of a knife. The wide end of the horn which is sharpened, conforms to the curvature of the average ear of corn, making it easy to shear off the kernels.

As early as 1807 a land office was opened at St. Stephens, Alabama. Agents located there were to supervise the sale of lands to settlers. By an act of 1800, lands were first to be offered for sale at public auction. The lands which were not sold could later be bought from the Government agents at not less than two dollars per acre.

Hack "Foils" the Rabbits

Got a letter from Hack Watson. Hack writes of a new way to protect his fruit trees from bark-eating rabbits. Thinks some of you would like to know about it.

What you do is get yourself some heavy aluminum foil. (Slim Peter's hardware store has it.) Put it around the base of the tree about rabbit-high.

It's light, easy to work, and only costs about four cents a tree. "Not as much fun as trying to clean out rabbits with a shotgun," Hack claims. "But it's a lot more thorough. Works against mice, too."

From where I sit, I'm always glad to pass along suggestions about how to protect your investment on a farm, or in a business. A good example of a man who takes the proper precautions is Andy Boyd, who runs the Green Gardens. Andy co-operates voluntarily with the Self-Regulation Program the Brewing Industry sponsors. Keeps his place clean, neat, and orderly so his customers can enjoy a pleasant meal and a temperate glass of beer.

Duck Hunters To Receive Questionnaires

A number of Alabama waterfowl hunters will be requested to fill out questionnaires concerning their hunting trips this winter.

Earl Kennamer, API Extension fish and wildlife specialist, explains that the completed forms should be mailed by the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service to obtain needed information on ducks and geese, including the number killed this year.

Lice On Cattle Multiply Fast

Auburn, Ala. — With cold weather here, it's a sure thing that lice are multiplying rapidly on all cattle.

W. A. Ruffin, API Extension entomologist, reminds cattlemen that lice seriously damage beef and dairy cattle during the fall and winter months. Also, they will reduce milk production and gains made by beef animals.

Ruffin said these pests can be controlled by spraying or dusting animals with 44T or rotenone. Lice on beef cattle can be killed with a spray mixture containing five to eight pounds of 50 per cent wettable DDT in 100 gallons of water. Dairy animals should be treated with eight pounds of 50 per cent wettable methoxychlor in 100 gallons of water.

The specialist added that if only a few animals are to be treated, it may be easier to control lice by dusting them. A dust that contains five per cent DDT should be used for treating beef animals. Dairy cattle can be treated with a dust that contains one per cent rotenone.

"Regardless of what material is used for lice, it is wise to treat animals twice," said Ruffin. "Treatments should be made about 15 days apart."

Hog Cholera Serum May Run Short

Auburn, Ala. — Hogs should be vaccinated before the hog cholera season and rough weather starts, according to G. B. Phillips, API Extension hog production specialist.

He revealed that the national outbreak of vesicular exanthema caused the loss of a number of herds used for production of hog cholera serum.

Also, the American Veterinary Medical Association has stated that due to quarantine, serum supplies may eventually be used up. Therefore, crystal violet and lapinized vaccines may be the only ones available for immunizing swine against hog cholera. Fortunately, they are said to establish immunity to hog cholera in about four to seven days.

Phillips added that no shortage of crystal violet, MLV, Rovac, and Swivax vaccines are indicated. And since serum is the only material hog growers have had or now have to treat infected or exposed herds, the thing to do is immunize hogs against cholera before exposure or outbreaks occur.

TREATING COTTONSEED

Treating cottonseed with the right disinfectants is highly effective in heading off seed rot and seedling blight which can ruin a stand.

Much time will be saved if you put cheese that is to be grated through the food chopper, using a fine cutter.

Pumpkin Preserves Catch The Eye

Auburn, Ala. — Very few homemakers know that pumpkins make excellent preserves, believes Lavada Curtis, API Extension food preservation specialist.

She points out that they have a very pretty color, and, with the addition of lemon juice make a very tart preserve.

"To make this tasty treat," says Miss Curtis, "wash, pare, and cut one pound of pumpkin into strips and then into thin shavings. Spread the chips on a platter, sprinkle with one pound of sugar and let stand eight to 10 hours. Put in a porcelain kettle, add one-fourth cup lemon juice, and cook slowly one and one-half hours, or until clear and tender. Skim, pack into jars, and seal. Process in a water-bath canner for 10 minutes."

RAW APPLES

Varieties of apples especially good for eating raw are the Delicious, McIntosh, Stayman, and Grimes Golden.

Our Protestant Heritage

(A Reformation Day Sermon by Rev. William Morgan)

Today we commemorate a very sacred occasion which is significant, not only to our own Lutheran Church, but to Protestantism generally. We celebrate today what we generally know as Reformation Day. Perhaps a brief word of explanation would enlighten you as to the occasion that this day commemorates.

On October 31, 1517, Martin Luther nailed his Ninety-Five Theses to the church door in Wittenburg, Germany challenging the entire doctrinal structure of the Roman church, esp. the doctrine of indulgences. (An indulgence, according to Catholic teaching, is a letter, usually signed by a bishop that is supposed to remit the earthly punishment of one's sins). Since the church was in desperate financial straits, agents were sent out from Rome with great supplies of these letters for sale to the people. When an agent came into Luther's territory selling these letters, Luther protested and ordered that agent excluded. The peopel were being deceived into believing that they could buy, not only their own forgiveness, but also forgiveness for departed loved ones who were still in purgatory. It is said that this agent preached the following phrase: "When money in the chest dost cling, then the soul out of purgatory springs."

This prodded Luther into action. He sat down and wrote nineyt-five propositions attacking this doctrine and nailed them to the church door which was intercepted as a challenge for church authorities to answer him and debate this issue. This act was the break with Rome which shook the church to its very foundations and resulted in the Protestant Reformation.

Today, some 435 years later, Protestantism still stands as a potent factor in shaping the religious life of our nation. We Protestants have so much of which we can justly proud. Today, however, just for a little while, I would like to turn back the hands of the clock to the time of Luther and the other great reformers, Zwingli and Calvin, and see just what our great religious heritage is. Here it will be necessary to discuss these Protestant principles in relation to their Roman Catholic counterparts, not to stir up prejudice, but to understand the overall situation that precipitated the break with the church of Rome and the birth of the Protestant movement. Our religious heritages are doctrinal principles arising out of the work of Luther and others. They are:

Justification by Faith Alone—

This has been the keystone teaching of Protestantism ever since the Reformation. By it we mean that God freely forgives man of all sin upon personal acceptance of Jesus Christ as personal Saviour. Actually this teaching was originally taught by the early apostles since it is found in the New Testament, but prior to Luther, it had been obscured by Mariolatry, the worship of saints and relics, and blind obedience to ecclesiastical authority. Luther merely restored what was already in the Bible. The Lutheran church today still proclaims this blessed truth to those who are burdened with sin and want to know Jesus as Saviour.

Priesthood of Believers—

By this we mean that every Christian can go directly to God in penitent faith and obtain forgiveness of sins without the mediation of a human priest or minister. In Roman Catholic theology only the priest can forgive sins through the confessional. Luther said that you don't need a priest since Christ Himself is the high priest.

The Roman church battled Luther fiercely on this point because it was not only a doctrinal attack, but it was threatening to cut into the revenues of the church derived from payments for indulgences and masses for the dead in purgatory; all of which the Lutheran church rejects.

Whenever you are burdened, or death threatens your home, lay your burden at the foot of the cross and let Christ carry it for you. Your salvation is a personal matter between you and God and you have no need for any "last rites" or ecclesiastical ceremony. If you are a believer in the shed blood of Christ as an atonement for your sins, then your salvation is assured for time and eternity.

Restoration of the Bible as the Standard of Faith—

This was perhaps the greatest accomplishment of the Protestant Reformation under Luther and is still accepted by Protestantism generally.

In the medieval church the Bible occupied a minor role. It was in Latin and unintelligible to the masses of people; it was regarded by the church as an incomplete salvation of God and had to be suplemented by human tradition; and could be interpreted only by the priests.

Luther declared that the Bible was a complete revelation in itself, and needed no human additions or interpretations, and that it should be read by all Christians and not by the clergy alone. The Lutheran church today still accepts the Bible as the infallible Word of God and the only standard of faith and practice, thus the Lutheran church is truly a "Bible church."

Definiteness of the Assurance of Salvation—

By this we mean that the individual can know whether or not he is saved, and on the basis of his faith, can say definitely that he is a child of God. Against this we nave the Catholic doctrine of purgatory.

The doctrine of purgatory teaches that those who die in the faith, and have lived godly lives, while they are saved, are not quite good enough to enter into heaven, but must spend an indefinite period in purgatory so that they can be cleansed of all stain of sin before they can be admitted to heaven. Since this is still the teaching of the church, the best that the devout Catholic can hope for is that his stay will not be too long.

Luther and the other reformers rejected purgatory as a myth because it is not taught in the Bible. We prefer instead to assure our people that when they are called from this earth they will be immediately present with the Lord as the Bible declares. The Bible speaks only of heaven and hell and refers to any other place where the individual can be given a last minute "laundering" before entering heaven.

As we close our meditation this morning, let not these remarks instill in us any pride or self-righteousness. We are justly proud of Protestantism's accomplishments over the centuries, but we still have a battle to fight against all the forces that would take this great heritage from us. Protestant nations lead the world in literacy, morlity, and the exaltation of the common man. These achievements can be lost if we are not vigilant and faithful to Christ because the forces of evil that confront us are gigantic.

While we do not want atheistic communism, neither do we want an ecclesiastical dictator because freedom cannot survive under either. Let us pray that the Protestant Christians of the world will never lose sight of these goals, but will press forward, under God's direction, to even nobler ones.

I am proud to be a Protestant! Are you?

NOTE: This sermon was delivered at the regular morning service at Concordia Lutheran Church, at Thorsby, Ala., October 26, 1952.

FAUTH - FOSHEE

In a double ring ceremony at Chapel No. 1 at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, the wedding of Mrs. Margie Elizabeth Fauth and Lt. James King Foshee was solemnized. Chaplain Cecil E. Harvey of Kelly Air Force Base read the marriage vows.

The lovely bride wore a ballerina length dress of old rose antique silk shantung. Hand-made lace of old rose outlined the off-the-shoulder neckline, and the bodice was fitted. The full skirt fell in a drape-effect on either side. Her small hat and mitts were fashioned for her of the dress material by a New York designer. She wore pumps of navy suede. Her corsage was an orchid arranged on a white Bible with white satin streamers and carnation petals.

Miss Delphine Cervenka was the bride's only attendant and her dress was of beige organza. She wore navy accessories.

The best man was Mr. Lewis Eubanks, formerly of Clanton, Alabama, and now of 546 McDougal Ave., San Antonio, Texas.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given by Mrs. Jessie Meador and Mrs. L. C. Dickerson in the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dickerson at 422 Royston Avenue. Hurricane lamps lighted the entrance to the garden and were placed near the tables which were covered with lovely cloths of white organdy with full ruffles that reached to the ground. There were sprigs of pink flowers at each corner of the tables tied in pink satin bows. Pink and white Chrysanthemums were in crystal bowls on each table.

Mrs. Foshee is the daughter of Mr. Lad Kubola of Granger, Texas, and is a graduate of Seton School of Nursing at Austin, Texas.

Lt. Foshee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sie Foshee, Clanton, Alabama. He received his B. S. Degree in Industrial Management from Alabama Polytechnci Institute at Auburn, Alabama, and was a member of the Theta Chi Social Fraternity.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans and other points of interest, the couple will be at home at 859 Barrett Place in San Antonio, Texas.

CHIROPRACTIC

The Modern Approach To Natural Health

by Dr. Marshal L. Ware

GLANDS

Today a number of ailments are traced to a gland deficiency.

Every thought and emotion affect our glands and are either constructive or destructive.

Our glands are health builders which if in harmony, health is the result. But if any one of the seven principal glands of the body fail to function, our whole mechanism is out of order.

Hope, cheer, courage and happiness should replace thoughts of fear, worry, anxiety or grief. This is a must if we want one hundred per cent health.

These glands are fed by our food intake which should be high in vitamins and minerals. Without these foods the glands cannot do their work.

Most important of all is the nerve supply to these glands, as to all other parts of the body. Normal nerve supply means health.

A vertebrae (backbone) out of place in the neck or back stops the normal nerve function to these glands and nither correct thinking or necessary foods will overcome the dis-ease.

Buy Seed Corn Early

CORN problems seem to keep popping up for Alabama farmers.

Last summer the big question was whether it would rain soon enough to save the crop. Continued dry weather answered that question in the worst possible way; a recent U. S. crop estimate placed Alabama's corn yield at 10 bushels per acre—the lowest in the nation.

Seed for next year's crop poses another problem. Producers of hybrid seed corn in Alabama fared no better than their neighbors. But mid-western seed growers had a bumper crop and may want to market part of their surplus seed in the South. These varieties are unadapted for Alabama and if used here next year could cut the corn yield by 20 per cent or more, even if the growing season is favorable.

The supply of adapted hybrid seed corn may be short—but not too critical. Several steps can ease this situation:

First, it is a good idea to buy your seed corn early. Refuse to buy seed of unadapted varieties. Insist that your dealer supply you with seed of the variety recommended for your area.

Recommended Corn Varieties

(Based on results of 1951 tests by the A.P.I. Agricultural Experiment Station)

THE hybrids found to be best adapted to different sections of the state are as follows: NORTHERN ALABAMA. Best white hybrids: Pfister (P.A.G.) Nos. 620 and 631. Second choice white hybrids: Georgia 101, Dixie 17, McCurdy 1005W, Dixie 11, and Tennessee 10. Best yellow hybrids; Pfister (P.A.G.) 170, U. S. 13, North Carolina 27, and Dixie 18.

CENTRAL AND SOUTHERN ALABAMA. Best hybrids for each of these sections are the same. Best white hybrids: Dixie 11 and Louisiana 521. Best yellow hybrids: Dixie 18 and North Carolina 27. Second choice hybrids: white—Georgia 101, Dixie 17, and McCurdy 1005W; yellow—McCurdy 1001. (Other white hybrids named as second choice for central Alabama only are Pfister (P.A.G.) 631, and Tennessee 10.)

Second, if you can't get the flat grades of adapted seed corn, use the round kernels. Round kernel seed corn will give just as good results as the flat kernels. They are cheaper per bushel and the kernels are smaller and will go farther in planting. Some growers contend that the flat grades plant more uniformly but this is not necessarily true. It all depends upon the kind and type of planter plates used.

In the face of the present situation, some farmers may be tempted to continue using open pollinated varieties. This would be a mistake because tests by the A.P.I. Experiment Station have shown that these varieties yield 20 to 30 per cent less corn than adapted hybrids. Consult your county agent for the best varieties for your area.

Fairest Of Them All

ALICE CORR, right, of Selma, was recently named Alabama's Maid of Cotton for 1953 and will represent this state in the National Maid of Cotton contest in Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 29-30. A sophomore at Randolph - Macon College, Lynchburg, Va., Alice is majoring in mathematics. She hopes to solve the intricate problems involved in becoming the national maid at Memphis. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mac S. Corr.

Alternate maid in the state contest was Mary Elizabeth Gregory of Auburn. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gregory. There were 60 candidates from counties and one from Alabama College in the state contest.

The Maid of Cotton contest is sponsored by all segments of the cotton industry in the state. Miss Corr succeeds Catherine Bailey of Anniston.

Baldwin Baker Makes Hobby Pay

THE old fashioned art of baking bread is becoming almost extinct, but in Baldwin County there is one homemaker who still makes baking a pleasant and profitable hobby. The Baldwin baker is Mrs. Mary James of Fairhope, Rt. 1.

Mrs. James has always liked to bake bread but she didn't go into the baking business on a commercial scale until recently. A traveling baker, who had a house trailer furnished with baking equipment, decided to go out of the business a few months ago while visiting in Fairhope so Mrs. James secured the trailer and now has a portable baking room parked in her yard.

The East Fairhope Home Demonstration Club member orders whole grain wheat and grinds it in a homemade machine which is part of the trailer equipment. Another innovation she uses is a dough mixer which was made from parts of an old cream separator.

Mrs. James sells bread to several local stores and also supplies whole wheat bread for the Maddock Foundation School for Children at Point Clear.

When asked if she plans to expand her hobby-business, Mrs. James isn't so sure. She likes to bake bread but says keeping up with the work around the farm home doesn't leave very much time for baking—and anyway, she adds, it's just a pleasant hobby.

Pond owners can usually expect good fishing in winter if they bait a place in their pond every day or so. The best bait is soybean meal or soybean cake.

READY FOR BUTTER AND JAM—Mrs. Mary James of the East Fairhope Home Demonstration Club lifts out a piping hot pan of bread from her electric stove. Her bakery products are in great demand because of the "home cooked" flavor they possess.

NEW OFFICE FOR C OF C

The decision to open an office and have a full time secretary, made recently by the Chilton County Chamber of Commerce, was a wise one.

It is difficult enough to transact business with busy businessmen, but with no appointed office to transact the business in, is next to impossible. We are sure that is the way many have found it in the past when they wanted to do business with our Chamber officials.

With the statement that a full time office would be opened over the Western Auto Associate Store on the first of the year the Chamber of Commerce officials have made it much easier for outside interest who would come to Chilton County on business. Now they will have a starting point and the resident secretary can contact officials needed for the information needed by the visitor.

The Chilton County Chamber of Commerce has already laid some good groundwork and the step mentioned above is another step in the right direction.

CONGRATULATIONS, CANDIDATES!

Let us congratulate all the candidates in the race just finished for the clean race they conducted.

There was no votes bought, or attempted to be bought, there was no great amount of money to conduct a campaign on, there was no money missing from the treasury, in fact, the whole campaign was conducted on what might be called a "shoe string."

Shoe string is used advisedly as the most of the campaign was fought by the candidates knocking on doors and asking the citizen for his, or her, support.

It was a political campaign as we have dreamed of and we want to congratulate those fine men who conducted it so cleanly.

A GOOD FINANCIAL REPORT

Mayor C. Fenn Jones can well be proud of the financial statement published in this issue of Chilton County News.

According to the accountants who audited the City's books for the past fiscal year the "operation and records were found to be in an improved condition." The financial statement will also show the sound condition of the financial condition of the city at this time.

Under the title of "Total Expenses" which shows a total of some hundred and seventy thousand dollars that figure also includes twenty-five thousand paid out from the general fund for gas and water mains.

The Mayor and the Councilmen are to be congratulated on this good report and the capable handling of the city's finances.

GET BEHIND HIM

Rev. Marvin K. Vickers has been appointed County Chairman for the March of Dimes this year.

In the past the county has done well in this drive, and it is hoped that all citizens will rally to Rev. Vickers in this worthwhile work and help place Chilton County among the top counties of the state in this drive.

A very capable Chairman has been named and it is the least we can do to help him reach the County's quota.

Genevieve Rowe To Higlight Opening Of Concert Season

Every music lover who owns a radio has probably heard and thrilled to the coloratura voice and the art of Genevieve Rowe. The slim dark-haired soprano who appears here on Friday evening, at the auditorium of the First Baptist Church at 8 o'clock, has appeared as soloist on a score of the nation's favorite radio programs, including the Philip Morris show, the Coca-Cola Hour with Andre Kostelanetz, the Cities Service, the RCA Victor, the International Harvest of Stars, Celonese Hour, Consolidated Edison and with the NBC Symphony in a Special Romberg show conducted by the composer.

A tribute to the singer's versatile mucianship occurred when Alfred Wallenstein chose her as one of the leading artists for his memorable Bach Cantata Series and Mozart Opera Series over the Mutual Network. The Columbia Broadcasting System singled her out to create the role of "Beauty" in the first commissioned radio opera, Vittorio Giannini's "Beauty and the Beast." She also sang the role of Mary in the first radio performance of Moore's The Devil and Daniel Webster."

Television was quick to discover that the finery chiseled features of the comely brunette projected on the screen, as well as her voice reproduced through the amplifier, and the number of leading TV shows on which she has appeared as guest star as growing steadily.

Genevieve Rowe's career is by no means limited to the airwaves. In addition to radio operas and workshop productions at the Juilliard School, she sang under Emil Cooper's direction in the Montreal Opera's productin of Mozart's "The Abduction from the Seriglio." Equally at home in concert and Oratorio, she is remembered by New Yorkers for her recent solo performance in Handel's "Israel in Egypt" with the Little Orchestra Society under Scherman and in Bach's B Minor Mass with the Westchester Philharmonic Society under Jonson.

Miss Rowe has been heard at recitals at Town Hall, and on tour throughout the country.

As the soprano of the Columbia Grand Opera Quartet, Miss Rowe has brought the thrill of Opera Melodies to music lovers throughout the United States and Canada.

Born in Wooster Ohio, and graduated from the College of Wooster, she began her professional career by becoming the youngest soprano ever to win the Atwater Kent Contest. From that point she continued to walk away with first prizes in National Contests. Her winning streak led to a fellowship in the Juilliard Graduate School of Opera, where she appeared with such stars as Donald Dame and Rise Stevens in the leading coloratura roles in "The Magic Flute" and "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

Miss Rowe is married to Robert Payson Hill, prominent pianist, teacher and accompanist. When they are not on tour, their New York Studio is a hive of activity—the favorite working or relaxing hount of many of the greats of the music world and the starting point for many future greats.

Genevieve Rowes outstanding performances in concert opera, radio and television have made her a favorite throughout the land.

Around OUR HOUSE

by Kathryn Tucker Windham

Nearly everywhere the three-year old and the five-year-old go these days somebody asks them about their baby sister. And because she continues to be their favorite source of entertainment, they usually give a rather lively account of the young lady's activities.

The other day a friend asked the five-year-old:

"Is the baby big or is she tiny?"

Not being very familiar with the comparative sizes of babies, the five-year-old hesitated a moment before she answered:

"Well, she's just exactly the right size for a little baby sister."

It happens every time: Just let me begin to get fairly satisfied with my output of work and along comes the postman with a magazine called "Jessie's Homemaker." One glance at Jessie's assortment of activities makes me feel like Aesop's grasshopper—except that I don't even have a fiddle.

This Summer, for instance, Jessie busied herself by writing and editing her monthly magazine, doing two daily radio programs, operating a general store and restaurant, doing all the cooking for her family as well as for the restaurant, conducting a thriving mail order business, baking several dozen pies daily, doing the laundry, handling the rental of a group of cottages and doing some intricate needlework.

That's not all. In her spare time (she used that phrase herself) she made enough shirts to last her two unmarried sons during the school year, helped put a log siding on the store, and worked on an extra be room in her attic.

Assuming that the days out Colorado where she lives have th same number of hours as the on here, as they doubtless do, I simp don't see how even such an ene getic person as Jessie obviously could get so much work done. Ju reading about her Summer schedu makes me tired.

Jessie has one accomplishment o which she is completely unawar She has enriched the vocabular around our house with the phras "as busy as Jessie." And that' powerfully busy!

Although our next door neig bor isn't as busy as Jessie by a means, she does find enough wo to keep her busy. The other mor ing she was oiling all the hing in her house and was also oili all the door locks.

In case you ever want to oi door lock, she says the best w is to put the oil on the key a then turn the key in the lock se eral times.

These bright October days a certainly picnic weather. Our neig bor down the street makes a speci cake for her family to take picnics, and she has shared h recipe with other picnickers in t neighborhood. Here's how her cak is made:

Sift together 2 cups flour, 1 te spoon soda and 3-4 teaspoon sal Add 2 cups of firmly packed brow sugar, 1 cup buttermilk or so milk, 1-2 cup shortening, 1 teaspoo vanilla and beat hard for 2 minute Then add 3 eggs and 2 square melted unsweetened chocolate, com bining thoroughly. Bake in loaf pa at 350 degrees for about 45 minute

nemployment Benefits Provided or The Veterans Of Korea

nemployment benefits have been vided for discharged veterans o have served since the outak of the Korean conflict. Un- Sam is giving them the same ping hand to get them started civilian life again that he gave veterans of World War II. ngress provided for unemploynt benefits for the veterans who ved since the outbreak of the flict in Korea to tide them over il they have had the opportunity find a job, just as it did for the erans of World War II. The employment compensation is only of the benefits provided under Veterans Readjustment Assistce Act of 1952, but it is the y one of these benefits handled the employment office.

he Director of the State Departnt of Industrial Relations has ned a nagreement with the U. S. partment of Labor, whereby the partment will handle the unemyment benefits for veterans in abama. This means that claims l be taken for these unemploynt benefits at the employment ices over the state.

his does not mean that every charged veteran is entitled to w benefits. There are several ovisions which must be met bee the veteran can claim this employment compensation. First, e veteran must have served for a ntinuous period of 90 days or re in the armed forces, at least E DAY of which must have en served AFTER June 26, 1950. owever, a veteran may be eligible en if he has NOT served ninety y IF he has a service-connected sability. He must also have reved a discharge OTHER THAN shonorable.

he program is being administed in accordance with the state employment compensation law hich means that the veteran must out of work. . .able and willing work. . .and registered for work the employment office. If the teran is eligible for benefits uner teh state unemployment compensation law, or the railroad unemployment insurance act, he must file claims for them first.

He will get additional benefits if his state or railroad compensation is NOT AS HIGH as the compensation provided for veterans under the new G.I. Bill. The federal government will add to his weekly benefits up to the twenty-six dollars provided for under the veterans' act.

The veteran can draw veterans unemployment compensation for twenty-six weeks all together, he can draw twenty-six payments of twenty-six dollars each, or a total of $676. That is, of course, if he is unable to find suitable employment during the period he is drawing these benefits.

A veteran cannot draw these benefits immediately. He must wait 30 days for each one hundred dollars of mustering out pay he receives, before he is eligible to claim benefits. That means that if he draws one hundred dollars mustering-out pay, he must wait 30 days from date of discharge—60 days for $200 mustering-out pay—and 90 days for $300 mustering-out pay.

When a veteran reports to the Employment Office, he should have with him his discharge and separation papers, his social security card, and a list of the employers he worked for during a period of 18 months prior to his entering the service, and since his discharge.

Getting Around with Mac Brown

Not long ago I read where some professor explained the chemical reasons why leaves change to all their beautiful colors in the fall. Back when I was a boy I could tell from three miles away that a tree was a maple by the yellow of its leaves this time of the year. And there was a special red which marked the oak. According to my system, it's the tree they're on which determines their color.

I was thinking about this last week while driving my truck up toward Gadsden. I thought too about how much prettier the woods seem to me now than when I was a kid. At least that's one thing where I think change has been for the better.

Years ago the saw mills would come through and build a railroad into a section for logging. It cost so much they had to cut down all the trees to make it pay. It left the woods stripped and ugly.

Now practically all timber is brought out by trucks, and they can afford to cut only the bigger ones. That's what they call tree farming, and think a lot of credit for its progress goes to trucks, which make it easy and economical to grow trees as a crop.

Big Demand For Farm Credit Due To Low Farm Production

Short feed crops, parched pastures, empty barns, and the sharp break in prices of cattle and lower prices for cotton, coupled with high costs of farming, are combining to create a big demand for farm credit, George B. Auburtin, secretary-treasurer of the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association said this week.

Mr. Auburtin reported that the price of cattle has dropped from 30 to 40 per cent during the past three months, and the value of cotton is down $15 to $20 per bale. Many farmers have little or no hay and pastures are practically bare.

Many farmers, Mr. Auburtin said, will have to buy hay and cottonseed meal to carry their cattle through the winter. He said it will take at least one ton of hay and one sack of meal to winter a mature animal. This means a cost of $35 to $50 per cow.

As a result of the drought that has cut feed crops and burned pastures, and the drop in cotton and cattle prices which has reduced cash income, many farmers are finding it necessary to obtain long-term loans to refinance short-term debts, buy feed, and do other jobs, Mr. Auburtin stated.

He said the Canebrake National Farm Loan Association stands ready to help farmers get land bank loans to meet their credit needs.

Lutheran Church News—

The Service 11:00; Sunday School 10:00. Everybody welcome.

Today I would like to correct an impression that is called to my attention from time to time, namely: that the Lutheran Church is a branch of Roman Catholicism. I think that this idea is fostered by the fact that the Lutheran Church uses a formal type service that may be somewhat strange to those not accustomed to it.

Actually nothing could be more erroneous than to identify the Lutheran Church with Catholicism. The Lutheran Church, in fact, is the first Protestant Church to come into existence, and is the oldest Protestant Church in the world. Doctrinally, we have more in common with our Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian brethren than we have with the Roman Catholic Church. There is probably no other church on earth that Rome has fought with more bitterness than the Lutheran church because Luther led the revolt that resulted in the Protestant Reformation.

We Lutherans use the formal service and the altar candles, robes, etc., not because there is any special merit in doing so, but we feel that they create a more worshipful atmosphere. We feel that art is the highest expression of man's creative genius and if it is genuinely Christian, it may be used to advantage in the worship services of the church.

The next time you are in a Lutheran Church, remember, all that you see in the church are there as aids to your devotion and worship, but they do not mean that our church is Romanistic. The Lutheran Church is thoroughly Protestant and proud of it. — Rev. William Morgan.

Mr. Tom Rogers is the leader for Lay Services. Everybody welcome to come be with us while Rev. Morgan and wife is away.
